Old Sweet Still Sour

A lot of West Virginia business people who did work or furnished materials and equipment for Old Sweet Springs on direct order and authorization of the state board of control are reported to have been left holding the bag. They haven't been paid, and the board says there is no money legally available with which to pay them.

They say the 1943 Legislature did not appropriate any money for Old Sweet except the little that was provided for moving the patients into real hospitals. While the statement is true, it is also true that the Legislature never did provide any money for Old Sweet. Governor Neely and his board of control simply took money belonging to Hopemont and used it up in Monroe county.

Court action by these creditors of the state is expected, even if such action means suing the board of control members and the members of the board of public works on their bonds.

Bailey "Surprised"

Cleveland M. Bailey, state budget director, has announced his "surprise" that the Legislature gave the state road commission plenty of money with which to operate.

The only surprising thing about Bailey's surprise is that he was surprised. The Legislature and the public knew long ago that the state road commission was given plenty of money for the next two years. According to Bailey, they'll even have about $1,000,000 in "free balances".

Whiskey Board Acts Wisely

The state liquor control commission has issued an order that purchasers hereafter will have to show their voter's registration card before they can buy whiskey or wine. The commission issued the order to prevent out-of-state buyers from draining the state's supply, and to try to prevent bootleggers stocking up at state stores.

Whatever else the order may accomplish, it will—if honestly obeyed—prevent the sale of liquor and wine to minors.

Blames the OPA

The "bungling of the Office of Price Administration" in the Washington and Cleveland and West Virginia offices has imposed "severe hardships" on the people of West Virginia, says a spokesman for the state association of retail grocers. Critical meat shortages have occurred in places like Harrison county, where lots of good beef cattle (ripe this hilly ready for market) and Logan county, where workers in mines desperately need their full ration of red meat. Vegetable shortages are also occurring at various times in the state.

The main trouble seems to be in price ceilings. Lettuce, for instance, brings $6 more a case more in Cincinnati than at Charleston—so it's said in Ohio and this territory don't get it.

It's Their Privilege!

U. S. Senator M. M. Neely, in the United States Senate, in favor of the Lafollette resolution which vigorously denounced domestic agitation which would hamper the prosecution for a third term by Mr. Neely in running for a fourth term. He explained that he had already changed his mind on the matter and will honor the request of Democratic voters in Fayetteville that he not run for a fourth term.

"AMERICAN CODE"

We're on our way, a call to pay,
As we once did before
It's just and fair, Herr Hitler,
In love or bloody war

We'll soon be there, to hear your prayer
This time you'll not get by,
Your Horde's have trod, forbidden sod,
And watched your victims die.

It won't be long, until the dawn,
When you must stand alone,
A bloody war to answer for
And reap that which you've sown

Nations that fell, 'mid shot and shell,
Beneath your murd'rous might,
Will rise again, to face when,
Your day has turned to night.

They'll strew your path, with thorns of wrath,
From which there'll be no flight,
In vain you'll call for rocks to fall,
And hide you from their sight.

Cheer up oppressed, there'll soon be rest,
America has come
To set you free from Tyranny
And banish Nazi scum.

We ride the breeze, o'er land and seas,
We sail the ocean blue
To join hands in Foreign Lands,
With men whose hearts are true.

We stand, we fight, for freedoms right,
That all men might be free,
Our code is peace that cannot cease,
Love, Life, and Liberty.

Our Banner waves o'er soldier's graves,
In many Foreign Lands,
We ask no pay, that's just our way—
Loyal Americans.

To God we trust a cause that's just,
Our own Democracy;
Give us, O Lord, as our reward
Unchallenged Victory.

New Deal, Mr. Roosevelt said that he was spending billions of the peoples money for WPA projects instead of for preparation for war. When far-seeing citizens urged that the boys in the CCC camps be given rudimentary military training, without guns, simply to build them up physically, the administration refused.

Today, Mr. Roosevelt suggests that it would be a good thing for all young men to serve at least one year in the army.

State House Has Candidate

The state house candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor will be Bailey—not Ernest, of the road commission, but Senator Robert D. Bailey, of Wyoming county, former judge of the circuit court there. That's the way things stack up now.

The Kump-Holt, or anti-Neely wing of the party, has no candidate in the paddock right now, but its scouts are beating the bushes to see if they can't find some one to carry their colors in the race which is just one year away.

Tale Of A Pig

A strange and complicated story about a stray pig was related by the noted historian, John Fiske, in his "Beginnings of New England." This pig was brought in the year 1643 to a "certain Captain Keayne, of Boston, a rich man deemed to be hard and overbearing towards the poor." The Captain "gave due public notice through the town crier" but no one appeared then to claim the pig.

Later, after the Captain had killed one of his own pigs which he had kept in the same sty with the stray, "a poor woman named Sherman" came to see whether the stray was one she had lost. Since she did not recognize it, she claimed that the Captain had killed her pig instead of his own. She brought the case before the elders of the church who ruled against her. Next she accused Keayne of theft but a jury cleared him. He then sued her for defamation and got what for that time was a heavy judgement against her. Issues became confused and, in a long story short, this led to the permanent separation of the colonial legislators into two bodies.

Several "morals" might be drawn from this tale. One is that 300 and more ago, was formulated the Public Notice as one of their legal system. It was 80 years before the first newspaper, the Boston News-Letter came to stay. But from the start they still are. Public notices an important part of the newspapers.

Kathryn Schwarz, Sgt. Grady F. Herold Married In Texas

Mercedes, Texas. —The soft glow of lighted tapers gave the only illumination for the marriage of Miss Kathryn Schwarz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Schwarz, and Sgt. Grady Fillmore Herold, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Herold, of Manitou Springs, West Virginia, Saturday evening, April 17, at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Charles A. Tucker read the impressive double ring ceremony.

Banked with woodwardia fern and flanked by two tall white baskets of calla lilies, the fireplace was transformed into a beautiful alter-like setting. In the central niche a Madonna vase filled with baby calla lilies was accented with burning tapers. On the piano in a crystal bowl was a calla lily arrangement with glowing tapers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white chiffon fashioned with long full sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. Bands of satin on the skirt, sleeves and belt gave a shadow applique effect. A small flower ornamented hat with veil completed her attire. On her prayerbook she carried a bouquet of stephanotis which was arranged around a white orchid.

Miss Ann Schmalzried was the bride's attendant. She wore an Army gray suit, a Roman striped hat, and a corsage of gardenias. The groom's attendant was Sergeant James R. Kornstein of Coldwater, Michigan.

Before the ceremony Miss Alma Epsey accompanied by Mrs. Virginia Shotwell, sang "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life" and "I Love You Truly." During the ceremony, Mrs. Shotwell played MacDowell's "To A Wild Rose." The traditional wedding marches were also played.

The bride's mother was attired in a navy sheer trimmed with white and wore a corsage of white gardenias. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Phillip Schwarz, wore a blue bemburg with a corsage of pink carnations.

A reception followed the ceremony.

The three-tiered wedding cake with sugar spun rosebuds and birds in pastel shades topped with a miniature soldier groom and bride was encircled by white carnations and maidenhair fern. Mrs. Gene Sshwarz cut the cake and Mrs. Robert Van Burkleo and Mrs. F. R. Jones served the punch. White carnations were also used on the buffet and elsewhere in the dining room. Miss Peggy Schwarz sister of the bride, presided at the moire satin bride's book which was designed by the groom.

A member of a pioneer Valley family, the bride is a popular member of the younger social set. She attended Mercedes high school where she was business manager of the Tiger and a member of the band. She graduated from Galena Park high school at Houston, and attended the business college at Harlingen. She is now employed at the First National Bank.

The groom, who is stationed at the Harlingen Army Gunnery School, is a 1939 graduate of Marlinton high school at West Virginia. He was art editor of the school paper and yearbook and was active in sports.—Brownsville (Texas) Herold

Navy News

Seabees Great Performers

Although it is scarcely a year since the first Seabee Battalion arrived at Island "X" to build the first springboard for America's global offensive, the record of this newest branch of the Navy staggers the imagination. All over the world, bases, airfields, and dock facilities have sprung up. Seabees, working at top speed, sometimes 24 hours a day, have carved modern bases out of primitive jungles.

A large proportion of Seabees are former union men, who were recruited with the close cooperation of Unions everywhere.

The list that follows gives some idea of the marvelous work accomplished by Seabees in less than a year of operation:

1. Aided in the development of Port and other facilities in Africa.

2. Took over the public works maintenance and operation of the Navy's bases in the United Kingdom.

3. Assisted in the North African movement which occured in November.

4. Augmented civilian forces in Ireland to insure more rapid completion of the Navy's facilities in that country, and afforded a public works maintenance and operating force for all completed activities.

5. Augmented contractor's civilian forces in Argentina to insure more rapid completion of the Navy's facilities at that outpost.

6. Augmented contractor's civilian forces in Bermuda, Trinidad and various outlying bases in the 15th Naval District, and at the same time took over the public works maintenance and operation of all of these bases.

7. Took over practically all of the advanced base construction work throughout the territory of Alaska, including Dutch Harbor, Kodiak, Sitka and other points.

8. Replaces all contractor's civilian employees at outlying bases of the 14th Naval District, and carried to completion a large portion of the work contemplated for each of these bases. They are now maintaining and operating these bases insofar as the public works functions are concerned.

THE STORY SO FAR: The story of their part in the battle for the Philippines is being told by four of the five naval officers who are all that is left of Motor Torpedo Boat Squadron 3. They are Lieut. John Bulkeley (now Lieutenant Commander), squadron commander; Lieut. R. B. Kelly, second-in-command; and Ensigns Anthony Akers and George E. Cox Jr. After learning that Pearl Harbor had been bombed, Lieut. Bulkeley ordered Lieut. Kelly to take three of the six torpedo boats to Bataan where they would get provisions and fuel from a submarine tender. But when they arrived, they found that the tender had been ordered away. So they set up headquarters in Sisiman Cove.

CHAPTER II

"For the most part we lived on our boats—had to, because we never knew when we would have to haul out into the bay in case of a dive-bomber attack. Anyway we had a base again.

"Next, we found our barges loaded with gasoline in drums which had been towed out into the bay for us by the navy—if they got smacked by bombs, they didn't want them burning near the wharves. There was nobody in charge but a watchman. Each boat holds two thousand gallons, and of course it was a job pouring all that through a funnel.

"We noticed, as we poured, that this gas had both water and rust in it—yet there was no way to strain it out; we had no chamois. What we couldn't then know was, this gas had been sabotaged. We'll never find out when or where—the guy who did it is safe, if he's alive. But someone had dissolved wax in it—wax which congealed inside our gas tanks in a coat half an inch thick—wax which clogged our filters so that sometimes we'd have to stop and clean them after an hour's run. That's the fuel we had to fight the war on, we were to find out.

"Then I went over to the section base to make arrangements for our food, and we got another bump. The navy already realized a food shortage was coming and cut us down to two rations a day—breakfast and supper. All you got for lunch was stomach cramps about noon. There was plenty of them.

"I also thought I'd better have the doctor look at my finger. I'd snagged it a few days before and hadn't paid much attention, but now it was swollen about as thick as a walnut. I guessed maybe it was a minor strep infection. What I didn't know was that out East the streptococci are bigger and meaner than bulldogs and not to be fooled with. He took one look and began to talk about the hospital, but I said the hell with that. I was the second officer of the squadron and badly needed.

"We settled that I'd come over to see this doctor daily.

"The big alarm came at noon on December 10—we'd pulled up alongside a mine sweeper for water when word came that a large flight of Jap planes was headed toward the Manila area, coming from the direction of Formosa. We pulled away from the tender, out into open water, and fifteen minutes later we saw them—several formations—I counted about twenty-seven to twenty-nine planes in each—two-motor bombers — lovely, tight, parade-ground formations, coming over at about 25,000 feet. But, I thought, when our fighters get up there and start rumpling their hair, those formations won't look so pretty. Only where were our fighters? The Japs passed on out of sight over the mountains, and then we began hearing the rumble of bombs—only first we felt the vibrations on our feet, even out there in the water, and we knew something was catching hell. But what? Manila? Maybe Nichols Field? Or even Cavite, our own base? We couldn't know."

"I did," said Bulkeley laconically. "I was there, at Cavite. The Admiral sent us a two-hour warning that they were coming—from Formosa, and headed on down in our direction across Northern Luzon. So we hauled our boats out into the bay. They kept beautiful formations, all right. The first big V had fifty-four planes in it, and they came in at about 25,000, with their fighters up up above to protect them from ours—only ours didn't show! We couldn't figure it. First they swung over Manila and began to paste the harbor shipping. It was a beautiful clear day, and I remember the sun made rainbows on the escapements of their bombs. They were from a hundred and fifty to two hundred feet high, and it made a most curious noise down you couldn't hardly tell what was happening to the ships. It turned out nothing much was—that only hit a few.

"But then that big beautiful V pivoted slowly and moved over Cavite—began circling it like a flock of well-disciplined buzzards.

"They were too high to see the bomb bay doors open, but we could see the stuff drop slowly, pitching or spiral, only as we watched we found we had questions of our own. Because five little fire bombers peeled off that formation, one by one, and started straight down for us. When they were down to about fifteen hundred feet, they leveled off and began machine-gunning. Of course we gave our boats full throttle and began zigging and zagging, both to dodge the bombs and to get a shot at them. The gunners knew it was their first crack at the Japs. I remember Chalker's face; he's a machinist's mate from Texarkana—a shootin' Texas boy. He was pouring 50-caliber slugs up at them, cooler than a pail of cracked ice, but that long, straight, pointed jaw of his was set. Houlihan, who was firing the other pair of 50's, was the same. They'd picked out one plane and were pouring it up into the sky, when we saw the plane wobble, and pretty soon she took off down the bay, weaving unsteadily, smoking, and all at once, two or three miles away, she just wobbled down into the drink with a big splash. So we know the 35 boat got one. Meanwhile the 31 boat had shot down two more. After that the planes didn't bother strafing the MTB's. Guess the Jap pilots back at their Formosa base passed the word around.

"We went on back to Cavite and offered to carry more wounded. The big base was one sheet of flame except for the ammunition depot. Only a piece of the dock was left, and through the shimmering flames you could see only jagged walls. Then we saw Admiral Rockwell—he was directing the fire apparatus which was trying to save the depot. He is a tall man, a fine figure of a sailor, but his head was down that day. In a dead voice he told us we'd better get out—that the magazine was liable to go up any minute. We offered to take him with us to Mariveles, but he said no, his job was here, to do what he could to save the magazines.

"So we picked up from the gutters and streets a lot of cans of food we knew we would need—they were from the bombed warehouses—stacked them in the boat, and set out."

"I was back there a couple of days later after the fires were out," said Ensign Cox, a good-looking yellow-haired youngster from up-state New York. "They were burying the dead—which consisted of collecting heads and arms and legs and putting them into the nearest bomb crater and shoveling debris over it. The smell was terrible. The Filipino yard workers didn't have much stomach for the job, but it had to be done and done quick because of disease. To make them work, they filled the Filipinos up with grain alcohol.

"That raid gave me my first big shock of the war," said Lieutenant Kelly, "but it wasn't the damage they did. From over in Mariveles I couldn't see what was happening after the Jap bombers disappeared over the mountain. I got my shock after they had unloaded and flew over us on their way home—the same beautiful tight formations—not a straggler. Where was our air force?

"From over towards Cavite we could now see that huge columns of smoke rising into the sky as the Japs left the scene.

"But it wasn't until Lieutenant DeLong dropped in at four o'clock in the 41 boat that I knew how bad off we were. He said the Cavite base was a roaring blast furnace—the yard littered with those mangled and scorched bodies—and furthermore that all our spare parts for the MTB's—engines and everything—had been blasted to bits. Machine shops completely gone. Not so much as a gasket left to see us through this war, with the factory backyard around the world.

"Also he said the Cavite radio had been hit. That still left the short-wave sets—some stuff to talk with Manila or Bataan or the Rock, but of course this couldn't be secret from the Japs, so they would be depending on us for our boats for courier duty to carry all confidential stuff.

"So I wasn't surprised," said Bulkeley, "when early the next morning I got a hurry call to report to the Admiral in Manila. As we ran it took almost the entire forenoon, looking over toward Manila I saw something very queer—shipping of all descriptions was pouring out of that Manila breakwater into the open harbor—destroyers, mine sweepers, Yangtze River gunboats, tramp steamers, all going hell for breakfast. And then I saw them—a big formation of about twenty-seven bombers. By then I was beginning to learn that if we saw planes in the air, they would be Japs, not ours. Then came another formation of twenty-nine, and still another of twenty-six.

"If they were after shipping, we shouldn't get too close to the other boats, so I changed course. They wheeled majestically around the bay's perimeter, and each time they Passed Manila a load would go whistling down and presently huge columns of black and white smoke began rising—we could even see some fires, although we were still eleven miles away.

" 'Where in hell is our air force?' our crew kept asking me. 'Why in Christ's name don't they do something?'

"But the thing that really got me was that these big Jap formations, circling the bay like it was a parade maneuver, each time would sail impudently right over Corregidor! Didn't they know we had anti-aircraft guns?

"They knew all right, but it turned out they knew something I didn't. For presently all twenty of Corregidor's 3-inchers opened fire, and it made me sick to see that every one of their shells was bursting from 5,000 to 10,000 feet below that Jap formation. Those pilots were as safe as though they'd been home in bed. Later I found out what the Japs apparently already knew—that the Rock's anti-aircraft guns didn't have the range. And only then did it begin to dawn on me how completely impotent we were.

"When the Japs cleared out," continued Bulkeley, "Kelly and I headed for Manila and docked about three o'clock. When we reported, Commander Slocum told me the Admiral was considering sending our three boats on a raid off Lingayen, and were we ready? We said we were rarin' to go. So he said to stick around a couple of hours, and meanwhile to load the boats with files, records, and so forth, because they were moving headquarters. It had escaped so far, but right here on the water front it was too vulnerable — sure to get smacked. Through the open door we could see the Admiral conferring with his chief of staff.

"But just then," said Kelly, "Commander Slocum looked down at my arm, which was in a sling, frowned, and said I should get over to see the fleet doctor. The doctor took off the bandage and began to talk tough. Said he couldn't do anything, and that I was to get that arm to a hospital as fast as I could.

"I was dead set on that raid, but I decided it wouldn't be tactful to bring that up, so I said, 'Aye, aye, sir,' and skipped it. We loaded the boat with records, and then went back to headquarters, where we were told that the Jap convoy off Lingayen included eight transports and at least two battleships (one of these must have been the one that Colin Kelly later got), but that we weren't going to be sent. They were saving us for 'bigger things.'

" 'My God!' my junior officer said later, 'I didn't know they came any bigger! What do they think we are?'

"Anyway the Admiral patted Bulkeley on the shoulder and said, 'We know you boys want to get in there and fight, but there's no sense sending you on suicidal missions—just now.'

"So that was that, and we went on out across the bay, to our thatched village.

"You might call the next few days quiet for us, although my arm began giving me hell.

"Presently Bulkeley dropped in on us in the 41 boat, bringing us some stuff issued by the navy to replace everything we'd lost at our quarters in Cavite—a shirt each, underdrawers, a few tubes of toothpaste, and razors—two for each boat, one for the men and one for the officers. But with each razor there were only three packages of blades, so we saw beards in the offing.

"Bulkeley had heard about my hand from a pharmacist's mate and asked me if I could stick it for two more days until he could relieve me. He himself had to be on call for consultation with the Admiral, while they needed DeLong and his boat for courier duty. I said 'sure.'

"But the next few days were hell. The whole arm began swelling, and my hand was the size of a catcher's mitt. The nights were worse because I couldn't lie down for any length of time. Also I had to keep my arm held up, or blood running down into it would drive me nuts, and it stiffened that way. The doctor at Mariveles kept offering me morphine, but I didn't dare. There might be an emergency where we'd have to get the boats out to sea quickly. Bulkeley had left me in charge, and morphine might make me sleep so hard I couldn't waken for an air-raid alarm. The worst thing was the fleas—they kept boring around trying to get into that open incision in my finger as I held my hand up in the air. And also I was running a slow fever—about four degrees.

ANY pretty flowered print may be combined with the side strips of sheets that are good after the center part has worn out. A good section may be cut from the center bottom too. The diagram at the left gives all the dimensions you need for making a spread for a double bed from the good parts of three old sheets put together with six-inch strips flowered cotton material of about the same weight.

Here, the figured goods is in a pink and white pattern that is especially effective with the white muslin. It is also used to trim the curtains made from old sheets. Another interesting color note is the mats of the pink and white material used for the row of framed photographs over the bed. It also edges the full white lamp shades.

TO YOUR Good Health

by DR. JAMES W. BARTON

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

HOW MUCH FOOD SHOULD YOU EAT?

You may think that food requirements were measured in vitamins but before the discovery of vitamins the amount and kinds of food that should be eaten daily were measured in calories. A calorie is a measured amount of heat, that is, the amount of heat required to raise one kilogram of water (a little over two pounds) one degree centigrade (which is about 2¼ degrees Fahrenheit). Thus the average diet was made up of one part protein—meat, eggs, fish, two parts fats—butter, cream, fat meats and four parts starches—bread, potatoes, fruits and vegetables. In calories this would mean about 400 of proteins, 800 of fats and 1,600 of vegetables and fruits daily for average man doing some work daily. This method of calorie measurement is still in use.

Dr. Barton

In an article on nutrition in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Drs. Eugene F. DuBois and William H. Chambers, New York city, state:

The amount of heat given off by the resting man of average size (at complete rest and no digestion going on) is about equal to the heat of a 60-watt electric bulb or the flame of an alcohol lamp about one inch high. A man exercising hard equals the heat of 10 such lamps. As most of us are not at complete rest all of the time, nor are we working hard all the time, the amount of food needed will depend upon how much we rest and how hard we work. Thus one table of the number of calories needed by various trades is:

Men: Tailor, 2,600; bookbinder, 3,000; shoemaker, 3,100; cabinetmaker, 3,500 to 3,600; stone mason, 4,700 to 5,200; wood sawyer, 5,500 to 6,000. There are other trades such as moulders or foundrymen, stokers, molten metal workers and others where 6,000 calories are needed daily.

Women: Stenographer or office worker, 2,000 calories; seamstress with hand needle, 2,000; seamstress with machine, 2,100 to 2,300; bookbinder, 2,100 to 2,300; household worker, 2,500 to 3,200; washer-women, 2,900 to 3,700.

Facts About Acne, Pimples

Although the various methods of treatment help many cases of acne (pimples), the actual cause of acne is not fully known. Because it occurs at or near the age of puberty, most physicians believe that acne is in some way connected with the changes in the glands which causes boys and girls to emerge into men and women.

In the Journal of Clinical Endocrinology, Dr. Hamilton, Yale medical school, reports results in cases where he was able to bring on acne in certain individuals. He found that giving the hormone or extract of the male sex gland to boys who had not reached puberty, some of them developed blackheads, pimples, with and without pus formation. When the treatment with the sex hormone was stopped, the pimples became smaller and disappeared. When given again, the pimples returned.

This does not mean that this gland extract is the only factor entering into the cause of acne as diet, heredity, and infection may also be factors. However, despite other factors, the pimples appeared only when the sex hormone was given. "There seems to be something in this male hormone substance that stimulates the sebaceous or oil glands of the skin."

For this reason, Dr. Hamilton suggests that as there is some relation between the thyroid gland—the master gland of the body—and the sex glands, there is logical reason for the use of desiccated thyroid gland extract in cases of acne at the time of puberty. The thyroid extract checks any excess of oil pouring out from the oil glands on the skin and stimulates the skin cells to a more normal activity. The thyroid extract stimulates all the body processes and therefore the skin. Excellent results have been obtained by using vioaterol by mouth and also by the use of injections of pituitary extract. As with all extracts, this should be done under supervision of a physician.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Chewing gum and rubber tires have something in common. They both are the products of latex-bearing trees. The chicle latex, from which chewing gum is made, has a high resin and low rubber content. Rubber latex has the reverse characteristics. Chicle and Castillos rubber trees are found in much the same areas in Central America.

Synthetic rubber tractor tires have been under tests by B. F. Goodrich engineers for close to a year. When synthetic rubber becomes available in sufficient quantities, farmers may expect such tires on their tractors.

A Russian rubber-bearing plant is now being successfully grown in the United States. Its value in the American rubber program, however, is still undetermined.

Tire recapping has proved its wartime value. But the recapping should be done before the tire rubber of the tire is completely worn.

Make Large Use of Wood To Replace Vital Steel

The War Production Board has published a booklet on Trunk Use which gives some facts on the uses of wood in the war and which points out the importance of wood at this time. Some of the facts are:

Enough steel for 100,000 medium tanks is being saved through the use of wood as a substitute for critical materials.

More than a million and a quarter tons of paperboard will be used in 1943 to package food, supplies, and munitions for overseas shipment. This is the equivalent of 1,400,000 truckloads of pulpwood.

Each Liberty cargo ship takes 200,000 board feet of lumber. Use of wood saves 250 tons of steel in each ship.

Wood, more of it in America, makes up one-third of the weight of all British aircraft and goes into 31 different types of planes.

The war is planned on paper. Enough kraft paper sheets to go around completely the United States is made a head a year which would go around the world six times.

Instead of steel, Army mules now will be wearing horseshoes. Two and a quarter million are now in order, saving 42,000 tons of steel.

There are about 40,000 board feet of lumber in every C-62 "Commando" cargo plane.

An average New England spruce tree yields enough nitro cellulose to provide the powder for thirty-five 105 mm. shells or 7,500 Garand rifle cartridges.

Standard 2½-ton Army trucks now have all-wood bodies. 1,000 board feet in each.

Each deck of a big battleship takes 100,000 board feet of lumber — 10 carloads.

There is no doubt that these figures will make every Pocahontas county woodsman proud of his contribution to the war and the soldiers, sailors and marines can be sure that our woodsmen will do their best as individuals to keep the supplies rolling along.

One of the least-liked farm chores is all but eliminated as the result of the development by Prof. A. W. Kuhlick, of Iowa State College, of a new method which makes it possible for the rural homemaker to wash her separator in only two minutes—four minutes a day. The best separator cleaning method used up to now takes at least six times as long, to say nothing of the drudgery involved.

The new method makes use neither of soap nor washing powder. Instead, it utilizes a "wetting agent" compound of the variety that have become so popular recently with housewives for many kitchen and bathroom chores. The wetting agent compound—and there are any number on the market—not only radically cuts down the time required to clean the separator but also does a much better job of cleaning than has been achieved heretofore. The new washing procedure calls for no special equipment, and requires only one pail of warm water solution which is also used to wash the pails, cans and other dairy equipment.

...idents Since Pearl Harbor Take ...e Lives Than First World War

A strictly American killer, treacherous as the Japs, took twice as many lives in this country during the fateful "Pearl Harbor year" as were lost during the entire first World War. The saboteur, Accident, home front's greatest enemy, caused 102,500 deaths and 350,000 permanent disabilities during 1941. Of those killed, 18,500 were farmers. Among all occupations, farm field work headed the fatality list. Carelessness and thoughtlessness in minor matters were the chief contributory causes of casualties among farmers.

These are the facts on which farmer-born T. A. Erickson, who knows farms as Tiffany knew jewels, bases his new book, "Safety For the Farm and Home Front."

Erickson, "Dad", as he is known to thousands of Minnesota farm boys and girls, a pioneer in practical education for rural youth and for years a state 4-H Club leader of the University of Minnesota's Department of Agriculture, believes, "Less thought has been given to accident prevention in farming than in any other occupation."

In his "Safety for the Farm and Home Front", published by General Mills, Inc., where he is now Consultant in the Department of Public Services, "Dad" gives complete guides to be used by rural youth groups to help prevent accidents. Without a wasted word the famous club leader goes into every possible accident—from using a staff instead of trust to lead a bull, to boiling home canned meats before serving. Each article is designed as a basis for discussion among Rural Scouts, 4-H Clubs, Future Farmers of America, and other groups.

"Safety for the Farm and Home Front" is not one of those youth-repelling "do and don't" manuals. Written in a sprightly, easy-to-follow style, much of it is in the popular quiz form. Sometimes "Dad" waxes tolerantly satirical to drive home a point. For instance, to help people become safety minded he includes a homily he entitles simply,

HE FORGOT

"He brushed his teeth twice a day.
"The doctor examined him twice a year.
"He wore rubbers when it rained.
"He slept with the windows open.
"He stuck to a diet with plenty of fresh vegetables.
"He relinquished his tonsils and traded in several worn out glands.
"He golfed, but never more than 18 holes.
"He never smoked, drank, or lost his temper.
"He did his daily dozen daily.
"He got at least eight hours sleep every night.
"The funeral will be held next Wednesday.
"He had forgotten about trains at grade crossings."

Geological Survey Issues Ohio River Basin Report

The United States Geological Survey in cooperation with West Virginia and other eastern states, has released its report on the Ohio River Basin. This report is one of a series of fourteen on the "Surface Water of the United States," and should prove helpful to industries seeking suitable locations for plants requiring abundant water supply.

Made in cooperation with the West Virginia Geological Survey and Public Service Commission; and agencies of other States, the report consists of records of stage, and measurements of discharge of the Monongahela, Allegheny, Big Sandy and other tributaries of the Ohio. It also includes general information used to supplement the records of stage and discharge measurements in daily flow of these rivers.

The data have been collected and recorded at various gaging stations established at strategic places along the banks of the Ohio, its tributaries, and their tributaries. The kind of gage used at each station, the latitude and longitude of its location, and other information concerning conditions which cause the river to rise or fall, or flow swiftly or slowly are described.

This report coupled with the W. Va. Geological Survey's publication of H. M. Erskine's report on the "Surface Water Supply of West Virginia," should be valuable references for anyone faced with water supply and other hydraulic problems.

THE BIGGER THEY COME THE HARDER THEY FALL

A few weeks ago one of our town boys arrived home after lambasting the Japs in the Pacific. He wore the decorations given by his Government to heroes of the first water. We looked this chap over from top to bottom and from stem to stern. He exploded to old recipe: "Your here always should be a giant". He proved to us that gameness knows no size. For instance, a pumpkin is far bigger than a cockleburr, yet while the burr sticks until the last hoarfrosts, the pumpkin is ash-yellow. The American soldier has demonstrated to the world that boys reared under Old Glory know little or nothing about Warfare, still they can go into the jungles, mountains, deserts or air and whip the tar out of their enemies weasel and brought up on the royal rudiments of War.

BUT BONDS—WE MUST WIN THIS WAR

Three Navy Bombers Forced Down Here

A stir of excitement swept over Marlinton last Sunday evening when three large Curtiss-Wright Navy dive bombers encountered weather-hends and fog in the Pocahontas mountains and were brought to a forced landing on the Marlinton airport

According to various reports, the young aviators who were ferrying the bombers across this area, became lost in the difficult weather, and finally sighted Carl L. Sheets, Marlinton's flying mayor and business man, who was aloft in his private plane, and they followed him to the airport.

Hundreds of local citizens hurried to the landing field to view the fighting planes, quickly congesting the road and swarming over the field.

At the Journal's press time, the Navy pilots were still grounded here due to the soggy condition of the airport field following heavy rains. It was rumored that it might be possible the planes would have to be dismantled and trucked to the Elkins airport before they could continue the flight to their destination.

Report Survey For Army Encampment In County

Army officers purported to be contemplating the establishment of an Army center in Pocahontas county. The reports have stated that the officials were investigating, railway, hospital, land area, and other facilities for the accommodation of several thousand soldiers who would be given instruction in mountain warfare in this vicinity.

"Golden Horseshoe" Winners Are Announced

Winners in the county's West Virginia Club "Golden Horseshoe" contests were announced here this week as follows:

Max White, first; Joan Overholt, second; Darius Moore, third, all pupils of Miss Lucille Gibson's eighth grade at Marlinton graded school, and Mary Hunter of the Greenbrier Hill colored school.

The board which graded the contestants was composed of H. Arnout Yeager, principal of Marlinton high school, and Boyd Davis and Jack Richardson, high school teachers.

The examination pertains to the history and geography of the state.

It also was announced that winners will not go to Charleston for awards this year, as has been the custom, and that the trophies will be presented at the graduation exercises of the various schools.

Cooperative Asks Key Distributors Be Reclassified

A resolution, passed by the board of directors of Southern States Cooperative, requesting the classification of irreplaceable key men engaged in the distribution of farm production supplies into a deferred draft class "in order to avoid a complete breakdown in the furnishing of essential production supplies to farmers" has just been sent to War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt.

This resolution has also gone to Major-General Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service, and Chester C. Davis, Food Administrator, according to a statement made today by W. G. Wysor, Richmond, Va. general manager of the cooperative, an organization of 141,225 farmers in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Deleware, and North Carolina.

"The production of food and fibre is recognized as an essential element in the prosecution of the war, and the manufacture, processing, and distribution of farm production supplies is a vital prerequisite to such production," the resolution points out. "The key men involved in such distribution are not merely purveyors, but are in fact agricultural specialists and technical advisers to farmers, and must be possessed of special training, skill, and technical ability, to a degree which is not generally available, and which in fact makes such men irreplaceable under present circumstances."

The resolution takes cognizance to the fact that to some extent key men engaged in the manufacture and processing of food have been granted deferment, but the same consideration has not been extended to men in the field of the distribution of supplies.

Groups of key men engaged in the distribution of farm production supplies who are listed in the resolution as irreplaceable include those embracing district supervision, local managers in charge, and proprietors. The manufacture and processing of essential production supplies for farmers are "futile aids to production, unless supplemented by efficient distribution," the resolution declares. "A breakdown in any link of the chain of service in farm production supplies will seriously impede farm production."

Your Scrap Needed For Nation's Scrap

At a meeting of the County Salvage Committee last Friday evening, in charge of Z. S. Smith, Jr., chairman, plans were formulated to renew efforts in Pocahontas county to gather in the scrap which is so desperately needed in the nation's war program.

Guy R. Faulkner was asked to secure funds through donations to underwrite the project; Mrs. Grady Moore and Miss Margaret Irvine were appointed to compile a list of persons who will consent to donate their scrap; prospects are that Oley Jackson will be in charge of gathering, weighing and shipping the junk; and state road commission trucks are to be made available for hauling the donated material without cost.

Thus the way is pretty generally opened for every person in the county to respond in some way—by gift of money or scrap material—to the most vital need of our country today.

Copper, brass, tin, heavy iron and other junk will be put into the guns and ammunition which the soldiers need. Boy Scouts, in charge of Jack Richardson, will gather clean tin cans if they are notified of their existence.

Apparently the only thing lacking to make this 1943 scrap drive a huge success is the part which all citizens will be expected to take—and that is to take the program seriously, to donate scrap—and do it now!

Allies Tighten Tunisia Trap on Axis; Russ Offensive in Caucasus Menaces Germans' Bridgehead at Novorossisk; FDR Envisions Postwar Youth Service

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Adm. William F. Halsey, commander of the U. S. naval forces in the South Pacific (right) is shown as he conferred with Hon. Walter Nash, New Zealand minister to the U. S., following Nash's arrival at Allied headquarters recently. Nash visited Halsey during an inspection tour of Pacific islands in which New Zealand troops are active.

TUNISIA:
Smooth Teamwork

Irresistibly the Allied offensive in North Africa had rolled on toward Tunis and Bizerte.

Like well-co-ordinated teams the various commands performed their tasks. Principal objective of the British First army had been the Axis last mountain barrier before the plain of Tunis in the Medjez-El-Bab sector. Chief assignment of Lieutenant General Patton's American troops had been the overwhelming of three enemy hill positions on the road to Bizerte. And although the American forces ran into heavy counterblows in their enveloping tactics around Mateur and Tebourba, they had continued to drive ahead.

While these two strategic movements were being carried out as a prelude to a combined Allied assault, French troops in the south executed a maneuver that had cut the Pont-du-Fahs-Enfidaville road and exposed the flank of the Axis troops facing General Montgomery's Eighth army.

While the Germans faced the inevitable decision of final surrender or annihilation their commanders were using every possible device to slow down the Allied advance. Resistance against the British First army had stiffened sharply at the crest of Bou Aoukaz mountain, overlooking the valley to Tunis.

RUSSIA:
Battles in the Air

While Berlin reports announced that a large-scale Russian offensive had been undertaken against the Nazis' Kuban bridgehead in the Caucasus, Moscow communiques said that aerial fighting was the principal activity along the far-flung front.

This aerial activity had various significances on various sectors. In the Caucasus, the Russian strategy was to wear down Nazi air power and thus enhance the Red army's efforts at dislodging the Germans from their bridgehead around Novorossisk.

In east Prussia, Red aerial bombing assaults were directed at breaking up concentrations of German troops and supplies being prepared for Hitler's spring invasion.

REFUGEES:
U. S.-Britain to Aid

Plans to ease the plight of war refugees in areas outside of occupied Europe and to reject any measures that might involve bargaining with Germany were believed by observers to have been embodied in a set of recommendations agreed on by delegates to the Anglo-American conference on refugee problems, held in Hamilton, Bermuda.

Observers indicated that the conference's recommendations include the temporary relocation in Africa of 30,000 refugees now in neutral countries until the end of the war, as well as provisions for the feeding and care of refugees unable to leave neutral countries.

TRAINING:
For Postwar Youth

The idea that the youth of America, making use of industrial plants and military camps might well give a year's service to their government in the postwar era was advanced by President Roosevelt.

Declaring that his recent inspection trip of war activities had convinced him that the armed forces and the home front factories are in their stride, the President said he was wondering what could be done after victory is won, with camps and plants in which millions have been invested. While he had no specific program to offer, he emphasized the benefits in physical condition and mental alertness that men and women in service and war-worker uniforms had realized in the last few months. He indicated he thought their training should be extended to all young men and women in some form after we win the war.

Any program that might develop, he said, probably would be only partly military.

COAL SHOWDOWN:
FDR Moves Swiftly

Blunt had been President Roosevelt's warning to John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, to end the tie-up in the nation's soft coal fields.

The need for blunt action, however, had been clearly evident, for even at the moment the President had threatened to use his powers as commander in chief to prevent interference with the war effort, 75,000 miners already were on strike and a walkout of the entire 450,000 bituminous miners had been threatened.

Terming the miners' walkout as "strikes against the U. S. government itself" the President said that such action was clearly a violation of labor's "no-strike" pledge.

JOBS VS. PAY:
Essential Shifts OK

As the War Manpower commission extended its employment stabilization program to the entire nation, workers anywhere in the United States were permitted to shift from one essential job to another at higher pay, provided such transfers "enhance the war effort."

Previously such job shifts could take place only in 70 areas covered by the WMC's regional stabilization programs. The commission's action was taken after representatives of organized labor had protested that job transfers under the former regulations favored workers in the stabilization areas at the expense of workers in other regions.

Under the new plan, any worker in an essential industry may transfer to a higher-paying job in another essential industry if he obtains from his employer, from the U. S. employment service office in his area, or from his local WMC office, a "statement of availability" which declares that his transfer will benefit the war effort.

WITHHOLDING TAX:
Painless Extraction

Soothing words to taxpayers faced with rising federal levies were spoken by Chairman Doughton of the house ways and means committee who declared that the 20 per cent withholding provision of the pending pay-as-you-go tax bills "will not result in a single extra dollar being taken from the taxpayers' pocketbook."

"The proposed 20 per cent withholding is only a method of collecting currently all or part of the taxes imposed by the existing tax laws," he said.

Mr. Doughton said that from some persons will be withheld more than is needed to pay their taxes and from others, less. Refunds will be made later if too much has been withheld.

"All salary and wage earners will be called upon to file a regular income tax return on March 15," he said. "The amount which has been withheld from their wages will be credited against the actual tax owed."

RUSS-POLES:
Issue Is Territory

Territorial differences came to the fore as the principal issue at stake in the Polish-Soviet controversy, although the break in diplomatic relations had been caused by a demand of the Polish government-in-exile for an investigation of the alleged massacre by Russians of 10,000 Polish troops in the Smolensk region.

In a statement which neither opened nor closed the door to reconciliation, Premier Sikorski affirmed the Polish government's policy of aiming at friendly relations with Russia, but challenged the Soviet's right to claim the western Ukraine and western Belo-Russia.

The Poles demand a return of the eastern part of the territory they ruled before their 1939 collapse. The Russians who took this land over, and were in turn routed by the 1941 German invasion, say that the land is historically theirs.

Whether the controversy could be breached remained a problem for United Nations' chancellories to worry about.

ALEUTIANS:
RCAF Joins Raids

American airmen keeping up their marathon bombing tactics in the Aleutians were joined by Canadian pilots flying U. S. Warhawk fighters in attacks on Jap-held positions on Kiska.

Whether the bombings were a softening-up prelude to American land and naval action against the Aleutians or a diversion to hamper enemy activity observers did not know. But they were unanimous in their opinion that any assault on the Jap-held Aleutian positions would be considerably more difficult than had the American offensive against South Pacific Guadalcanal.

A naval communique said that the continuing raids, made by Liberator and Mitchell bombers and Warhawk and Lightning fighters scored damaging results on the main camp area and runway on Kiska.

MASSACRE:
Japs Ape Nazis

Employing the same terroristic technique that their Nazi partners had used in massacring the inhabitants of Lidice, Czechoslovakia, Jap troops slaughtered every man, woman and child in the coastal areas of China where many of Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's fliers had landed after the bombing of Tokyo.

This latest sequel to the Japs' execution of some of the American fliers captured after the raid was related by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, in an address in San Francisco.

Reports covering the Chinese "Lidice" were received from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, who declared that the Japs had reproduced on a wholesale scale the horrors which the Nazis had inflicted in Czechoslovakia.

BOOM:
Postwar View Bright

A potential era of "unparalleled prosperity" faces the United States as soon as the war ends, the department of commerce reported.

"The major potentials," the report said, "will be present the day after victory is won—employment on an unprecedently high level, the greatest productive plant of all time, national income at a peak hardly dreamed of in pre-war years, with a large accumulated savings and an unmeasured demand for goods denied to the consumer by the war's exactions."

One "big problem," the department asserted, is to prepare now to so manage these factors as to translate potentials into realities, adding that this is "primarily the job of private enterprise, aided and supported by government."

TEEN-AGE:
Workers Aid War

More than 3,000,000 boys and girls between 14 and 18 years of age will hold full or part-time jobs this summer, Katherine Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau of the department of labor, said.

Miss Lenroot urged local communities to protect the health of boys and girls of high school age who are combining school with part-time jobs, working through vacation, or entering full-time jobs.

HEAD INJURIES

For a number of years I treated all the injured athletic students of a large university. Fortunately, most of the injuries were cuts, bruises, dislocations and occasional fractures, with not infrequent head injuries causing unconsciousness. For many years also I treated all the injured amateur and professional boxers and wrestlers in which head injuries were not uncommon. While most cases of head concussion recovered consciousness in minutes and often seconds, I often wondered if I made them take sufficient rest before resuming athletic activities.

Dr. Barton

This whole question of how soon after a blow that has caused unconsciousness, the patient should resume his regular occupation, has been studied by Dr. H. Cairns: some of his findings are recorded in the Proceedings of the Royal Society of Medicine.

"In deciding when a patient should be fit to return to work, it is necessary to bear in mind the severity of his injury, and the best yardstick at present available is the length of time he was unconscious after the injury. The shortest time in which ability to carry out full work may be expected to return is as follows:

"If unconscious for five minutes to one hour—four to six weeks.

"If unconscious one to 24 hours—six to eight weeks.

"If unconscious one to seven days—two to four months.

"If unconscious over seven days—four to eight months.

"If patient was very tired when injured, more time should be given. The type of work must also be considered as a simple task may be resumed earlier than one which calls for much brain effort.

"Almost every patient who makes a full recovery from concussion suffers at a certain stage of his recovery from headaches. In mild cases headaches usually occur early and disappear, whereas in more severe cases headaches appear much later, in fact after patient is well enough to return home though not to work."

America Becoming Near-Sighted Nation

There was a time when a man or woman wearing glasses was thought to be a student or one who did a great deal of reading. Glasses were almost a badge of scholarship. It was a rare thing to see a child with glasses and many wearing glasses were doing so to correct a squint or crossed eye.

Within the last 20 years there has been a great increase in the number of men and women wearing glasses and glasses on school children no longer attract attention.

Most of us will likely attribute this increase in the number wearing glasses to the examination of the eyes of school children and to the education by departments of health of the importance of having the vision corrected in those afflicted with shortsightedness, longsightedness and astigmatism (objects not seen distinctly). The last war also taught the value of acquiring proper glasses as many men were rejected for poor eyesight.

However, we learn from the Better Vision institute in one of their monthly releases that America is becoming a nearsighted nation. Every 10 years the figures show that vision is becoming narrower and human eyes, which from the beginning of history had been adapted to far vision, have now their sharpest vision when fixed on near objects not very far from the end of the nose.

What is causing the population to become nearsighted?

Some research workers on the eye state that (a) living conditions today finds man looking at "near" objects instead of "far" or distant objects, and (b) nearsightedness seems to be handed down from parents to their children.

Today, education has become almost universal and children start to read at an early age. Occupations are indoors for the most part and modern living conditions require almost continuous close vision.

We should, therefore, be kind to our eyes, and if our eyes need help make sure that they get help, and the right kind of help.

U. S. Army Is 'On Alert' For Chemical Warfa

Many Developments in Gas Warfare Date F World War I; America Thought to Hav Greatest Potential Gas Offensive.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentato

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

Some days ago the British short wave radio, beamed on Germany, was telling the German people, who dared to listen to the forbidden words, that if their armies used gas against the Russians, the British would retaliate and paralyze the German cities with gas bombs from the air. Just about that same hour, I was entering the Army and Navy club in Washington with a short, vigorous, bright-eyed general, whose mental agility makes up for his lack of length. It was no coincidence. I was there to learn something more about chemical warfare and I knew of no better way than to pump Brig. Gen. Alden H. Waitt of the chemical warfare service and whose book "Gas Warfare" has sold out twice in Washington book stores.

There was, however, a coincidence connected with that visit, for as we walked into the great, crowded dining room of the club, Waitt paused to speak to a gray-haired man in civilian clothes with a ribbon in his buttonhole. I recognized a once-familiar figure—Amos Fries, first general of the chemical warfare service. He, of course, is retired now.

Soldiers stationed at Camp San Luis Obispo, Calif., outfitted with new type training gas masks.

I recalled that shortly after the First World war, the activities of General Fries got under some people's skins. He was a hyper-enthusiast over his specialty, and in the reaction against all things military which comes after a war, the cynics used to joke about the stenographer who transcribed her symbols so that a letter was sent addressed to the "comical" warfare service.

New Emphasis

But Fries persisted and managed to preserve his unit in a tight little independent group instead of having its activities scattered all over the other services. As far as the public goes, very little attention has been paid to this arm of our military offense and defense. It may, however, become very prominent before the war is over and some people say that day is "imminent."

If gas comes, the United States will be prepared for it. From an organization with 94 officers in the thirties, the chemical warfare service has grown until its officer personnel numbers "many thousand" (I can't reveal the figure) and many of them are with combat troops today where they are responsible for the use of smoke screens and for incendiaries—the fire bombs and the flame throwers.

I have witnessed demonstrations at the Edgewood arsenal near Baltimore, and although I cannot report the details, I can say that some of the effects were remarkable. You ought to see a steel tank or a concrete pillbox go up in flames when it is "lighted" by a flame thrower. It is unbelievable to watch.

There have been, of course, many developments in this little-discussed weapon of warfare since gas was first used in World War I by the Germans and used so successfully and yet so stupidly. The attack took the British and French colonial troops utterly by surprise and caused what amounted to a rout. If the Germans had had the sense to follow it up, they could have broken through the lines and reached Calais.

When armored knights met, it was customary for each knight to raise the visor of his helmet as a means of identification. This gesture has come down through all armies in the form of the salute. Traditional, too, is the Army man's preference for Camel cigarettes. With men in the Army, Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard, actual sales records in their service stores show that Camel is the favorite. It's one of the favorite gifts with service men. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

Hard to Stomach

The smallest member of the United States senate was Georgia's Alexander H. Stevens, later vice president of the Confederacy. He was less than five feet tall and weighed somewhat under 80 pounds.

One day an out-sized western congressman, stung into a fury by the barbed remarks of the little Georgian, shouted: "You! You! Why, I could swallow you and never know I'd et a thing!"

Replied Senator Stevens: "In that case you'd have more brains in your belly than you ever had in your head."

Fight the Forgery Racket!

By Frank J. Wilson
Chief, United States Secret Service

DO YOU receive checks from the United States government? If you do, then look out for the pen-and-paper pirate—the check forger!

Millions of government checks are sent to dependents of men in the army and navy of the United States. Millions of checks are sent to people who receive social security benefits. Whenever one of these checks is dropped in your mail box by your mail carrier, it presents an opportunity for a check thief to steal it. When that happens, it may be months before the government can send you another check to replace the one which was stolen.

The United States secret service, a branch of the treasury department, wants to put the check thief and the forger out of business. If you will help yourself, you will keep the crook from helping himself to your check.

Put a good lock on your mail box, if it does not already have one. A lock may prevent a loss. Have your name printed clearly on the box.

Youth Took Lesson to Heart With Feet Down!

"Charles," said the sharp-voiced woman to her husband on the train, "don't you remember it was a pair of slippers I presented to you the Christmas before we were married that led to our marriage? You remember how nicely they fitted, don't you? Well, Charles, one day when we were going to a picnic, you had your feet on a seat, and when you weren't looking I took your measure. But for that pair of slippers I don't believe we'd ever been married."

A young man sitting opposite with a girl, immediately removed his feet from the seat.

Exploiters Not Wanted

The mining industry of the United States is so gigantic that it dwarfs imagination. Production of a ton of steel requires two tons of coal. In 1942, it required the coking of 75,000,000 tons of coal to smelt 60,000,000 tons of pig iron. An output of 70,000,000 tons of pig iron and 97,000,000 tons of steel ingots is expected in 1943.

It takes 7 tons of copper for one minute of combat by 50 fighter planes ,and this means from 200 to 700 tons of copper ore. Other metals are used in proportions.

But coal is required to produce the heat to make most of them usable. It is the major source of energy in the United States. The railroads used $110,000,000 tons of coal in 1942; public utilities, 68,000,000 tons; and 135,000,000 tons went for necessary heating comfort.

There is no excuse for continuous labor warfare in our coal mines. Neither the public nor the majority of the employers want to exploit the coal miners. The vice that has caused wars for centuries, namely, the greed of a few leaders for unreasonable power, is causing trouble in our coal mines. The few who would exploit a government, a mine or a group of workers for selfish purposes, are the ones who cause the millions of ordinary citizens, including the miners themselves, unnecessary loss, grief and suffering.

It is time that dictatorship in either labor, industry, or government be ended.

Politics vs. The War

When Franklin D. Roosevelt submitted to the "forced draft" in 1940, it was freely forecast that should he be elected, he would again be a candidate for a fourth term.

Now that time has come. The drums are beginning to beat again to win the country to the belief that we have so far deteriorated as a people that there is but one among us qualified to rule. Twice, from the White House steps, New Dealers have told the country in recent weeks that it must be Roosevelt again.

This new campaign must bring two deep emotions into the breasts of Americans:

First, they will regret to see the President, with all of his responsibilities, bringing politics into the war for the next 18 months when victory on the foreign fields rather than at the polls is so important. They would choose to hear the President say that from now until January, 1945, he will devote his full time to winning the war and bringing our boys back home with the least loss of life; and then, with victory won or nearly won he would retire to his own fireside, turning the White House over to the free choice of a free people.

The other emotion must be one of determination to repel the efforts of the President and the New Deal bureaucrats to perpetuate themselves in office. Americans will look at the confusion of Washington, the mangled fund situation, the three million of bureaucrats wasting the substance of the nation and interfering with production on the farms and in factories. They will realize that four more years of Roosevelt means four more years of Hopkins, of Henderson, of Wallace—of Frankfurter slinging from the Supreme Court bench to play politics. They will fix the blame where the blame belongs.

All In The Same Boat

The buyers of merchandise today have no conception of what the store keeper has to grapple with in order to supply their needs. Take the case of a typical country store. The people for miles around depend on that store for their daily necessities. The storekeeper works throughout the day, and then additional hours into the night keeping track of ration stamps, and endless rules and regulations. Almost every move he makes is under threat of fine or jail sentence for a mistake. Thousands of stores are actually going out of business to the real hardship of any communities, simply because the operators cannot stand the strain involved.

Chairman Patman of the House committee on small business, has ordered an investigation into all phases of the issuance of orders and regulations by the OPA. He says: "Conditions are forced upon retailers and wholesalers which do not comply with the provisions of the Emergency Price Control Act."

It is to be sincerely hoped that every effort will be made to lighten or simplify the present complications surrounding retailing—not for the retailers alone, but for the consumer, who is the worst sufferer as thousands of necessary stores are forced out of business due to sheer physical inability to meet the complications of operation.

Memo To Farmers

Some of us can remember when the Department of Agriculture was dedicated to serving the farmer—not destroying him.

And, remembering, it is difficult to believe the concoctions the economic play-boys of the Department today can put together to plague the farmer.

We are indebted to the Washington Times-Herald for turning up this latest plan to re-make America:

"It seems the Bureau of Agricultural Economic wants to make 20 per cent of the rural population of the United States move to cities after the war, whether the ruralites like it or not.

"F. F. Elliot, chief agricultural economist of the department says the plan to cut post-war rural population to 80 per cent of its present level is in the projected revamping of American economy and possibly that of the entire world.

"The outline fits snugly with recurrent reports that the planners have in mind creation of a hugely industrialized United States with Latin America supplying the food."

Elliott tentatively suggests that farm production be maintained "at such levels and in such patterns as to permit adequate diets adapted to the economic resources and food habits of the different income groups.

The blue-print he is drawing up would include an organized market system, controlled presumably by the Government, with fixed prices for the farmer, the marketman, and the consumer.

We hope, of course, our farmer friends will not hear of Dr. Elliott and his plans to move them to the city.

DR. R. B. PURDUM, ACTING PRESIDENT

You'll have touring fever.

Will you have a car?

Even the wizard auto industry can't switch from arms to autos overnight. After the Axis cracks, much time will pass before designers, engine builders, plastic-makers, accessory plants, glassworks, and the great assembly lines can again bring you a better new car.

Probably you're pining to win yourself peace by setting out as soon as you can for Grand Canyon, perhaps —or for Bigtown or the Coast—or for the old folks whom you haven't seen since rationing started. The car that will be ready first—50 chances to 1—is your all-essential present car, encouraged to last its limit by Conoco Nth motor oil . . . oil that OIL-PLATES! . . . oil that's the foe of engine acids!

War didn't first bring these acids. Ordinary engine combustion has always bottled acids inside, as your engine stopped. When stops were brief and your engine heated up fully on long runs, the acids were not so harmful. But now limited speed, comparative coolness and long lay-ups invite acids to bite hard and corrode metals.

Corrosive air and water, you know, are checked by chromium-plating. And corrosive engine acids are checked by OIL-PLATING, closely deposited on inner parts by patented Conoco Nth oil, with its added modern synthetic inducing a sort of "magnetism." This can long maintain OIL-PLATING on surfaces that you want shielded from acids and depreciation. Don't wait... OIL-PLATE! Get Nth oil at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. The Seneca Hustlers 4-H Club held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Anna Davisson, May 6.

We sang Mother's Day songs and discussed the progress of our projects and getting them up to date. We had several readings about mother.

Our club got a great surprise when we received $20.00 won by four different members of the club from the Regional Fair. Which was greatly appreciated. Our members are going to work harder than ever, not only for their own reward but toward helping to raise food to help win the war.

Refreshments were served by Anna Davisson.

We were very glad for the much needed rain last Saturday although it stopped several corn planters.

The people of this neighborhood attended the funeral of William Grimes at Mt. Zion last Friday.

Miss Mabel McLaughlin is staying with Mrs. Odie Gay at this writing.

MILDRED M. CRAMBLET VISITS HUNTERSVILLE EASTERN STAR LODGE

On Wednesday evening, May 12, Huntersville Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, was honored with a visit from the Worthy Grand Matron of the Grand Jurisdiction of West Virginia.

Following the inspection of the work of the Chapter by Mrs. Cramblet, a well planned program was enjoyed by the members and visitors from nearby Chapters.

Two presentation ceremonies were used. These had been worked out in poetry by the Worthy Matron, Mrs. C. A. McMillion, and were appropriate in every way for the special occasion of their use.

Mrs. Aubrey Ferguson of Marlinton, sang a solo, accompanied by Mrs. Gordon Mark. Mrs. McMillion gave a reading "Roofs", by Joyce Kilmer. She then invited a number of her officers to assist her in a ceremony in which she presented a gift of money to her Chapter. The check was housed in a miniature temple. This gift enabled the Huntersville Chapter to become 100 per cent paid up in its Temple Fund. The gift was not exposed until it reached the treasurer's desk. S. I. Barlow, Worthy Patron, made the remarks of appreciation for the Chapter and Mrs. McMillion responded with a short poetic composition.

The members and visitors then joined together in singing "Old Kentucky Home", following which Miss Helen Barlow approached the Grand Officer, and read a poem which was composed especially for Mrs. Cramblet. She also presented the guest a miniature log cabin which was symbolic of the picture of Abraham Lincoln on the five-dollar bill inside the cabin. This was a gift to the Grand Visitor from the Chapter.

Immediately following the closing ceremony, bridge tables were set up and a period of recreation was enjoyed. Pencil-paper contests were indulged in and prizes were awarded to the winners.

A delicious salad course was served.

To Our Savings Depositors:

Due to a great reduction in our loans and the decrease in demand for sound loans and the very low yield in Government and other high grade bonds of reasonable maturity, which make desirable bank investments, we have found it necessary to reduce the interest rate on savings deposits to one and one-half (1½%) per cent per annum, effective on JUNE 1, 1943. Our action is in conformity with sound banking practice.

We regret that conditions over which we have no control make necessary this change. The business which you have entrusted to us through the past forty-four years is appreciated, and we invite you to continue to make use of our facilities for all your banking requirements.

THE STORY SO FAR: The story of their part in the battle for the Philippines is being told by four of the five naval officers who are all that is left of Motor Torpedo Boat Squadron 3. They are Lieut. John Bulkeley (now Lieutenant Commander), squadron commander; Lieut. R. B. Kelly, second-in-command; and Ensigns Anthony Akers and George E. Cox Jr. After Pearl Harbor, Lieut. Bulkeley orders Lieut. Kelly to take three of the boats to Bataan, where they set up headquarters. Kelly has a badly gashed finger, but doesn't dare take time to go to the hospital, as things are moving fast. During the first big air raid the PT boats shot down three Jap dive bombers. Kelly is speaking.

CHAPTER III

"When Bulkeley got back he took one look at me and ordered me to the hospital at Corregidor. But when we got there they told us that beautiful big modern one-thousand-bed hospital had been abandoned. There it was, I don't know how much it had cost, as useless to us as a Buddhist monastery. The patients had all been moved down into one hundred beds in one of the tunnels in the Rock. I wasn't so delirious that I couldn't figure out why. Because with no aircraft or anti-aircraft protection, that big expensive topside hospital was just an unprotected target.

"The next I remember was down in the tunnel in the army hospital under Corregidor, the army doctor asking me what treatment I'd had as he cut the shirt off my back—it wouldn't come off over my hand any more.

"But the thing that impressed me most—even then—was the army nurses. There were fourteen of them on the Rock, and remember, I hadn't talked to a white woman since we sailed from the States. Heretofore, I hadn't paid much attention to women, but somehow the war and everything made a big difference.

"Or maybe it was Peggy herself, because she was a very cute kid. A brunette about medium height and very trim, but mostly it was her green eyes, I guess, and a cute way she had of telling you very firmly what you had to do, so that you grinned, but just the same you did it. She started right in bossing me around while she helped cut off my shirt.

"The whole army was listening in," said Bulkeley. "Don Bell, that Manila radio announcer who they say was shot by the Japs the first day they entered the city, was always encouraging. And even more so was KGEI from the American west coast, telling us we wouldn't be forgotten, that the people knew we were putting up a magnificent fight."

"It came at eleven at night," Bulkeley went on. "I had my three boats out there by 11:30. Funny thing, that old ship had been an aircraft carrier in the battle of Jutland—first boat ever to launch a plane in actual battle. She survives the whole German Imperial fleet and more than twenty years later ends up on an American mine halfway round the world.

"When we got there, survivors were so thick we didn't have to zigzag to pick them up—just went straight ahead and we got all we could handle, although there were cries coming out of the darkness all around. Finally our shoulders got so weak pulling them up the sea ladder that we couldn't lift them. So we'd throw lines out into the dark—it was like casting for trout—and haul them back with a dozen people hanging on. We'd just pull them on in—scraping off a few ears, and now and then a nose and plenty of skin, on the side of our boat—but they were drowning every minute and it was the only way. Our boat managed to rescue as many as 196. Had 'em lying and standing every place.

"But the queerest thing came at the end. The cries out in the darkness had almost stopped, and we were cruising for the crumbs when suddenly, out over the water, I heard someone whistling a tune! I couldn't believe it. But we changed course, and presently came alongside an aviator. He'd been blown way out there along with three life balls. He'd put one of them under his feet, another under his head like a pillow, and the third under his behind. Had his hands comfortably folded on his stomach. He thanked us, said he couldn't swim, so he'd been whistling that to kill time until someone came along. Asked if there was anything he could do. That guy had pretty guts.

"One of the survivors died before we could land them—exposure and burns.

"They began bringing them into our hospital before dawn," said Kelly. "One of them was a flight-line boy who'd been second engineer. He'd been burned all over except where his shirt had been, and he screamed horribly when they removed his burns. They'd put him in the end wards, but we could hear him all the night. Ask me every day to get his picture and send. Well, that night's not dead, so they moved him there. It built up and up to such a point where they had to have him for morphine, but he finally commanded the doctor to let him be for the last of the night.

"Meanwhile planes had been getting over the coastal defenses to the south, and we could hear the bombs from the direction of Cavite. Then, about 4:30, the Japs started in on us. Nine bombers in three flights of three each. They came in low, and we could see the bombs coming out of the planes. Then we could hear the whistle as they came down, and then the explosion. Then the next flight. Then the next. Then they started over again. Nine more flights. Then they started in with machine guns. Then they left.

"Then the fighters came in. Three of them. They were Zeros, and they were the first we had seen. They were beautiful. They came in low, and we could see the pilots in the cockpits. They were grinning. They shot up the hospital, and they shot up the docks, and they shot up the boats. They shot up everything. Then they left.

"Then the dive bombers came in. Nine of them. They came in high, and peeled off one by one, and we could see the bombs coming out of the bellies

For three days, or rather nights, the cinema attendant had gone about her work gloomily. Then suddenly her companions were surprised to see her smiling cheerfully.

"What's happened?" they asked in surprise.

Tulip-Shaped Tomatoes Are Welcome for Luncheon
(See Recipes Below)

Spring Luncheon

Rationing doesn't mean that you have to give up entertaining entirely. True, you may be serving dishes you've never served before, but if you've tucked your thinking cap at the right angle, you'll find many things with company manners which won't take too many ration points.

Be clever with your knives in shaping fruits and vegetables into attractive shapes and sizes for your guests, and use bright colors for garnishes and table accessories. Add a good portion of your own charm to make your guests feel at ease, and Madame, your entertaining will be a success!

Tulip-like tomatoes are a picture on any spring luncheon table.

Tulip Tomatoes Filled With Shrimp.
(Serves 6)

- 6 tomatoes
- 1 cup finely diced celery
- 2 cups canned shrimp
- ¼ cup french dressing
- ½ cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- Dash of cayenne pepper

Cut tomatoes in sixths with sharp knife, cutting through outside of tomatoes, and just enough so that each section can be pulled back to form a petal. Marinate shrimp in french dressing for ½ hour. Drain, then combine with celery, mayonnaise, lemon juice and cayenne pepper. Chill. Sprinkle inside of tomatoes with salt, then fill with shrimp mixture. Garnish with whole shrimp.

Smart idea for salad plates is to include a small scoop of two or three different kinds of salad to make a picture plate. Here are two splendid ideas:

Lemon Sunshine Salad.
(Serves 6)

- 1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice or diluted vinegar
- 1 cup cold water
- 1 cup finely shredded cabbage
- ½ cup finely grated raw carrot
- 1 tablespoon minced onion

Dissolve lemon-flavored gelatin in boiling water. Add salt and lemon juice or diluted vinegar and cold water. Chill until mixture begins to thicken, then add remaining ingredients. Do not shred vegetables until just before using or a large loss of vitamins will result.

Pineapple-Cottage Cheese Salad.
(Serves 6)

- ¾ cup cottage cheese
- ¼ cup nuts, chopped
- 1 tablespoon pineapple juice
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 6 slices pineapple, fresh or canned
- Green or red pepper
- Lettuce
- ¾ cup salad dressing

Combine cottage cheese, pineapple juice and sugar. Add salt to taste. Place a mound of cheese on top of each slice of pineapple, then garnish with diamond shapes from green and red pepper. Serve on crisp lettuce with dressing.

A dark brown bread, fruity and tasty is excellent to serve with salad luncheons. If your salad does not include cheese, serve its fragrant slices spread thinly with cream cheese and jam or make dainty little sandwiches with butter spread thinly, add a bit of lettuce for crispness.

Baked Brown Bread.
(Makes 1 14x9x2-inch loaf)

- 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2½ teaspoons soda
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 cups graham or whole wheat flour
- ½ cup shortening
- 1 cup seedless raisins
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 2 cups sour milk
- ½ cup molasses

Sift flour, salt, soda and sugar together. Add graham or whole wheat flour, mix well. Cut in shortening until mixture is like meal. Add raisins and mix. Beat eggs, add sour milk and molasses. Add dry ingredients and blend together thoroughly. Pour batter into a well-greased pan. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven.

A lot of good quality protein, vitamins and minerals come in that neat little package, the egg! Right now you'll be finding they're plentiful, so make good use of them:

Eggs Creole.
(Serves 4)

- 2½ cups tomatoes
- 1 small onion, chopped fine
- ½ green pepper, chopped
- 1 teaspoon green pepper
- ¾ cup fine bread crumbs
- ½ cup celery
- 4 eggs
- ¼ cup grated American cheese
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 bay leaf

Cook tomatoes, pepper, onion, celery and seasonings together with bay leaf for 10 minutes. Strain, add bread crumbs. Place sauce in individual casserole dishes. Break eggs on top and sprinkle with salt, pepper and grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven until eggs have set and cheese is melted.

Oatmeal puts plenty of vitamin B, into diets and keeps you stepping with pep and energy the day long. Try these delicious cookies:

Honey Oatmeal Hermits.

- 1½ cups honey
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup lard or other fat
- ½ cup warm water
- 2 cups quick-cooking oatmeal
- 3 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup raisins or chopped dates

Cream honey and fat until smooth and creamy. Add well beaten eggs and oatmeal. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with warm water, saving only a small amount of flour to dredge raisins or dates. Blend in fruit and mix thoroughly. Drop by spoonfuls, 3 inches apart on a greased baking sheet. Bake 15 minutes in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 15 minutes.

Lynn Says:

Nice to Know: Waxed paper wrappers from bread are good for wiping the top of the lid top range.

Use grapefruit shells for serving fruit or seafood cocktail if you don't have enough dishes.

Iron rust may be quickly removed from white clothes if you squeeze lemon juice on the spot, sprinkle salt over it and place it in the sun. Repeat if the first application does not work.

Use warm water instead of cold for mixing flour for gravy. The use of a rotary egg beater helps smooth out lumps if they should occur.

You'll save time if you have an extra set of measuring spoons in the coffee container, and to keep a measuring cup to each container of flour, oatmeal and sugar. It saves time and encourages accuracy in measurements.

JUST FOR LAUGHS

So Consistent!

"Does your husband always live up to his promise of his courtship days?"

"Always. In those days he said he was not good enough for me, and he has been proving it ever since."

Compensating

Doctor (after examining patient): "I don't like the looks of your husband, Mrs. Brown."

Mrs. Brown: "Neither do I, Doctor, but he's good to our children."

Or Did They?

"The law of gravity explains why people stay on the earth."

"How did they stay on before the law was passed?"

Middle-Age — When a man ceases to grow vertically and starts to grow horizontally—at the middle.

Quite Doubtful

"What is political economy, dad?"

"To be perfectly candid, son I can't tell you. Sometimes I think there isn't any such thing."

Relapse Coming

Young man in hospital—Nurse, I've fallen in love with you. If I get well I'll have to leave, so I don't want to get well.

Pretty young nurse—Don't worry, you won't. The doctor's in love with me, too, and he saw you kissing me this morning.

Fair Question

"I say, waiter, is this peach or apple pie?"

"Can't you tell by the taste?"

"No."

"Then what difference does it make?"

500 POUNDS OF CANDLES!

YOU: What on earth for? What would I do with all those candles?

Why, they'd light your home for a month.

YOU: Light my home? But I've got electricity!

Yes, but if you didn't have it, you'd need about a quarter-ton of candles to do the same job.

It's a lot of money, too. It would cost you about $200.

YOU: Wow! I couldn't afford that. My monthly electric bill now is only three dollars or so.

Well, that's just about average. But remember that only about 5% of it goes for light. The rest runs your radio and refrigerator—

YOU: Say, electricity's pretty cheap when you come to think of it.

Yes, sir! Cheaper than it's ever been. You're getting about twice as much electricity for your money today as you got fifteen years ago.

YOU: How can that be? My bill hasn't changed.

But think of the appliances you've added. Fifteen years ago, did you have an electric refrigerator?

YOU: N-no.

Radio? Electric mixer? Electric clock?

YOU: No. . . . Say, how come I'm getting more electricity now?

That's easy. Experience—efficiency—sound business methods—

YOU: I don't get it.

It's simple. The electric companies under business management know their job. That job is to give you the best possible service at the lowest possible price. And they're doing it! Today—with many other prices going up—ELECTRICITY IS STILL CHEAP!

Crowd Thrilled As Navy Bomber Pilots Take Off Here

In an atmosphere of general excitment, finis was written to a nine-day chapter in the lives of three young Navy aviators who were forced down at the Marlinton airport Sunday a week ago.

Becoming lost, and encumbered by "weatherheads," the Navy fliers landed here, and were then prevented from leaving by heavy rains which left the airport in a boggy condition.

With recent nice weather putting the field in fair shape, the job of preparing for their departure was completed Monday when the airport was rolled with equipment belonging to the State Road Commission.

As word was passed around Tuesday that the ferry pilots were expecting to put their huge Curtiss-Wright dive bombers back into the air, a small group went to the local landing field about 10:30 a. m. Still apprehensive about the possibility of a take-off, the fliers debated about the condition and length of the airport. Finally deciding upon 2 o'clock for the venture, preparations were made to that effect. In the meantime the crowd of watchers grew to more than 150 persons. Business places in Marlinton locked their doors and owners and workers went to the field to see the departure of the unexpected visitors.

At 2 o'clock, the pilots began to warm up the huge engines, and some delay was met when one of them failed to start, and required cranking. Taxiing to the far end of the field, one of the pilots got off the rolled part of the runway and became mired in a swampy place. Nearly two hours were spent in bringing the bomber out of the mire, necessitating use of the roller, and a school bus as towing power. Then came another period of cranking the stubborn engine which wore out the energy of a number of volunteers before the blade began to turn under its own power. Many persons left in disappointment, certain that the pilots were doomed to a more extended stay in Marlinton.

Shortly after 4 p. m. however, all planes were on solid ground and the giant propellers were making a terrific din. The crowd became tense as the three pilots ascended to their control seats and adjusted parachutes and other paraphernalia.

The pilots, too, had expressed their feeling of nervousness concerning the possibility of forcing the planes up to the required speed of 90 knots which was necessary for a take off for the 7-ton planes, on the grass-covered 2,000-foot runway of the strange field.

First to make the attempt was Flight Leader Lane, and cries of "He's going to make it!" arose as his plane sped down the runway. Lane used all the ground available, rising at the end of the field and veering down into the valley toward the town. His flight was followed immediately by Pilot Wolfelt, who thrilled the bystanders to a high pitch when, taking advantage of a favorable gust of wind, he "gave her the gun" and coaxed into the air, using only about half the available ground space. He attained a high altitude quickly. In a cloud of dust the third aviator, Pilot Pete Wilson, began his dash down the field. It was evident that his plane was not showing the speed of the preceding ones, and onlookers had that "heart-in-your-throat" feeling as they watched him take the air giant down the runway. The bomber did not leave the ground until practically the entire field had been traversed, and missed the low power lines at the end of the field by what seemed a scant margin.

Those who gathered to watch the departure felt that their sigh of relief must be shared by the airmen as the camouflaged "bombshells for Hitler and Hirohito" soared into the bright blue sky.

That they appreciated the enthusiasm of the townspeople was expressed by the Navy men, as each returned after waving salutations to some twice across the heads of the watchers and at terrific speed. But as the conclusion of the brief air show, Flight Leader Lane assured the guest of an aerial formation and the big planes became specks against the clouds, and finally disappeared in the general direction of Bluefield.

Four companies of Westvirginians and other valley citizens marked the duty of the young Navy fliers. Arrangements considered every angle in the chance to watch the take-off. Everybody of interest who "signed in" at the airport remained overnight, ready here in the landing spotlight.

But no one was heard to say that the visit was not worth it!

U. College of Engineering Accelerates Program

The West Virginia University College of Engineering has just announced an accelerated program in which the beginning date of September 13, 1943, has been advanced to May 31, 1943. For the duration of the war three semesters of work will be given during each calendar year instead of two as hitherto given.

Under the new plan students entering the first of June will complete the regular four-year course of eight semesters by February, 1946, thus saving nearly a year and a half of time. This saving is made possible by utilizing three summers that ordinarily are vacation periods. A full semester of work will be given in a summer period.

The work under the new set-up will be practically the same as hitherto given except that the shop and field courses usually given for five weeks in the summer following the freshman or sophomore year will be omitted.

Dean R. P. Davis of the College of Engineering urges all high school graduates who are planning to enter the College of Engineering this fall to enroll on May 31 to start their freshman first semester's work. However freshman students will be admitted in the fall, but some difficulties may be encountered in arranging schedules, due to the fact that some first semester courses may not be repeated the second semester.

SCHOOL GIRL DOES HER BIT

BRAWLEY, CALIF. — Hastings Sloan, a dairy farmer near here, has found one answer to the manpower shortage on the farm. His twenty young daughter, Mary Jo Sloan, will soon be high school graduate now and the rest of the year she devotes to helping her father with their 50 cow dairy herd. One of her duties is to spend a morning milking. So far all looks like she has assumed a man who will carry each to another farm where she help is needed most.

T. D. Gray Returns To Extension Service Staff

T. D. Gray, former Extension landscape architect of West Virginia University, and for the last two years Director of Conservation for West Virginia, has returned to the University as Extension horticulturist in vegetable gardening, it has been announced by J. O. Knapp, director of the Extension Service.

In his new position, Gray will work closely with the state's Victory Garden program, seeking to encourage West Virginia's estimated 200,000 Victory gardeners to follow through on their plans to produce much of their wartime food needs and to properly store, can, and preserve the surplus for next winter.

He will work with county agricultural agents and Extension Service representatives throughout the state in coordinating various phases of the Victory Garden program and will cooperate with the various county Victory Garden chairmen in carrying the individual county plans to completion.

The Extension landscape program, which has not been carried on since Gray took the post of state director of conservation, will be held in abeyance until the end of the war, Mr. Knapp said.

Announcement was made here this week that the week of August 23-28 has been chosen as the dates for the 1943 Pocahontas County Fair.

Zed Smith In Action In New Guinea Area

(From Charleston Daily Mail)

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia (UP)—The New Guinea campaign broadened today into a land-air battle with both the Allies and the Japanese throwing strong aerial punches in the fight for the Mub-o Calamaua area.

In an effort to cripple Japanese air strength, three flights of Allied planes attacked the enemy airdrome at Lae, key base on Huon gulf above Samamaua, a communique reported.

The attacks occurred Saturday, coincident with heavy raids by almost 100 enemy planes on Allied positions at Wau and Bobdubi.

Heavy planes, meanwhile, blasted at Rabaul, New Britain, airdrome and single planes bombed Gasmata, and Cape Gloucester, both on New Britain, and Kavieng, New Ireland, all of which have airbases from which New Guinea can be reached.

The communique did not mention the ground fighting. Last reports indicated the battle—involving small units of both sides in the toughest kind of jungle country—was bitter.

Zed Smith, of Marlinton, W. Va., has made five missions since he got here a week ago—in one of which his gunner, Tech. Sgt. William Marshall, of Los Angeles, shot down a Zero.

Uncle "Pud" Tucker — Says —

By HOY McCUSKEY

MAKE HIM SAY "UNCLE!"

"Perhaps you don't know me," as Eve coyly remarked to Adam, so I'm going to take advantage of good nature and introduce myself. I'm Pud Tucker, a sidewalk General of the home town Marines. Since a million or less other S. W. Generals have told the dear public how and where this war would end, I'm going to risk my number seventeen stamp on the following:

"THIS WAR WILL BE WON ON OUR OWN AMERICAN SOIL!"

The war we're pointin' right now and the punch it will take for the last knockdown, will come from the civilians of the U. S. A.—if we'll only hold out. So stuff as many hard hittin' Victory Bonds as you can into your gloves and start swingin'. Adolf's knees are waggin'.

IT Impresses ME

THAT a good start for this week's Impressions would be an account of the journey of this editor, in company with my friends Cal Price and Harper Smith, to the beautiful environs of Watoga State Park, to hobnob for an evening with visiting celebrities to our inviting county . . . On the generous invitation of "Si" Wills, member of the Conservation Commission staff, we were privileged to meet the renowned Grantland Rice, the nation's ace sports writer and film-master of the "Sportlight," viewed on screens throughout the country; Bobby Cruickshank, famous Scottish golf professional, who shepherds the flock of beginners and others at the Country Club of Virginia, down at Richmond, between matches with other top-notchers for national honors; and Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker Magazine, who with Mrs. Ross and the others were guests of I. A. Cohen, head of a squad of Merchant Police in Charleston . . . That the group had imbibed of the spirit of freedom which is an attribute of our mountain territory, there could be no doubt . . . No one was standing on ceremony of any sort, and the members of our little group were greeted as though we were all friends of long standing . . . Cal Price and "Grantie" spent most of the evening with arms around each other's shoulders in the true spirit of communion which probably exists when one dignitary meets another . . . and the long reel of colored motion picture film which Host Cohen was shooting on the trip will, (if it isn't cut), show the outstanding reporter in company with a couple of country editors and a member of the banking profession, which is probably questionable company to have foisted upon one when there's no place to take to except the hills, and when one is a bit too tired to climb . . . Unfortunately, most of the big trout in our streams seemed to elude the wiles of these outsiders, although there was a report current that they had caught a few, and that Rice had a 26-incher which he was going to present to Governor Neely the next day . . . but I must be truthful enough to say that I didn't see it . . . Ross' run of luck is said to have been such that he stomped into a state of unfitness a new rod with which he was casting when others around him drew in their catches, and none of the lowly fish responded to his willing advances . . . Cruikshank was an amazing example of ceaseless energy and vitality; he came in from the day's trek with all the activity of a speck of dust in a windstorm, giving action readings of amorous Scottish shepherds, singing about a "Bonnie Lassie," and quoting Bobby Burns' untranslatable poetry in a Scotch brogue which was also un-understandable . . . All in all, I think that our party was extremely glad of the invitation to visit with the notables and the several likable representatives of the Commission . . . we shall undoubtedly remember it for a long time to come . . . And I feel safe in predicting that, even if the notables do not remember us, they too will remember their visit to beautiful Watoga in the mountains of Pocahontas . . . Rice, because it was here that he suffered the affliction of getting a gnat in his eye . . . Cruikshank, because of a certain "difficult situation" which was imposed upon him . . . Ross, because he had to wait so long for his supper . . . Cohen, because it gave him another opportunity to bring big-name people into the state . . . and the Commission . . . and the long reel of colored motion picture film which Host Cohen was shooting on the trip will, (if it isn't cut), show the outstanding reporter in company with a couple of country editors and a member of the banking profession, which is probably questionable company to have foisted upon one when there's no place to take to except the hills, and when one is a bit too tired to climb . . . ★

THAT the small-world item in connection with the above incident was the discovery that this editor, in his varied past, had once worked for the same "boss" for whom Grantland Rice and Harold Ross had once worked (though Ross says the "boss" fired Rice) . . . a rather excitable and pugnacious individual named Guy T. Viskniski . . . who, when we knew him, certainly kept things in a hum, and who, when he couldn't go himself would send a dynamic note signed "G. T. V." . . . And another thing, is that the dinner which was served to all the guests by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Tucker was the kind which comes under the headings of both "delicious" and "refreshing" . . . and we think they handled the whole affair in a rather grand style . . .

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allied Generalship, Planes and Guns Decisive Factor in Tunisia Windup; Farm Situation Improves, Davis Says; Red Drive Perils Nazi Caucasus Hold

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

TUNISIA:
Master Generalship

Axis resistance in Tunisia had steadily crumbled as the Allied armies moved inexorably toward their goals. As American artillery pounded the Bizerte harbor area setting fire to wharves and docking facilities, the British First army had swept over the Tunisian plains leading to the capital city of Tunis.

The moves on Bizerte had been expedited by the capture by American and French forces of hilly strongholds protecting Lake Achkel and Lake Bizerte. In mopping up operations in the Mediterranean coastal region the Allies had continued to capture numerous prisoners.

In analyzing the results of the successful offensive, observers credited master Allied generalship with outmaneuvering the Axis. The Allied high command had led the enemy to believe that the principal blows would be struck by General Montgomery's British Eighth army from the south. After the Axis had thrown heavy strength to repel Montgomery, American forces in the Bizerte area and British First army forces before Tunis had struck crushing blows simultaneously.

Europe Drive 'Sure'

As the North African climax had approached, Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, had declared there is "no question but that there will be Allied operations on continental Europe this summer." Expressing his confidence that the Allies would clean up Tunisia in time to permit invasion of the continent this year, Davis added that it might possibly be necessary to leave a pocket of Axis resistance at Bizerte to be reduced by sustained pounding even while continental operations were under way. Following the death of Lt. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers was named U. S. European commander.

STRIKE BAN:
More Power for WLB

Congress moved swiftly to strengthen the government's hand in dealing with strikes.

First step was the senate's overwhelming enactment of legislation empowering the government to take over plants in which war production is stopped by labor disputes and making it a crime to instigate a strike in war plants or mines which have been taken over by the government.

The senate measure was a much-amended version of a bill by Senator Connally of Texas to give congressional sanction for government seizure of struck plants and mines. Originally introduced months before, it had lain dormant until John L. Lewis refused to submit the soft coal wage dispute to the War Labor board and the miners' work stoppage resulted. The final version contained a clause giving the WLB legal power to seize and settle labor disputes.

As the bill went to the house, it provided maximum penalties of one year's imprisonment or $5,000 fine upon anyone guilty of inducing a strike or slowdown in a government-operated plant.

RUSSIA:
Nazi Setbacks

Hammering at the northeast approaches to Nazi-held Novorossisk, Russian forces had captured numerous towns, including Krymskaya and killed 10,000 German troops in a smash through the Kuban delta bulge of the Caucasus toward the Black sea.

Although the Axis forces were weakened by the break-through, Hitler had been preparing for weeks for action by bringing up fresh troops, tanks and munitions.

The capture of Krymskaya had two strategic benefits. It placed the Red army in a position to seriously menace Novorossisk and it enabled the Russians to cut the German-held railroad between Novorossisk and Protoka, 36 miles northeast of the port.

Significant was a Soviet report announcing the presence of powerful Russ naval units in the Black sea, led by the flagship "Paris Commune." This sea force was awaiting an opportunity to pounce on any German attempt to evacuate troops from the Caucasus.

FARM PROSPECTS:
Situation Improves

Heartening tidings that the farm labor, equipment and supply situations are showing "improved promise" were heralded by Chester C. Davis, food administrator.

"A current appraisal of the farm labor situation," he declared in a letter to James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director, "indicates that there is an available labor supply sufficient to produce and harvest a 1943 crop up to the levels of the announced goals."

While not entirely satisfactory, Mr. Davis said, the farm machinery and supply situation for 1943 recently has been improved. He revealed that the War Production board has agreed to permit an increase in farm machinery production from 23 to 40 per cent of the 1940 level and an increase in repair parts to 160 per cent of the 1940-41 average. The petroleum administration has promised full gasoline supplies for food production, even if further cuts in civilian supplies should be necessary, he added.

COAL:
Take and Give

Reversing the procedure of "give and take," Fuel Administrator Harold L. Ickes announced a new "take and give" policy as an insurance against any new coal emergency. The doughty interior secretary set up machinery by which he may take coal from persons or plants with safe margins of supply and turn it over to those caught short.

The action was taken at a time when coal miners of the nation were at work on a 15-day truce before final settlement of wage demands had been made.

Mr. Ickes issued regulations setting up procedure under which he could act to protect war plants and essential civilian users from shortages, regardless of whether they arose from a work stoppage in mines, faulty distribution or other causes.

CONTROVERSY:
Russ Add New Fuel

More fuel was added to the flaming Russ-Polish controversy when the Soviet foreign office charged that cabinet officers of the Polish government-in-exile had engaged in espionage activities against Russia. To this charge the Reds added the further allegation that the Polish government had refused to permit use of Russian-trained Polish troops on the Soviet front.

United Nations' chancelleries had previously been heartened over the prospects of a resumption in Russ-Polish relations when Premier Josef Stalin had advocated the establishment of a strong and independent Polish state after the war and suggested a Polish-Russian pact directed against Germany. Observers viewed the Soviet foreign office's supplementary charges as an indication that while Russia desired good relations with Poland, it was bitterly at odds with members of the present government-in-exile.

Stalin's statement appearing in a letter to Ralph Parker, Moscow correspondent of the New York Times, had unequivocally endorsed the idea of a strong and independent postwar Poland and declared that future Russ-Polish relations should be on the basis of "good neighborly relations, or an alliance against Germany should the Polish people desire it."

DRAFT:
Fathers by August

Nation-wide induction of fathers into the armed forces will be started by August "if not sooner," Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey announced. In a subsequent move Selective Service headquarters issued instructions under which fathers in 35 listed essential industries may be given essential deferment. Observers believed that the new order indicated that the ban against the induction of fathers soon would be lifted.

Under the new instructions to local draft boards, care will be taken to keep fathers in essential occupations out of the armed forces until fathers working in less essential jobs have been inducted.

General Hershey ordered all essential war production employers to file with draft boards evidence of their employment of men who maintain bona fide homes with children under 18 years of age and born before September 14, 1942.

PACIFIC:
U. S. Air Upsurge

Surging American air strength took its toll of the Japs in widely separated actions on the far-flung Pacific front.

In the foggy Aleutians off the North American mainland American bombers kept up their incessant aerial pounding that has prevented the enemy from completing the airfield that has been under construction for several months on Kiska island.

Reporting an action of tremendous implications because it showed that heavy reinforcements had reached the U. S. air forces in China and that enemy bases near to Japan were now being laid open to our attacks, Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell's headquarters in China reported that newly arrived four-engine Liberator bombers had "pretty nearly wiped out" a Jap airport on the southern end of Hainan island.

From American army headquarters in New Delhi, India, came the announcement that U. S. heavy bombers had dropped more than 30 tons of bombs on Japanese installations in Toungoo, Burma, in the Mandalay area, blasting the enemy headquarters there and causing severe damage to other buildings.

In the Solomon Islands American planes continued their attacks on Jap positions, raiding Vangavanga and Ringi Cove on the island of Kolombangara, as well as Ritaka bay and Kila.

ALIEN BUSINESS:
Now in U. S. Hands

The United States has thrown back the economic invasion launched nearly a quarter of a century ago by the aggressor nations with whom we are now at war, the Office of War Information announced in making public figures showing that $7,000,000,000 in assets of enemy and enemy-occupied countries are now under control of the alien property custodian.

"Every company in which Nazi influence was known to exist has been Americanized," the OWI said. "These companies are now giving valuable support to the war and are playing an important part in helping the nation meet its production goals."

More than 2,000 such business firms are operating under licenses from the treasury department. A total of 41,577 patents and pending patent applications owned by enemy nationals are now under control of the alien property custodian.

FEDERAL PAY:
Upped for Workers

The house completed action on legislation previously adopted by the senate, raising the pay of federal employees who make less than $10,000 a year.

The bill provides a flat $300 increase yearly for workers in the lower salary brackets in the executive departments, whose pay had not been brought to this level by a previous 10 2 per cent raise based on increasing the regular work week from 40 to 48 hours.

BIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

LOS ANGELES: Government officials for whom people sat a blood plasma experiment are keeping mobile Caribbean bases produce plasma long as it lasts, it was announced by the Pratt Glassco Laboratories. The new substitute of serum is used in place of blood plasma in treating burned, wounded, suffering from shock, and saves the plasma for transfusion purposes.

CHICAGO: American farm production should become "filling station" where cattle will find plenty of nutritional forage, instead of "processing" where animals toughen their muscles in a fruitless search for food, the Middle West Soil Improvement committee declared. The committee's recipe for postwar improvement included the application of phosphorous and potash.

BUYING BONDS THE 'EASY' WAY

THIRTEEN BILLION DOLLARS worth of bonds, which Uncle Sam asked us to buy during the Second War Loan drive, and which we did buy, is a lot of money. To provide that amount would take practically all the coins and folding money in the United States if we were to put up the cash. But that is not the way it works.

John is working in a war industry plant. His wages amount to $50 a week. Each Saturday night, at his request, a $5 bill is withheld from his pay envelope to apply on his war bond purchase. That $5 bill is deposited in a bank to the credit of the United States. John spends much of the remaining $45 for things he needs, or deposits a portion of it in the bank. Out of what he spends, other Johns and Marys are paid, and they, too, buy war bonds. Out of what John deposits, the bank buys war bonds.

John's weekly pay is but a portion of an ever-revolving fund. Week by week it is paid to the government and again paid out to those producing what we must have to win the war. Week by week the ghost continues to walk because the Johns and Marys are financing their jobs by buying government securities. What they pay comes back to them, and in addition they have their government's IOU and will in time get it all back, plus interest.

CAPITAL NECESSARY TO KEEP LABOR AT WORK

BILL JONES has a job. That job provides food, clothing, shelter, a car, tickets for the movies, and other luxuries, as well as essentials for Bill and his family. To enable Bill to have a job means an investment of $8,000 in tools, including factory building and other essentials of production. Bill did not have $8,000, and others had to provide the tools which made Bill's job possible. It was the American capitalistic system that provided the tools.

For each man who has a job in an American factory, there is an average of $8,000 invested in the tools and buildings which make a job possible. It means a total investment of something like 480 billion dollars. That is America's working capital which provides jobs for our 60 million workers. If we make it impossible for capital to provide the tools, we take away the jobs that support workers and their families.

That is what we are doing right now. The war will be over some day and then new tools must be provided to replace those used in war production. With government taking out of industry all industry can earn, leaving nothing with which to provide new tools, Bill Jones, and his co-workers, will be without jobs. We will have won a war and lost a peace. We will have destroyed the American system of free enterprise.

LABOR MONOPOLY AND GOVERNMENT

A BILL that would curb some of the more atrocious activities of the labor racketeers was introduced in the Colorado legislature. The bill, if enacted into law, will give union members control of their own organization by forcing regular elections of union officers by secret ballot, as well as forcing union officials to account for union receipts and expenditures, and calling for a secret ballot of members before a strike can be called. The self-appointed, self-perpetuating union officials notified the state government that if the legislature passed the bill, the law would not be obeyed. The labor racketeer has been cajoled and appeased until he considers himself above the law. He will permit no interference with his self-given right of extortion from those whom the government forces into union membership if they are to have a job.

TOP-HEAVY BUREAUS IN GOVERNMENT

SAMUEL INSULL created a great public utility structure by building corporations on top of corporations, until the top-heavy organization toppled over, and in the crash the public lost millions of dollars. To prevent a recurrence of such a catastrophe, congress created the SEC. But the government is not taking its own medicine. Bureaus and departments are being built on top of other bureaus and departments, until government has become as top-heavy as was Insull's public utility structure. There is a limit, and should a top-heavy government topple over, the Insull failure would be but a drop as compared to an ocean of disaster.

DEBT LIMIT AND THE FAMILY

CONGRESS RAISED the federal debt limit to 210 billion dollars and it will reach that point by the end of this year. That means each man, woman and child has been mortgaged for $1,618, and over each family of five there is a mortgage of $8,090, on which there is an annual interest charge of not less than $181 for each family to pay. Our indebtedness at the close of 1943 will be eight times what it was at the close of the First World war.

Air Corps Cuts Red Tape With Absorption of CAP

Student Pilots of Civil Air Patrol Are Vital Link In Nation's Defense Chain; Valued Services Now Recognized.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

As the tempo of American activity on the foreign fronts moves with an accelerated beat, it is pleasing to note that a lot of red tape in Washington is being rolled up and chucked into official wastebaskets. One example is what the air corps is trying to do to utilize every ounce of human and material resource that is available.

When war comes, there is always a sharp cross current of human emotions—the good old one of self-preservation, and the equally old and much better one, from the standpoint of the nation, of patriotism. And, for opposite reasons but with the same result, both meet with obstacles. Many injustices occur in the selection of men for military service. Many ardent and valuable men are stopped from rendering the service of which they are capable and which they are anxious to furnish.

Red tape is the answer. But red tape is bound to tangle any herculean effort when a peaceful nation turns into a belligerent.

Drab Duties

The latest step in removing the red tape that was holding back a lot of valuable human power was the absorption of the Civil Air Patrol by the air corps. As this is written, the decision is being made as to which administrative group will take over this body of patriotic fliers who have been furnishing their own planes and their own services, unsung and unhonored. Most of their duties have been drab, and in many cases, stultifying because of their indefinite, quasi-military status. They are not a part of the air corps.

Another important step forward is also under way which will bring that group of unselfish young men into active service after months of morale-breaking waiting—I refer to the Civilian Pilot trainees, most of whom are now sure of active duty as instructors or flying cadets. They, too, have worked without compensation other than subsistence, and have sacrificed time, earning capacity and opportunity to continue their normal civilian careers. They are now being gradually absorbed into the air corps, too.

Few people in the country outside of the families of the members are familiar with either the Civil Air Patrol, the student pilots of the War Training program or even that other group of a million and a half volunteers who make up the aircraft warning service.

The Civil Air Patrol received some publicity for its important part in offshore duty in the campaign which stopped the submarine activities off the eastern coast of the United States. These men were pilots who owned their own planes, took their special training and received only gasoline and a small fee for depreciation while on active duty.

Spotters for 'Tough Guys'

They are a vital link in that chain of air and surface guardians who watched our waters from Maine to Florida. They could spot a sub, immediately report it to the nearest bomber or a fast coast guard or naval vessel. Some of the civilian planes were equipped with light bombs but they were not able to make much use of them because their planes were slow and a sub on the surface could spot them as quickly as they could spot the sub and crash dive. That can be done in seven or eight minutes and since visibility may extend 15 miles, the sub could hit bottom before the pilot could get over his target. Their chief function was to play bird-dog for the "tough guys" carrying heavier depth bombs.

Civil Air Patrol did invaluable but less romantic service in carrying vital machine parts between factories. It is now possible that some of these men and women in the interior of the country who have been making uninteresting overland flights from here to there may get a whiff of sea air, too. In any case, the red tape between them and the air command has been severed.

If not technically, at least practically, "they're in the army now."

As to the boys in the CPT war training program, who have been warming benches and waiting at nothing per diem, a bill in congress is about to give them pay [illegible] reservists and as soon as equipment enough to accommodate all of them, those unqualified cadet combat training will have jobs as instructors or pilots soon.

Status Unchanged

The last named group, the spotters, operate under the Command, and their [illegible] such that their status will be changed, they are a part of the office of Civilian Defense.

This group is made up of volunteer workers working with force experts, in connection with vast network of telephone connections which lace the coastline, east, south and [illegible].

They total a million people and the OCD calls done by the volunteers, the duous and technical jobs civilians. It consists in [illegible] porting and recording [illegible]. Not a plane appears in the is not checked and accounted for. If it can't be identified, it is ordered until it is.

Most of the volunteers and many more are needed. The job is described as being exciting and tough. The [illegible] centers where these people are guarded by soldiers and [illegible] in who doesn't work there is official business.

Here dozens of girls [illegible] gigantic table map of the [illegible] wear telephone headsets [illegible] pieces like a regular telephone operator, listening to the [illegible] and moving little map markers, "pips," representing planes, on the map with long wands.

These girls are the essential part of operations which go [illegible].

The spotter out on the [illegible] building or hilltop sees a plane, a message comes in [illegible] "Bomber on bi high west [illegible]." The girl puts the pip on the map corresponding to the spotter's report. The details of time and description of plane are noted on a marker on the pip. As the plane moves, it is reported by the spotter in succession and the pip moved along on the map. But sometimes spotters have made the report but it is not considered correct. [illegible] geese look like planes sometimes.

Method of Operation

After the third report, watching the board from above, reports it to the [illegible] room, which may be in a [illegible]. This point is the nerve center here again, the planes are Army men and Civil Aeronautics administration officials who are continuously receiving information every plane leaving [illegible] check this information with those below them. Every plane is accounted for. If not—well, I, if we live in that world [illegible] about it—the air raid [illegible] flashed. If the flier is [illegible] ground without clearance or some mistake hasn't righted itself, he is likely to see [illegible] after him or he might get a [illegible] duck anti-aircraft fire. They are careful our anti-aircraft [illegible] to be.

About Nutrition

I received the following letter from a listener in Miami, Fla.:

"Those who know will tell you that the introduction of [illegible] mins into white bread is a [illegible] or sales talk. Canada and Great Britain will not allow it. Under the Food Act boys know that you can't just look it up and [illegible] are not born today, they are not propaganda and [illegible] vertising."

I called up the Food and Drug administration ("Pure Food" [illegible] Commissioner Campbell.

"So far as the [illegible] synthetic vitamins are as effective as natural vitamins has been shown by extensive [illegible] tation."

Before the order was issued, rich white flour will be [illegible] mins, lengthy testimony was given by leading nutritionists. [illegible] men with no axes to grind.

My listener was under the [illegible] cere. He was apparently [illegible] of his misinformation.

RHEUMATIC FEVER

For many years what are called the salicylates have been the regular or routine treatment for rheumatism. The salicylate most used is acetylsalicylic acid, which gets different names from various drug manufacturers in the United States and Great Britain. What has been known by some physicians but has not been put into use to any extent, is that acetylsalicylic acid used when attacks of sore throat occur, may actually prevent attacks of rheumatism. The "preventive" treatment of rheumatism used by some physicians is to have the patient move to a dry warm climate, or by use of large and continued doses of sulfanilamide.

Now, every patient cannot move to a dry warm climate and maintaining a high level of sulfanilamide is not advisable in some cases. In discussing the natural drawbacks of these two methods of preventing attacks of rheumatism, Drs. A. F. Coburn and L. V. Moore, in the Journal of Pediatrics (children's diseases) state that the acetylsalicylic is safe and effective and should be given a trial at the beginning of any infection of nose and throat. A study of a group of rheumatic children exposed to the common nose and throat and chest infections is reported.

A daily dose of 60 to 90 grains of acetylsalicylic acid, depending on size of the patient, was given at first sign of sore throat (pharyngitis) where examination of organisms in the throat were the kind that cause rheumatism. This treatment was continued for one month.

Forty-seven young rheumatic patients received this "preventive" treatment and only one developed rheumatic fever. Of 139 rheumatic patients who were not given this treatment, 57 developed rheumatic fever and 82 did not. These figures tell their own story; only one of the 47 who took the treatment developed rheumatic fever, that is about 2 per cent, and of the 139 who did not take this treatment, 57 developed rheumatic fever, that is more than 40 per cent.

Gaining in Fight Against Epilepsy

A few years ago I had the feeling that if I had the time and the patience necessary I would like to try to investigate the cause of epilepsy and try to give these patients and their families relief from this distressing ailment. At that time the treatment was careful dieting and the use of bromides to quiet the patient. The bromides did quiet the patient and did give considerable help in cutting down the number of attacks or making them lighter.

I believed that eating certain foods had something to do with epilepsy because I had been able to keep one patient free of attacks for over a year by washing out his stomach twice a week.

Then came the knowledge that cutting down on starch foods, eating more fat foods, and the use of the barbital drugs would keep the majority of epileptics practically free of attacks.

Still later came the use of dilantin sodium to replace the barbital drugs, and, despite the fact that some physicians report serious reactions from dilantin sodium in some cases, it would appear that dilantin sodium is now favored by physicians treating epilepsy.

In a special clinical article in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. William G. Lennox, Boston, author of Science and Seizures, states that "so rapid has been the increase of knowledge of epilepsy in the last 10 years that patients and even many physicians have been left far behind." The three fields of investigation in which Dr. Lennox and his associates have been especially interested are electroencephalography—electrical brain waves—heredity, and drug treatment.

Study of the electrical potentials (waves) of the brain have helped locate the starting point of epileptic attacks and in giving advice regarding marriage and children. The patients of the brain wave is believed to be a hereditary tendency. Epilepsy is not inherited, always understand, but a predisposition to epilepsy is inherited.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS by Lynn Chambers

Surprise the Family With Sandwich Loaf!
(See Recipe Below)

Meals on a Dish

We've heard a lot about hot meals in a casserole that take care of the main course of a meal. But how about cool meals served on a single attractive platter that are most of the time, at least, made up ahead of time? This is one of the very nice things about summer menu planning for foods lend themselves to this kind of serving.

Recently I saw a very attractive platter that was cool, complete and colorful—that any one of you could whip up at short notice. An individual tomato aspic filled with creamed cottage cheese served on a large green glass salad plate was banked by several tiny finger sandwiches, a slice of tongue with horseradish sauce, deviled eggs, a small mound of potato salad and a sprig of watercress. Serve this with coffee or tea and a dish of sherbet or ice cream.

Bread with filling forms an interesting base for this salad-sandwich loaf and looks very pretty enclosed in rosy aspic. The fillings, ham and cheese, classic flavor combinations, won't cut into your points heavily, nor will the tomato juice:

Tomato Aspic Surprise.
(Serves 6)
1 small loaf white bread
Ham Salad
1 5-ounce glass Old English cheese
3½ cups tomato juice
2 tablespoons onion juice
1 stalk celery
3 tablespoons gelatin
½ cup cold water
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Watercress

Remove crusts from loaf of bread. Cut whole loaf into three lengthwise slices. Spread one slice with ham salad, cover with second slice spread with cheese spread. Cover with third slice of bread and wrap in wax paper.

Cook tomato juice, onion juice and celery for 5 minutes. Remove celery and add gelatin which has been softened in cold water. Stir until dissolved. Season with salt and pepper. Pour a ½-inch layer into a buttered loaf pan which is a little larger than the loaf of bread. Chill until firm. Place prepared sandwich loaf in this layer of aspic and pour the remaining cooled and somewhat thickened aspic around it and over the top. Chill again until the aspic is firm. Unmold on a platter, garnish with watercress and slice crosswise to serve.

You can still do entertaining even on your ration points! If your best beau or son is coming home from camp, there's no need to worry about stretching those ration points out of place when you serve this loaf serving 12 to 15 people:

Lynn Says:

A Heart of Gold: That's a dandy description of the egg which is good to eat, plus a first class protein. If you like 'em stuffed here's a grand parade of suggestions:

Cut hard-cooked eggs into halves, mash them, season according to taste and refill the whites. Garnish with paprika and a sprig of parsley.

Chopped celery with the mashed yolks is a good filling if you like crispiness. Or, mix the yolk with Thousand Island dressing for variety and serve around a salad.

Yolks deluxe include mixing with 1 cup cooked peas, pureed, 3 slices bacon, chopped and fried crisp, 1½ tablespoons cream, 1 teaspoon vinegar, ½ teaspoon onion juice, 1 tablespoon minced pimento, ½ teaspoon salt and enough mayonnaise to moisten.

If you have a dish of leftover ham, mince it fine and add with enough mayonnaise to moisten to egg yolks mashed fine and refill whites.

Lynn Chambers' Point-Saving Menus

*Tomato Aspic Surprise
Apricot Pie Beverage
*Recipe Given

Tulip Sandwich Loaf.
(Serves 12 to 15)
½ pound cold ham
½ pound American cheese
6 sweet pickles
Mayonnaise
3 packages cream cheese
Cream
1 small jar pimento
1 green pepper
1 loaf unsliced sandwich bread

Grind ham and grate cheese. Combine ham, cheese and chopped pickles and add enough mayonnaise to moisten. Remove crusts from loaf of bread. Cut a ½-inch slice of bread the length of the loaf. Remove center from remaining loaf so there is a box ½ to ¾-inch thick on sides and bottom. Spread inside of loaf and one side of slice generously with butter or margarine. Put sandwich filling inside loaf and top with slice on butter side down. Soften cream cheese with a small amount of cream until it is of spreading consistency. Cover loaf with cream cheese. Cut small tulips and leaves from pimento and green pepper and decorate sides of loaf. Chill for 1 hour and when ready to serve, cut in 1-inch slices.

Cottage cheese is unrationed, a good source of quality protein and calcium. You'll like it in this main dish salad—a meal in itself:

Walnut-Stuffed Tomatoes.
(Serves 4 to 6)
4 to 6 whole tomatoes
1 pound cottage cheese
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon minced green pepper
½ cup broken walnut kernels
Salt to taste

Wash and remove stem end from tomatoes. Cut out portion of center from tomatoes. Cut this fine and add to above ingredients, combine and fill tomatoes. Serve well-chilled, garnished with salad greens and whole walnut kernels. Serve with french dressing or salad oil and vinegar.

Lima beans, a rich source of protein, are combined with other rich-in-minerals-and-vitamins vegetables to give you a perfect luncheon or supper main dish salad:

Lima Bean Supper Salad.
(Serves 6)
2 cups lima beans, cooked
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 bud garlic, chopped
1 large onion, sliced thin
¼ cup salad oil
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Sliced tomatoes
Sliced green onions

Mix with a fork, the lima beans, parsley, garlic and onion. Add salad oil gradually, then vinegar drop by drop. Season with salt and pepper, garnish with tomatoes and green onions.

Hot Tomato Cottage Cheese Sandwich (Serves 6).
1 cup cottage cheese
6 slices buttered toast
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
2½ cups cooked or canned tomatoes

Spread cottage cheese between slices of buttered toast. Cut sandwiches in half and arrange in buttered baking dish. Melt butter over low flame, blend in flour, then add tomatoes gradually, stirring constantly until thickened. Pour over sandwiches and bake for 15 to 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

BIBLE TEACHINGS ON WINE'S DECEITFULNESS

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 20:1; 23:29-35; Matthew 24:45-51.

GOLDEN TEXT—At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder.—Proverbs 23:32.

Deceitful is a good word to describe both the product and the propaganda of the liquor business. Alcoholic beverages are in themselves most deceitful, and the methods by which they are sold to the public certainly cannot commend themselves to right-thinking people.

Intoxicants are associated with social preferment, festive occasions, radiant beauty, when they ought to be connected with the bleary eye, the babbling tongue, the ragged children and brokenhearted mothers. What about the men who have lost their positions and their characters, and the women who have paid with their virtue for their love of intoxicants? Why not picture them in the beautiful magazine advertisements?

I. Wine Is a Deceiver (Prov. 20:1). Wine is personified here as an evil demon who leads men on in the hope of some pleasure or advantage, and then lets him down to the depths of destruction. It makes him think he is great and powerful, when he is only weak and degraded. It excites him to foolishness and wild boisterousness, when he would normally be sensible, quiet and orderly.

He who thought he was wise in partaking of its stimulation, finds himself deceived, and to his regret he realizes that he is a fool in the hands of a malicious deceiver.

II. Wine Is a Depraver (Prof. 23: 29-35).

Depravity is a word not used as much as it was a generation ago, but it well describes the condition to which the drunkard comes in due time. And it is wine and other liquor which has depraved or corrupted him. A number of things appear in the text.

1. Liquor Destroys (vv. 29, 30). This is true morally, mentally, physically, and spiritually. Red eyes, wounds, complaining—these are only the outward signs of inward physical destruction of alcohol. Woe and sorrow speak of mental and social distress. The moral and spiritual destruction follow.

2. Liquor Deludes (vv. 31, 32). Its color, its sparkle and effervescence, its smooth appearance—all excite the anticipation of goodness and pleasure. And what does the drinker receive? The bite of the serpent and the sting of the adder. How true!

3. Liquor Demoralizes (v. 33). Alcohol is the handmaiden of immorality. "Strange women" come into the picture very quickly. They and the drinker soon find that drink sets them free from the limitations of decency and good sense, and the result is beyond description.

Those who defend liquor, or temporize with this problem, may as well recognize that they are encouraging the moral destruction of our boys and girls. It is a terrifying responsibility!

4. Liquor Dulls Man's Senses and Dazes Man's Mind (vv. 34, 35). Only a fool would lie down to sleep in the midst of the sea, or on top of the mast of a ship, or in the gutter, or against a lamp post. That's what drink does for a man.

His perceptions become so dull that he can be beaten, and he does not know he has been hurt. Exposed to inclement weather, he knows not enough to seek shelter. His money is lost or given away without concern on his part.

And when he sobers up—what then? His faculties are so dazed that he can think of only one thing to do, and that is to seek more wine. What is it that Scripture says about the dog and the fool? (See Prov. 26:11).

III. Wine Is a Destroyer (Matt. 24:45-51).

We have already touched on that point in its personal application, but now we see it in its bearing on his occupation and standing in the community.

The contrast is between the good servant who recognizes that his one and constant obligation is to serve, whether his master is present or absent, and the evil servant who violates his trust.

Notice that his first thought after cruelty to his fellow servants is to satisfy his appetite "to drink with the drunken."

Cruelty, mismanagement, unfaithfulness are tied up without question with drinking. Is it not so today? If you doubt it, read your daily newspaper. Why trifle with anything which keeps such evil company? You may find yourself mixed up with them beyond your ability to get free.

The final result is the loss of his position and of his life. Who will deny that this aptly states the end of the drunkard's way. But someone says: "I do not intend to be a drunkard. I only take a social drink." That is the way the drunkard started. Why begin to travel that road?

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For such many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, shoulder pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

Durbin Eighth Graders Present Annual Play

In spite of the things which the graduating class of Durbin Graded School has given up in playing its part in the war effort, the things which it has retained in its list of activities have been carried on with great spirit and efficiency.

The eighth grade play, "Watch Out for Spooks," which was held Friday night in the school auditorium, gave evidence of this efficiency. A well-chosen play, though simple in setting, it gave the young players ample chance to show their talent. Much credit is due the cast for a fine performance, and also its sponsor, Mrs. Margarette Widney, who became ill and could not attend the play. She was sent a tribute of beautiful flowers as a token of appreciation.

The cast included Helen Townsend, Irene Rexrode, Betty Plyler, Estelle Duckworth, Thelma Cummins, Merle Bostic, Robert Eades, Julian Gum, Frank Harris, George Bolton, Goldie Slavins and Pearl Rankin.

Garden Schools

We are all interested in making as great a contribution to the War Effort, in turn to our own future freedom, peace and health. All of us in Pocahontas County, of course, cannot participate directly in the War effort, but each of us, regardless of vocation or place of residence, can contribute to the cause by assisting with the Food Production Program.

For the most of us, this food production program will be strictly one of home food supply. In line with this thought a series of garden schools have been scheduled in which we hope to assist you with some of the many problems that may arise in your gardening activities this summer. At these schools we will discuss insect and disease control, succession planting, and food preservation. We hope that you will be able to attend the school in your neighborhood and bring someone with you. We will be in a position at each school to test any soil samples that you may care to plant, for lime and phosphate requirements.

Do not fail to bring your food production questions with you. A schedule of meetings in the various communities is as follows:

Monday, May 24—Edray, R. H. Skaggs', 2 p. m.; Clover School, 8 p. m.

Tuesday, May 25—Mt. Lebanon, at Mrs. Frank Morrison's, 2 p. m.; Bruffeys Creek School, 8 p. m.

Wednesday, May 26—Minnehaha Springs, Arndt White's, 2 p. m.; Dunmore School, 8 p. m.

Thursday, May 27—Wanless, Mrs. Harry Wanless', 2 p. m.; Cherry Grove School, 8 p. m.

Friday, May 28—Brush Run, Bennis Murphy's, 2 p. m.; Pine Grove School, 8 p. m.

A garden meeting will be held early in June in the Slaty Fork community.

Pocahontas County Livestock Producers will be interested in attending the annual Spring meeting of the Greenbrier Valley Livestock Marketing Association, which will be held in Lewisburg, Friday, May 21, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. The meeting will be held in the courthouse, and plans for the coming year will be discussed and formulated. An interesting program has been arranged, and as many farmers as possible should attend.

BEAUTIFUL: NOT DUMB

Wise homeowners are preparing now for winter fuel rationing by checking over all possible avenues of heat loss. Mrs. Robert Milford, Chicago, illustrates one of the simplest ways to install felt weatherstripping around window frames. The cloth shades with which every home is equipped are another simple, but effective, insulator. Research tests prove that pulling down the window shades can save up to 9 per cent of the total fuel bill.

The rest-pause that refreshes

more welcome in war work

ASK plant managers what a rest-pause means to workers in war production . . . more work-contentment. And contentment increases output. Add refreshment to a rest-pause and the feeling of contentment is increased. That's a reason why you find ice-cold Coca-Cola so welcome in war plants.

Ice-cold Coca-Cola goes beyond just quenching thirst to bring you refreshment. Its delicious goodness always delights your taste. Here is a drink made with a finished art, quality you count on. The only thing like Coca-Cola is Coca-Cola, itself.

Letters from plant managers from coast to coast emphasize that the little moment for an ice-cold Coca-Cola means a lot to workers in war plants. It's a refreshing moment on the sunny side of things . . . a way to turn to refreshment without turning from work.

Try ice-cold Coca-Cola with your lunch. You'll like the way its taste and refreshment add to the pleasure of eating.

THE STORY SO FAR: The story of their part in the battle for the Philippines is being told by four of the five naval officers who are all that is left of Motor Torpedo Boat Squadron 3. They are Lieut. John Bulkeley (now Lieutenant Commander), squadron commander; Lieut. R. B. Kelly, second-in-command; and Ensigns Anthony Akers and George E. Cox, Jr. Lieut. Kelly has told how he was sent to the tunnel hospital on Corregidor, where he met a nurse named PEGGY. Survivors from the sinking of a whipload of refugees were brought to the hospital, and patients from Manila were moved there. From them he learned how badly the war was going for us. A member of the tank corps is speaking.

CHAPTER IV

"What happened to your tank?"

"'We were lying on our side in that paddy, and the Japs would come over and look at us. We played possum in there all day. They tried to open our door with bayonets, but we had it locked. In the afternoon a Jap officer looked at us through the slots—all of us lying still, holding breath, and then he said, in English, "They're all dead."

"'But we figured it was a trick—kept right on playing possum and, sure enough, in about an hour they came back for another look. But we were lying in exactly the same positions. This time they gave a few disgusted grunts and walked off. About an hour after dark we listened carefully, and then unlocked our door. Sure enough, they'd gone, so we beat it for the road.'

"'Tell me what became of your shoes,' I asked him. I couldn't figure how an experienced soldier would ever let himself get separated from his shoes. The kid grinned sheepishly. 'I guess that was a damn-fool trick,' he said. 'You see it had been hotter than hell in that tank, and we were all dirty and tired and sweaty, so we decided to take a bath in a creek just across the rice paddy. But we had to go through mud to get there, so, keeping our clothes on until we got to the water hole, we took off our shoes and hid them in the tall grass. But when we got back we hunted for several hours, and we couldn't find that grass clump. Finally we started on, barefooted.'

"'But where were the Japs?'

"'They'd gone on ahead toward Manila. The next night we were resting by the roadside. We heard a noise behind us, so we scooted low in the bushes by the side of the road, and saw more of them go by on bicycles—all headed toward Manila. It seemed to be a Jap reconnaissance patrol, because behind them came trucks and guns and infantry, going by in the dark—so close we could have reached out and touched them. If we'd had a machine gun, we could have wiped out several hundred, but we only had our 45's. They kept up most of that night—one group stopped and ate chow on the road bank opposite us; we were scared stiff they'd come over and find us. It was hard for the wounded to lie quiet. Our tank driver had a rivet stuck in his throat—every time he took a drink, the water would come leaking out—and the radio operator's arm was full of shrapnel from an exploding bullet. The rest of us were okay, but our feet were getting damned sore.

"'At dawn we stopped by a native village to collect some shoes, but their feet were all too small.'

"'How'd they treat you?'

"'Fine—gave us all the food we could eat, but you could see they didn't want us around. Afraid the Japs would find us hiding there and shoot them too. You couldn't blame the natives. So we got out, and spent the other six days of the trip sleeping in ditches or brush clumps, walking nights.'

"'Were the wounded weak?'

"'Sure, and so were we. The tank driver with the hole in his throat wanted to stop—said for us to leave him behind. We were afraid the Japs would get him and we couldn't spare him a gun—we had only three 45's for the six of us.'

"'What did you do, carry him?'

"'Hell, no. We gave him a 45, told him he'd better use it now if he wasn't coming with us. So he changed his mind, and decided to come on. He made it, too. But it took plenty of guts.'

"'Some of them lacked that.' Here Kelly shook his head. 'Sometimes training, often equipment, but never guts.

"But getting back to that hospital. I went back to my bunk. Peggy helped me get my arm settled, and we talked a little bit. She was a sweet girl. Having been with the Regular Army, she knew most officers when she saw them, and you didn't have to talk long with those good brave kids who were so proud they forgot their shoes to know what the score was. Here we were, trying to hold off the Japs with less than two thousand regulars, plus those green kids who had really been sent here to publish off their warning, plus thousands of Filipino boys just as brave but just as green, most of whom had never been in uniform until a few weeks before the war started.

"'There is hell's the story?' Kelly's mate was. 'Why aren't they bringing us tanks and planes and more men? Is only taken two weeks to get here from Pearl Harbor.' Of course some of those boys who had happened at Pearl Harbor.

"'They'll be along,' I'd say. 'Any day now.'

"'Hell,' they'd say disgustedly. 'We won't see them for six months.'

"'Suppose we don't,' I'd say. 'This place can last six months. Wasn't it built like Malta and Gibraltar—to withstand siege?'

"Only pretty quick I began to find out how wrong I was. Corregidor had been built years ago, and then we'd agreed not to modernize if the Japs didn't modernize the Carolines. We kept the agreement; they didn't. Anyway, ammunition and provisions were so short the Rock would be doing good to hold out three months.

"A few days after that the nurses in my ward were buzzing around—I heard some talk about a party they were giving in their quarters that evening, inviting their boy friends, who for the most part were young army officers stationed on the Rock. And I almost fell out of my cot that afternoon when Peggy, in a seemingly offhand way, asked me if I'd like to go. It was nice, of course, to be chosen, by the girl I liked best, out of 10,999 other men on that Rock, most of whom would have given an ear just to talk to a white girl. But it got me to thinking, too. I liked her, but the other girls had said there was a young medical officer she'd been dating pretty steady—and what the hell was I? A naval officer in an army hospital—here today, gone tomorrow—so I hadn't let myself get started thinking—or tried not to, anyway.

"Naturally, I said sure I wanted to go. So Peggy said she'd see if she could fix it with the doctor. And after she got through with him, he was certain it would do me good, if I was back in the ward by ten.

"Here in Newport maybe you wouldn't think it was much of a party. But it was a swell night, with a big moon hanging over Manila Bay—peaceful—and best of all, the girls had broken out with their civilian dresses. That doesn't sound like much, but one look at them after seeing nothing but uniforms for months was like a trip back home. Makeup too—they looked so damned nice you could eat them with a spoon, and Peggy had put just a touch of perfume in her hair—anyway if it wasn't that, it was something. What did we do? Well, danced to a portable—I'll bet we played 'Rose of San Antone' a dozen times—and Peggy and I figured out a way we could dance with my arm in a sling. And afterward we sat out on the grass and talked. I remember someone saying, 'You think they'll ever bomb this place?' Of course we knew eventually they would, but that night the war seemed a thousand miles away. Only somebody spoiled it all by asking Peggy when this medical officer was getting back from Bataan, and she said she thought tomorrow.

"Next day I was out in the courtyard getting some fresh air," Lieutenant Kelly, who was invalided in the tunnel hospital at Corregidor continued: "I was allowed a certain number of hours per day out of my bunk—when the air-raid alarm went off, but by now we didn't pay any attention. I looked up to notice that nine Jap planes were going overhead, but what the hell, they did that all the time, and of course the anti-aircraft opened up—just a formality, because they were up out of range—when all of a sudden—Bam! the whole Rock seemed to jump, and we made a dive for the tunnel, because at last they were bombing us.

"It was quite a pasting. Half an hour later a batch of nurses came in in an ambulance—pretty well shaken up. They'd been strafed—had to leave the ambulance and run for the nearest ditches. A few minutes later the wounded began to come in—all the serious cases went into my ward. They had only two operating tables, so the litters were lined up, waiting their turn, while the nurses pitched in and took care of the minor surgery — cleaning wounds, digging for shrapnel, bandaging. There was no time for anesthetics except a quarter of a grain of morphine, but the wounded certainly had guts. They'd grab the side of their litter with clenched fists, and tell the nurses to go to it—it really wasn't hurting much.

"The raid had been going an hour when all of a sudden the lights went out, but in half a minute the girls had produced flashlights. I remember Peggy standing there holding a flashlight on a guy's naked back on the operating table while a doctor probed for some shrapnel in his kidney. You could see her face and those steady blue-green eyes of hers by the light reflected back up from this guy's back, and just then there was a terrific crunching bang—a bomb had landed right outside the tunnel entrance—and with it a sudden blast of air through the tunnel. It wasn't nice, and yet I don't think Peggy's hand even wobbled.

"Presently the lights came on, and we found one hospital-corps man had crawled under a bed. He wasn't even sheepish. 'You're damn right I was scared,' he said. 'Thought the whole place was coming down on us.' Peggy's flashlight beam on that naked back had not moved. Hell of a fine, nervy girl to have in a war. Or any other time.

"But it was getting on toward New Year's, and bad news began to come from Manila. The Japs were closing in."

"But very few of them realized it in Manila," said Akers. "I was there with my boat on courier duty from December 13 until Manila fell. Staying with Admiral Hart until the seaplane took him out to join the Dutch East Indies fleet.

"You certainly couldn't criticize morale. The average Filipino had a childish belief in us. He was absolutely certain that the Americans would be there next week with plenty of equipment. Dead-sure that our American soldiers would throw back the Japanese. Believed all the optimistic broadcasts and rumors.

"When a raid would come, of course, they were pretty excitable. We slept aboard the boat, and when the bombs started down, we were supposed to get away from the wharf and out into the bay. Sometimes people used to stow away, to get away from the bombs.

"They never lost faith, though. Right up to the end there were big dances at the Manila Hotel, and you could watch the Filipino boys in uniform, telling their girls about their heroic exploits. And there were plenty of them to tell, too.

"But over at the American Army and Navy Club, they knew what the score was. They didn't feel like dancing there. Their faces were plenty long.

"Of course the higher-up Filipinos knew the truth. If you'd see one with a long face, you could be sure he was a Senator, or better.

"I had a girl there—Dolores was her first name, and by American standards she was good-looking as hell. Her father was a Spaniard from Catalonia and her mother was a mestiza. She'd been elected Miss Philippines a year or so before. Fairly tall and lithe, with big black eyes and enough of the Oriental so you'd never forget her face among the other brunettes you know.

"Her father I think was a Senator, and the family had a hell of a lot of money. His brother owned a lot of mines. They had a big colonial house in the suburbs. Usually when I was invited out she'd send a car down for me, but the first time I was coming out alone she said never mind about directions—and so it turned out. Every traffic cop I met knew just who they were and could point me on my way. So they were really big shots on the island.

"Her father knew what the score was, although Dolores didn't dream it was coming so soon. The last time I saw her, just before the Japs came in, she knew Manila had been declared an open city, but she thought that only meant there wouldn't be any more bombs. All that night the southern army had been moving through Manila, trying to get to Bataan before they were cut off, but she didn't know what the marching meant. That night her uncle, a tough old Spaniard who had mines all over the world, got pretty drunk and almost had a row with her father, the Senator.

"The uncle said the whole mess was the fault of this opposition faction of Filipino politicians hollering their silly heads off for independence—no wonder the Americans, if they were getting out in four more years, hadn't socked a lot of money into fortifications. Then he cussed the Filipino politicians out for not appropriating money for the army—they'd set MacArthur up with a big salary and a penthouse, and then hardly given him a dime to train and equip an army—it was all window-dressing.

"He said he wasn't so worried about himself because he owned plenty of property outside the islands. But he told the Senator he'd probably end up pulling a rickshaw for his part in this independence foolishness, and serve him damned well right. So I could see there were a few natives who knew what the score was.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Neither South American sources of natural rubber nor expansion of Guayule Cryptostegia and all other rubber-bearing shrub production will produce any large amount of satisfactory rubber for some years, according to government agencies.

In 1941, 86 per cent of all travel by Americans was in cars.

No gas! No cars! Ban on pleasure driving brought a drop of about 80 per cent in the passenger cars on the streets of New York City. Jay walkers had a holiday in the automobile deserted main streets.

Five in a car instead of just the driver and one passenger means that 8 tires are saved, if the average of three cars to five war plant workers is considered. The amount of rubber in 8 tires is enough for 72 gas masks, or for life rafts and rubber life jackets for 8 plane crews.

Famous Physician Was Gracious With Encore!

The wealthy man had cracked a rib, and a slight operation was necessary. He engaged a famous specialist.

Local doctors were excited at the prospect of a visit from a big noise, and their request for permission to watch the operation was granted.

When the patient came out of the anesthetic he found himself smothered in bandages. He summoned the nurse.

"What's all this?" he demanded.

"Well, sir, it was such a beautiful operation, and the applause was so tremendous that Dr. Hugo took out your appendix as an encore."

The colonel was lecturing a class of incipient officers. "A 40-foot flagpole has fallen down," he said. "You have a sergeant and a squad of ten men. How do you erect the flagpole again?"

The candidates thought, then offered suggestions about block-and-tackle, derricks, and so on.

Cass Girl Graduates at Mooseheart

Here is the brief story of a home-town girl who, in spite of early and serious reverses, has made good. It concerns Ruth Smith of Cass. In giving the details, the secretary of local Moose lodge No. 844, said:

"Immediately after the death of Ruth's father, application was made to the Governors of Mooseheart by the lodge for the admission of the girl to the Moose Child City in Illinois, Mooseheart, the internationally known trade and academic school, founded in 1913 by the Loyal Order of Moose. The application was granted, and Ruth was admitted in October, 1925. With her came her brothers William and Harry, who have since graduated.

Ruth Smith

"For more than seventeen years," continued the secretary, "Ruth Smith has enjoyed all the privileges and opportunities of the Moose program of child welfare. This program means for every Mooseheart child the best of care in homelike surroundings, spiritual and moral training, and a sound education — both academic and vocational. In the latter, Ruth has specialized in power sewing.

"In addition," continued the secretary, "Ruth has received a broad cultural education in literature, music and art, and she has learned to 'play the game' on the athletic fields of this noted child city." According to the Mooseheart records she has shown conspicuous success in music.

The home-coming of this Mooseheart graduate will be appropriately celebrated by the lodge at an early date. A feature on the program will be the initiation of a "Mooseheart Graduate's Class." Present indications point to this class being the largest of the year.

Facts About Mooseheart and the 1943 Class

MOOSEHEART, Ill., May 20.—On June 12, at the Moose child city of Mooseheart, a class of 56—29 boys and 27 girls—will graduate. This is the 25th graduation at this famous academic and vocational school. The total number of graduates, since the establishment of the school in 1913, is now 1,846. This year's graduates come from 20 states. Illinois ranks first with 13; Ohio and West Virginia second, with 6 each. The average age of the graduates is 18 years, 4 months, and their average number of years residence in Mooseheart is 11 years, 3 months. In addition to the high school diploma which each graduate will receive, a certificate specifying the nature of the trade, or vocational instruction in the work in which he or she has been trained, is also given. Twelve trades and vocations are represented in this class. Certain of the graduates plan to enter higher schools of learning should present war conditions permit.

As of June 1, 1943, more than 400 Mooseheart graduates and former students are now serving in the armed forces of the nation — the Army, the Navy, the Marine or Air Corps. This fact is being especially emphasized this year throughout the Loyal Order of Moose in its celebration of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the child city. A class of candidates in honor of the graduates and former students in the service, and of this year's graduates, is being built by the local Moose lodge as part of the celebration of Mooseheart's founding.

Home and School

Mooseheart, founded July 27, 1913, by [illegible] is an outgrowth of twelve hundred acres, thirty-two miles west of Chicago. Title to it is in the Supreme Lodge of the World, Loyal Order of Moose, and it is the supreme lodge of the Order which maintains the child city. Here are cared for almost a thousand normal children of deceased members of the Order. Instruction in about twenty trades, including agriculture, is given.

Mooseheart represents an investment of more than $26,000,000. Its administration calls for an annual budget of almost one million dollars. This sum comes from the half-million dues-paying members of the 1,500 and more Moose lodges on the North American continent. Incidentally, the dues of the members in the nation's service, of whom there are already more than 42,000, are being waived for the duration of the war.

Educational Concept

The educational concept of Mooseheart is to take full account of the needs and capacities of the individual child and fit the instruction to that individual, to the end that he may best adjust to a complex, changing social and physical environment. This concept is embodied in the words of the founder—"Every child is entitled to at least a high school education and a trade."

Lowest Mortality Rate

Mooseheart has one of the most modern hospitals in the country. Its mortality rate is lower than that of any institution of its kind in the world. No Mooseheart child has died on the Mooseheart grounds in the last nine years.

Mooseheart's dairy farms, gardens, orchards and vineyards consist of 1,137 acres. Their maintenance is largely for the purpose of providing Mooseheart children with necessary foodstuffs. Mooseheart's farm pays big dividends, both in the health of the children and in financial profit. It is considered to be one of the greatest farms in the State of Illinois, and its farm head of [illegible]

Your Electric Servan
Stay With You.

Yes, your electric servants aren't temperamental, nor are they looking for other jobs, except in your own home. They are the most dependable help you can get from any source, but they need a little help from you, if they're to serve you best, for the longest period of time. Keep them clean. Don't drop or overheat them. Keep all motors oiled adequately, but not overoiled. At the first sign of trouble take your appliances to a good service man. Observe these easy-to-follow suggestions and your "cheapest servants" will serve you long and well.

CONSIDER WHEAT BINS ALONG C. AND O. R. R. TRACKS IN MARLINTON

Members of the County AAA committee met in Marlinton Monday with a group of C. and O. Railway officials to make plans for the proposed installation of 5 wheat bins along the Marlinton siding. Railroad officials took the contracts back to the main office for signatures, after which they will be returned to the state AAA office at Morgantown. When all plans are completed, the state organization will install the bins, it is reported.

The wheat for which the bins is being considered, is an accumulated surplus which the government has accrued through its insurance projects and in other ways, and is being sold to farmers for livestock feed. One carload, purchased by Dr. K. J. Hamrick, already has been received here. While of fair quality, the wheat is graded as a No. 2 product, and has not had the chaff or other foreign particles removed from it, but is reported to be an excellent feed.

The state AAA office reported this week that West Virginia farmers, dealers and processors have ordered nearly 276 thousand bushels of the recently-released government-owned wheat for feed. More than half of this amount was ordered from Cabell and Wayne counties.

CLYDE BUZZARD TO DIRECT FARM LABOR PROJECT IN COUNTY

Will Supervise Extension Service Program in Recruiting Help for Pocahontas Farms.

Clyde Buzzard, well-known farmer of Minnehaha Springs, has been selected by the West Virginia Agricultural Extension Service to aid County Agricultural Agent Ben Morgan in the work of recruiting and placing of labor with the farmers of this county who will need help in carrying out their farm programs this year. He will have his headquarters in Marlinton in the offices of Mr. Morgan.

As an assistant worker in the Extension emergency farm labor program, Mr. Buzzard, a successful farmer in his own right and well acquainted with the farm labor needs of the county, will aid County Agent Morgan in receiving applications from farmers who will need help this year, and from adults not now employed, who are interested in getting farm jobs on a full-time, part-time, or season basis.

He will also cooperate with school officials of the county in the selection and placing of high school boys on farms during the vacation period, and the placing of youths, aged 16 to 24, not in school, in full-time or part-time farm jobs.

To Provide Supervision

After the workers are placed on the farms, Mr. Buzzard and Mr. Morgan will keep in touch with them and their employers throughout the season and will supervise the general relationships between the farmer employers and their new hired hands.

Farmers in this county who will need help of any kind this season, should communicate at once with the county agent's office and state what type of worker, or workers, they will need and how many of them. The Extension Service will then try to place on the individual farms the type of workers requested. Persons wanting farm work are also requested to apply at the county Extension office.

Mr. Buzzard has announced that he will be in the County Agent's Office each Saturday, and asks the cooperation of all farmers and workers.

IT Impresses ME

THAT if the movie producers out in Hollywood ever run short of help because their actresses are away or are acting up, that they might solve their dilemma in a visit to Marlinton . . . Seated in a public place the other day, we were just looking 'em over, and have come to the conclusion that if a similarity of looks and actions is any guide, this could happen: . . . Cottie Clendennen could easily play those pert roles made famous by Joan Blondell . . . Betty Jo Kramer could do double duty for Bette Davis or Veronica Lake . . . And I swear Nyta Parsons could stand in for Judy Canova (my favorite) . . .

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Air Raids Soften Europe for Invasion; Decisive Allied Moves Against Japan Forecast in Washington Strategy Meet; WLB Regains Authority on Wage Boosts

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

With activity against the Japs on all eastern fronts forecast by recent Washington conferences, Allied air attacks against the enemy loom large in the tactical picture. Above are shown four American-trained Chinese pilots looking over the instrument panel of a P-40, in company with Maj. Grant Mahoney of the U. S. air force in China.

OFFENSIVES:
Europe and Asia Both

Not only Allied smashes against Hitlerite Europe, but decisive campaigns against Jap-held domains in Asia and the South Pacific in weeks to come were on the United Nations' war timetable scheduled by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in their Washington conferences.

That activity against Japan would be stepped up on a major scale was indicated by two developments. One was the presence at the Washington conferences of Commander-in-Chief Sir Archibald Wavell of India, Admiral Sir James Somerville, the Eastern fleet commander, and Sir Richard Peirse, the India air commander. The other was the disclosure that Admiral William F. Halsey and Gen. Douglas MacArthur had met to co-ordinate future operations in their areas.

Indicative of the trend toward decisive American action was a Tokyo radio report that strong U. S. forces had invaded the Jap-held island of Attu in the Aleutians.

Observers believed that future moves on Japan might take on a nutcracker character. One prong would close in on Nippon from the east, via Halsey's and MacArthur's combined forces in the Pacific. The other would squeeze Japan's flank from the Indian ocean and the India-Burma front, using the combined commands of Wavell, Somerville and Peirse.

TRADE PACTS:
Green Light by House

Surviving debate and the threat of crippling limitations, President Roosevelt's reciprocal trade program was extended by the house of representatives for a term of two years.

As debate had divided on party lines and the Republicans had supported a series of amendments which the Democrats charged would have been "a kiss of death" to the entire program, Speaker Sam Rayburn had rallied support sufficient to insure favorable action. While gaining main support from Republicans, the amendments were offered by Democratic Congressman West of Texas, only New Deal member of the house ways and means committee to oppose extension of the act.

Reciprocal trade pacts have been negotiated with 27 nations in the last nine years.

CANNING:
Kitchens Defined

A definition of "home canning" was released by the Office of Price Administration to allay housewives' fears about giving up rationing points for foods processed in community canners now being organized in many parts of the country.

The OPA defined "home canned" foods as those processed "in a kitchen primarily used for the preparation of meals, or in a kitchen used to demonstrate preparation of such meals"—such as in a school or home economics center.

If a farmer has a separate building where he customarily does his canning, he could get permission from his ration board to use it.

POST WAR:
'A Mighty Flow'

Envisioning a "mighty flow of goods and services" to war-ravaged areas in the coming peace era, Leon Henderson, secretary of commerce, said that the United States should welcome and encourage the development of other nations when the war is over.

"Under private business, as well as government, a tremendously greater flow of goods and services will be necessary than ever before," he said.

RUSSIA:
Donets Flares Anew

Even as the Red army had continued its methodical, grinding drive against the line of German fortifications outside Novorossisk, last Nazi-held bastion in the Caucasus, other Russian forces to the north in the Donets river valley had opened fierce attacks near Lisichasnk, about 125 miles southeast of Kharkov.

For weeks, Soviet dispatches had reported trainload after trainload of German troops rolling eastward to the Russian front. But Hitler had kept his moves for what would be his last chance offensive well masked.

In the action near Lisichansk, gateway to the eastern Donets basin, the Russians said the enemy had tried a wedge-shaped drive into Russian-held territory, but this thrust was pushed back. In pursuing the retreating Nazis the Red troops were able to establish themselves on a hill of "great tactical importance."

AIR RAIDS:
Bombs Write History

Cologne and Dortmund had suffered destructive Allied air raids that dwarfed the damage visited on London by the Luftwaffe in the battle of Britain, but it remained for Duisburg, center of German war and transportation hub of the Nazi's defense of western Europe, to be smashed by the heaviest aerial assault in all history.

The RAF was the Allied instrument of destruction. It was estimated that as many as 2,000 tons of bombs were dropped. The heaviest previous raid ever made anywhere was that on Cologne, on May 31, 1942, when 1,000 bombers were employed and more than 1,500 tons of explosives were rained on the Nazi city. An attack on Dortmund had reached the intensity of the Cologne foray, but the Duisburg raid was the heaviest of all time.

That the Duisberg raid was but a prelude to what Nazi-held Europe might expect was indicated by devastating forays which followed immediately. American Flying Fortresses continued the marathon by making their own heaviest attack since the war began on St. Omer and Mesulte in northern France.

Meanwhile in the East the Russian air force took the initiative away from the Nazis, while Red planes smashed at German communications at Warsaw, capital of Poland, and its suburb of Prags. In the Mediterranean area, U. S. bombers strafed airfields and shipping facilities in Sicily and on the Italian invasion coast.

WAGE BOOSTS:
WLB May Act

The War Labor board got back some of its discretionary authority to make wage adjustments. James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director, announced the new policy in a directive specifying that the board may now raise wages "to aid in the prosecution of the war or correct gross inequities."

Mr. Byrnes, however, qualified his action with the limitation that such wage adjustments must not cause price rises or stand in the way of price reductions.

The new policy directive was issued in response to the WLB's appeal for clarification of its position as a result of President Roosevelt's recent "hold the line" anti-inflation order. The board had complained that it was virtually stripped of all discretionary powers in wage cases, since the President's order had limited its actions.

While restoring authority to effect such "gross inequities" Mr. Byrnes' directive did not restore to the board its power to correct "inequalities" which it had prior to the President's "hold the line" order.

SUBMARINES:
Allies' Defense Grows

The Allies were making steady progress against Hitler's hitherto most potent weapon—the submarine. Decreases in monthly shipping losses by the United Nations and the preponderance of ocean-transported Allied munitions and supplies in North Africa at the victory finale were indicative of this.

Evidence of how the Allies were successfully applying air and sea power plus grit and stout hearts against the Nazi subsea peril abounded in epic report issued by the British admiralty describing how navy escort ships and Royal Canadian Air force planes had sunk or probably sunk 10 German submarines in an eight-day battle in the Atlantic.

Characterizing the action as the biggest single Allied victory against U-boats, the admiralty report said that planes, destroyers, frigates, corvettes, cutters and sloops joined in the battle continuing day and night for eight days. As many as 25 enemy submarines were in action at one time. The battle finally turned in favor of the convoy. "Some damage was suffered," the admiralty said, "but the majority of the merchantmen reached port in safety."

MERGER:
Wire Giants Unite

Improved telegraph service for those engaged directly in the war and for the general public in the post-war period was forecast as a result of the merger of Postal Telegraph Inc., and Western Union Telegraph company.

Together the two companies do a business of about $145,000,000 a year and their combined assets will approach $500,000,000.

Culminating negotiations and discussions covering more than 20 years, the merger was made possible by recent congressional action and by approval of the Federal Communications commission. Under the terms of the agreement, Western Union will acquire all assets and all business of Postal Telegraph and assume its liabilities and obligations, including the amount owed by Postal to the Reconstruction Finance corporation at the time of the closing of the agreement.

CURB:
War Plant Building

Ordering a halt on virtually all war plant construction which cannot be completed by October 1, the War Production board announced that the nation now has enough industrial plants to produce the materials required to beat the Axis.

Meanwhile the board had directed a widespread conversion of machine plant tools and other existing facilities to the production of more urgently needed goods. Calling its action a "significant milestone in the war program," the WPB said that men and materials released by its new directives would be channeled elsewhere into the war program.

WPB officials estimated that construction of between $500,000,000 and $1,000,000,000 in new war plants would be halted, even if it were necessary to dismantle partially completed ones. Many machine tools orders will be cancelled, and tool plants will be converted to the production of "things that shoot."

The announcement emphasized that there "has been no easing-off in the demand for critical materials; there is on the horizon no indication whatever of a lessening in the demand for labor."

LIFELINE:
For Small Business

Hope for financial aid for small store owners, operators of gasoline and service stations and other small businesses adversely affected by the war was held forth by the Reconstruction Finance corporation in announcing a loan program.

Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, said the program would be in the hands of the RFC Mortgage company. The company, he added, is ready to consider loans against real estate, including stores, privately owned gasoline and service stations and business properties generally that have lost their earning power by reason of wartime restrictions and regulations.

Mr. Jones announced that three types of loans will be considered: participation loans; refunding loans; and care and preservation loans.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AND INDUSTRY CONTROL

SO FAR during the war the federal government has invested between 13 and 15 billion dollars in the erection and equipment of war industry plants. These plants have been operated by private concerns working on government contracts.

The National Planning board proposes as a post-war measure that these plants be retooled for the manufacture of peace-time products and be operated by the government as a means of surmounting the after-the-war unemployment problem.

Such a move would mean the beginning of state capitalism in America.

Free enterprise as we have known it in America cannot live with state capitalism. Private capital cannot be induced to compete with the unlimited funds of government. When government enters business, private capital quits.

In the end we would all be working for the government, if we worked at all, and there would be no more jobs than would be provided by our present system of free enterprise. The incentive that produces invention, scientific discovery and progress would be gone. We would be a completely and permanently regimented people—worker, farmer, professional man, all of us. We would be permanently subject to the direction of a bureaucratic system, as are the people of Italy, Germany and Russia.

American people want none of that. Such a system is not what our armed forces are fighting for, or for which the home front is willingly making sacrifices. It is not a thing we can afford to encourage, even as a temporary solution of an employment problem. Once saddled upon the country, it means the end of the system which has made America great and prosperous and given to us the highest living standard the world has ever known. We must beware of any such expedient.

HUMAN RIGHTS AND PROPERTY RIGHTS

WHEN IN 1920 Gen. Leonard Wood was a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, we frequently ate lunch together at the Adventurers' Club in Chicago. A plank in General Wood's platform pronounced for property rights. I insisted that human rights were of far greater importance than property rights.

"If you can prepare a statement for me," said the general, "which defines human rights but does not encompass property rights, I will accept your statement."

I tried, but did not succeed. Human rights and the right to accumulate are inseparable. It is the human right to accumulate which is the foundation of American progress. It has encouraged invention and scientific investigation; it has built industries; it has put the soil under cultivation. The right to own, to have and to hold, is the incentive to work. General Wood was right.

BOX OF CANDY AND BUREAUCRACY

A SMALL CHILD with whom I have established a friendship likes candy in a box, but the mother objects to the child having more than a half-pound box. In a candy store I found an abundance of the kind of candy the child is permitted to have, and also a large supply of empty half-pound boxes, but none that were filled. Five young lady clerks were on duty and I was the only prospective customer in the store. But I could not buy a half-pound box of candy. I could buy the candy delivered to me in a sack. I could not buy a box. They could not put the candy in a box and sell it to me. They could send to some place a mile or more away and have a girl at that place put half a pound of candy into a half-pound box, and then sell it to me if I could wait an hour. A law, not passed by congress but created by executive decree, made it unlawful for those clerks to put candy in a box. We are today regulated by some 40,000 such executive decrees. That is our modern bureaucratic democracy.

FOOD RATIONING

CANADA is at war, as is the United States. We are fighting the same enemies. Canada is a food-producing nation, as is the United States. Canada is helping to provide food for England and the Allied armies. Canada has been at war more than two years longer than we have. Canada has not found a food rationing system necessary. She has depended upon the patriotism and good sense of her citizens, as we did in World War I, and it has worked.

Allied Food Conference Envisions World Council

WNU Service, Union Trust Building
Washington, D. C.

Back in the summer of 1940, I sat in a chair under a whispering tree and looked out over a wide and barbered lawn. The mountains were about us. We were resting in a nest carved out of the wilderness and equipped with all the luxuries that a pampered human could demand. Lovely, indolent women in sports dresses sat at tables under colored umbrellas. Handsome, indolent youths in blazers lolled beside them. Negro servants padded about with tall, cooling and expensive drinks.

I call it a "nest." I belonged there just like a cuckoo but I enjoyed it. It was all right. It helped circulate the money (I was a guest at a bankers' convention). But I thought back. Six months before I had ridden in an army transport plane over shuddering Europe. I looked about and saw the easy, harmless but useless life about me, made possible by the easy harvesting of America's riches.

I sighed (a little enviously) and said to myself: "This can't last."

It is a strange coincidence that today, at this very same spot, representatives of the United Nations are gathering to try to write the prescription for the third freedom—freedom from want.

This gathering isn't concerned with summer resorts de luxe although it meets at one. It is concerned with the proposition: We must raise the standard of living all over the globe so that the underfed can produce enough of their handiwork to exchange it for enough to eat—something they just never had before.

It is just too big for me to grasp, but what's a heaven for, asks Browning, if our reach doesn't exceed our grasp?

World Council

This plan envisions an international council at the head of a system of administrative bodies among which would be an agricultural council, supported by an agricultural bank (all this international) which would direct groups studying and applying nutrition standards, directing the supply of products, storing surpluses, shifting crops to balance supply and demand, maintaining ever-normal storehouses of non-perishable crops, adjusting processing of perishable crops, developing new markets, taking care of relief in devastated or stricken areas, advising and assisting the poorer population groups to increase their efficiency and consumption.

In other words, these people who have spent hours and months and devoted arduous labor to working out this idea are trying to furnish the plan for economic machinery to hold up the hands of the political effort of a league of nations, new style—the bone and sinew, the bread and beef to feed a society of nations joined together under one political umbrella of world co-operation.

Such an idea is laughed out of court in advance by the folk who talk of crazy dreamers, impractical long-hairs and the like. Maybe it is impossible. But a lot of people are saying: "Well, for heaven's sake, let's try it, let's try anything—nothing can cost more in blood, sweat and dollars than war."

The United States proved a lot of things were possible under the sharp lash of war which would have been sneered into oblivion if they had been blueprinted before Pearl Harbor.

Take an egg, for example. Nothing up our sleeves. Just an egg.

"Before the war," says Frank Wilson of the department of commerce, "when Biddy, the hen, laid an egg in Cole county, Missouri, her subsequent cackle of satisfaction was based on the anticipation that that egg might get as far as Sedalia, St. Louis or, on rare occasions, New York."

Then Hitler dreamed up a world war and somebody dreamed up a thing called lend-lease. Today, Biddy's product goes around the world.

Dehydration

Scientists invented dehydration and the process, as far as eggs are concerned, is only a year and a half old. Before the war, only 30 firms dried eggs to any extent and most of those dried albumen only. Today, according to Mr. Wilson, 130 egg-drying plants, big ones, mostly ... through the Middle West ... eggs. Baking materials are precious these days, and burning a cake is little short of a tragedy. When putting a cake into the oven set an alarm clock for the time the cake should be finished baking. This is a big help, especially when visitors drop in, and one is apt to forget all about the cake in the oven.

When you see news photos of soldiers "off duty" in camp or behind the battle-lines—notice how often you'll see them smoking a cigarette. There's a good reason for that. Army officials say that cigarettes are an appreciable factor in maintaining morale—and the soldiers themselves add that a carton of cigarettes from home is always welcome. What brand? Well, sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens show that Camels are the favorite cigarette with men in all the services. Though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen wherever they are.—Adv.

Blind Enabled to Weigh Articles on Audio-Scale

A new instrument known as the "audio-scale," which enables the blind to weigh even small articles accurately by sound, has been demonstrated at the American Federation for the Blind.

The idea was suggested by Miss Evelyn Watson, a blind woman. The instrument, which can be attached to any type of weighing machine, operates on the aeroplane radio beam principle, giving out a different note for each different weight. It will open many new fields for the blind in war industries.

ON THE HOME FRONT With RUTH WYETH SPEARS

BAY windows are much in vogue again. One reason for this is that modern methods of hanging curtains make bay windows more attractive than they used to be in the Gay Nineties when they were a feature of so many houses.

In those old houses the vertical lines of woodwork and wall showing between windows made the bay seem like a coop stuck on the outside of the house. Many home owners had the bays removed because, while they actually added space, they made rooms seem small and cluttered.

Today curtains are hung to cover both wall and woodwork around the individual windows in the bay. This brings the group of windows together as a unit and makes the bay seem a broad and spacious part of the room. The sketch at the right shows a standard fixture that allows curtains to extend beyond the window frame; but don't rush out to buy new rods. The chances are that your old rods may be extended over the wall if you wire them to hooks or staples at the upper corners of the window frames.

NOTE—If you are planning new curtains, you will want a copy of Mrs. Spears' booklet that illustrates twelve different styles of curtains with directions for making them; including a simple home-made rigging for draw curtains. Ask for BOOK 1, and enclose 15 cents with name and address to:

True Enough

Some visitors were inspecting a junior class in the school and things were going rather badly. When the teacher asked if any little girl could recite something, only one small hand shot up.

"That's a good girl, Betty," said teacher encouragingly. "Now step out in front of the class. What can you say for us?"

'Nelson's Farewell to His Mother," replied Betty brightly.

"Splendid! Begin."

Swat The Farmers!

It is noticeable (certain to the farmers) that the New Deal has become more and more antagonistic to agriculture. Deliberately, it seems, the farmers are jockeyed by the White House into positions where they are criticized by their city neighbors. And, meanwhile, the New Deal throws the mantle of its protection over other groups.

Back of this apparent resentment against farm-folk could be the individualism of the men and women of the open spaces, their antipathy to any "ism" that does not embrace Americanism, their refusal to accept regimentation. Or it could be something deeper. It could go back to the philosophy expressed quietly in the '30's which was buried away by one of the most ardent of New Deal spokesmen.

Jay Franklin is known in Washington to everyone who knows the New Deal. He was one of the first appointees to an official position in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Since the mid-Thirties he has become a syndicated newspaper columnist, widely accepted as reflecting New Deal thought. No one believes that he does not have influence within the inner-circle. And his real views toward the farmers are worthy of a re-examination as the New Deal turns its back on them.

This New Deal official said:

"The problem of Farm Relief will become, not how shall we relieve the farmer, but who shall relieve us of the farmer?"

And he added these expressive thoughts:

"The farmer has arrogated to himself all virtue and all knowledge, he has voted against progress, against civilization, against the city, against science, against art. He has made and unmade Presidents in the image of Main Street; he has exhausted our soil as he will exhaust our Treasury if given half a chance. He is the great obstacle to human progress, the great threat to political stability. Sooner or later we shall discover, as England discovered, as Soviet Russia discovered—that the pagan, the landed proprietor, the kulak, is simply an anach ronism on the path of progress and must be swept aside if society is to advance."

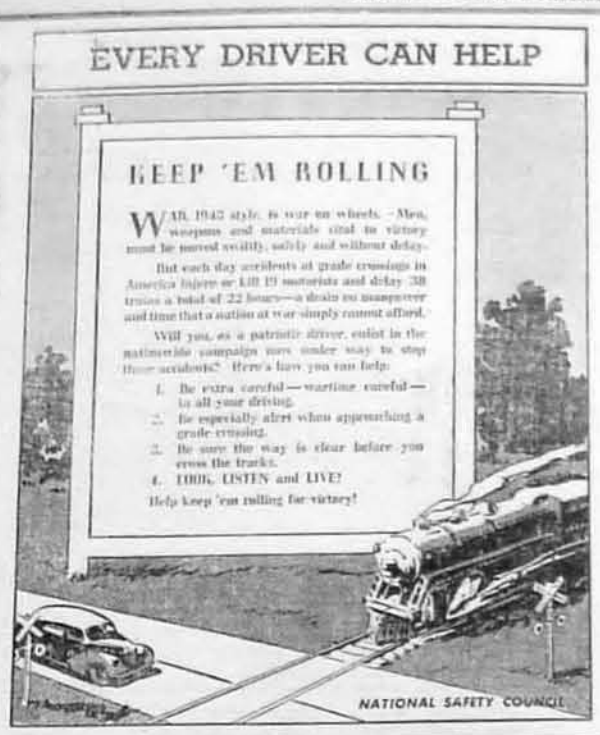
About the only comment necessary is to say that if that utterance does represent anything of the idealism of the New Deal, then the spokesman and the system could do well to acquaint itself with the idealism and the purposes—as well as the stubborn independence—of the men of the soil in America.

Freedom Of The Press?

A New York Daily News editorial comments as follows:

"At the Hot Springs (Va.) Food Conference . . . the Administration first attempted to bar all reporters. Restrictions have now been relaxed a trifle, but only a trifle. Now it is planned to give the reporters a press headquarters outside the hotel grounds, but not to let them inside the hotel except during set-and-fixed public sessions of the food conference. Even at the public sessions the reporters will not be allowed to talk to the delegates—nor will the press photographers. Guards will be on hand to enforce these restrictions.

"That it is planned to keep the American people ignorant of the conference's deliberations on such things as post-war international farm, banking, labor, health and transport authorities; post-war world trade; post-war currency plans; a post-war world



EVERY DRIVER CAN HELP

RFC, AAA and FSA; and a possible post-war world food stamp plan. All these things, of course, are intimately bound up with how much of their own food Americans are to be permitted to eat after the war, and how much they are to be compelled to give away.

"Dictators, past and present, have found that they cannot keep their power and permit a free press to function within their borders . . . The first necessity of an incoming dictator is to bring the press under his control."

The Marlinton Airport

One of the county's most important assets, in our opinion, is the airport near Marlinton. It proved its worth recently as a haven for the three Navy fliers who were lost in the mountains, and who followed a local pilot to the field for an emergency landing. Likely it has served the same purpose for others unknown to this writer.

In the not-far distant future, aviation will become a common mode of transportation. While in any common usage it probably will develop eventually into widespread use of the autogyro type of plane, the type of plane requiring a landing field of generous proportion will long be in demand.

People of this vicinity should be glad, even though it should be privately owned, that near here there is an airport which will accommodate large planes, and should look forward to the time when it shall be improved and lengthened to accommodate any and all types of air vehicles.

THINGS Worth Knowing

"A lot of rationing is just plain nonsense and directed by men who have no other desire than to make you feel it. . . . This country has never been noted for class distinction. But under the Office of Price Administration that is just what is happening." — Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland.

"In Virginia there are 148,165 farms, yet the entire State of Virginia has been allotted 385 tractors, 386 disc harrows, 141 spring tooth harrows . . . There are some counties in Virginia in which the total allotment is not more than sufficient to equip a good-sized farm."—Senator Harry F. Byrd (Democrat), Virginia.

Indianapolis, Indiana, has been named by most beautiful.

City fire officials had suggested to the Office of Civilian Defense that 1,000 hatchets would be sufficient for city needs. A shipment of 6,000 arrived last August. Later came another shipment of 7,740. Last February an additional 3,200 arrived. Recently 250 more were received. Grand total 19,530. And incidentally, Indianapolis has held only one test blackout.

In Washington, D. C., the Government last year spent $115,000 to build an asphalt-paved deluxe parking lot for the Army and Navy on a grassy polo field near the Lincoln Memorial. Now some $25,000 more is being spent to tear it up—after several months during the which the lot averaged about a dozen cars per day in spaces for several thousand; but still the Army and Navy will not release it for badly-needed housing for WAVES. It must revert to a recreational area, officials insist.

A Lieutenant's Miraculous Escape From Death

In response to requests from a number of our readers, we are reprinting the following letter from a soldier. The original letter is in possession of Rev. Ray White, of Zarephath, N. J.

The Land of Death and Destruction

The Wilds of No Where

DEAR SIS:

In writing this letter to you, I don't know where to start first. So many things have happened since last I wrote. Well, to begin with, I have escaped death at the hand of an enemy in a way so amazing I am still in a daze. You remember I told you when I knew I was going over, I was going armed with the Bible? That Bible is the reason I am still here and able to write this letter to all America.

Here is the story: My buddy and I were sent out on duty with our equipment in the work I told you before was our job. We had just received information. The most important for weeks. When we were discovered by the enemy, I gave my buddy the information we had collected, told him to beat it with it, and prepared myself to face them. It was the first time I'd been faced with the necessity of pointing my gun at a man and blasting the life from his miserable body. I thought fast: then I said, "Lord, it's Your responsibility now." My buddy had not obeyed my order. He had no such scruples. As I reached for my carbine, a shot from one of them struck me in the breast and blasted me down. Thinking I was dead my pal jumped for me, grabbed my gun as well as his own, stood astride my body, and blasted away. He was hit, too, getting three bullet wounds, but when he was finished, there was not a one of them left. He was amazed when I rolled over and tried to get up. The force of that bullet had only stunned me. Dazedly, I wondered why. I pulled that little Book out of my pocket and in utter astonishment looked at the ugly hole in the cover. It had ripped through Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, on through the Pentateuch, on through the other books, Samuel, Kings, Chronicles, and kept going. Where do you think it stopped? In the middle of Psalm 91, painting like a finger at the verse: "A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee. Only with thine eyes shalt thou behold and see the reward of the wicked." Sis, when I read that verse it raised me three feet off the ground. I did not know there was such a verse in the Bible. I'd been reading mostly in the New Testament. I read the rest of that chapter—the first part was ripped apart. In utter humility I said, "Thank you, precious God," and felt like a little boy that had escaped the mouth of an enemy of prey.

When I got my buddy back to the post, he said, "Late (he calls me Late), I've had enough. This convinces me. Come on—I want to get right with God, starting right now." He wouldn't let them send his wounds. He said, "Nothing matters now but this." He stayed on his knees sixteen hours with three wounds. His body became so numb he couldn't move it. But he wouldn't give up. When the Lord finally came in he moved. That soldier went crazy for God. He jumped over chairs (I mean broken). He jumped over banks. He even ran outside and shouted to the whole camp.

Since I've given my heart to God and talk with the boys, hold meetings and pray with them, God has given me 25 souls. Twenty-five of my buddies have prayed through and come out for God. God even gave me my general. It took a long time. He was so dignified. But God told me to go after him. I stuck on his tail until he was grounded and came through. The Spirit of God hovered over that ten with a sort of glimmering golden haze. I tell you, Sis, prayer is going to win this war. Not guns alone. Fervent, agonizing prayer I know is. God is bringing them in one by one. The whole company will be a company of praying men. God has promised them to me. Given me assurance. Think of it, 120 praying men and one general in one regiment. When that happens this unit will be unconquerable. Pray, sis. Pray as you never prayed before. Tell everyone to pray. Tell all America to go to its knees.

Before each decisive victory anywhere over here, sometimes for hours, sometimes for days, there has been a feeling of people praying far away. The feeling is so strong you can hear. One of the men, the most stubborn of them, said in the stillness of the night, "God, did you hear anything? Sounded like people praying from that distant place. Must be hearing things in this dead place."

So, pray, everyone. It will have to come from afar. This is a land of desolation. God has turned His face away from the horror and destruction that man has brought on himself.

Again I plead, tell America to pray! This war will not end until nations and people have paid in blood and tears for thrusting God out of their hearts, out of their nations, out of their lands. And tell them to ask God's aide to send Bibles, and more Bibles, and more Bibles! It will give him the confidence he needs to be with him. I'd like to see the better broadcast from every radio station in America. Try it next time you are on the air, in the papers, in that is printed. Make it a slogan. Send it from coast to coast. Tell them the Army wants prayers and Bibles.

And your complacency, bridge parties, fox-trotting, cocktail parties, mothers, why didn't you teach your sons about God instead of teaching him a cigarette, a cocktail glass and a dance program! Get on your knees and ask God to forgive you for this. Then pray for the Army! Pray! Pray! And you great preachers! Why don't you get your people to pray? To Hell with your silken robes and reading from a ritual. Only strongholds for God can stop the shelling, the killing, the murdering. Even the shells that are whizzing through the air scream one word—"Atonement!"

I could go on, but I am not so weary. But in all so hazy that them comine to God one by one, tell them to pray, atone for sin, keep praying. And when you get things to the boys, send Bibles, want Bibles.

Your loving brother,
Lieutenant

THE STORY SO FAR: The story of their part in the battle for the Philippines is being told by four of the five naval officers who are all that is left of Motor Torpedo Boat Squadron 3. They are Lieut. John Bulkeley (now Lieutenant Commander), squadron commander; Lieut. R. B. Kelly, second-in-command; and Ensigns Anthony Akers and George E. Cox Jr. Lieut. Kelly, sent to the tunnel hospital on Corregidor, learned from the wounded there how badly the war was going for us. Cavite, our big naval base, was gone and our air force nearly wiped out. While he was there the hospital was bombed. Ensign Akers is telling some of his experiences before Manila fell.

CHAPTER V

"Twelve hours before the Japs entered the town I was sent back into Manila to pick up the remnants. I had just eighty gallons of gas to go those thirty miles—finally got back with ten. A curious thing happened during those closing hours; nobody had given orders to blow up the oil reserves. Maybe some of them belonged to private companies; it would go against a business man's grain to blow up good oil. Finally a little junior-grade naval lieutenant noticed it. He had no authority, but he gave orders he had no right to give, and presently the oil was blazing. I hear he got a Navy Cross for doing it.

"I was in Manila about that time," said Cox. "A big air attack was going on, although it had already been declared an open city. For that reason I had gone in with the guns on my boat with their canvas covers on—for welfare reasons. Yet, open city or not, the big air raid was on—streets deserted except for a few people running nowhere in particular like crazy, planes crisscrossing the sky above. The big church, about a mile from shore, was just beginning to burn. In the harbor, boats were burning and sinking on all sides—five and ten-thousand tonners. But not a single shot was fired at the planes—which came down as low as five hundred feet.

"I went up on into the city, and everywhere people were kind and helpful. The Japs were right outside the town, and yet the storekeepers would give me anything we Americans needed without either money or a voucher—just sign a paper, that was all. They trusted us."

"I took my boat into the harbor just as the Japs were entering the city," said Bulkeley. "It was night, and we could see the town burning—a huge death-pall of smoke hanging above and oil six inches deep over the water. It looked like doom hanging over a great city, and it was. Made you feel bad. We stayed out there from nine o'clock at night until about three in the morning. Didn't dare go ashore, and anyway our job was to destroy harbor shipping—so what was left of it wouldn't fall into Jap hands."

"I had to leave all my spare uniforms in my locker there, damn them," said Akers. "I hope none of them fit."

"Watching them take over made you feel pretty sick," said Bulkeley. "We finished up and started home, to get back before dawn, now and then looking back at the fires over the water. Every time it made us sore."

"It was a tough New Year's Eve for me, too," said Kelly, "because we knew more or less what was going on. Then there was another reason. Some of the army officers were throwing a little New Year's party with the nurses that night, and since this medical officer Peggy had been going with was just back from Bataan, of course I knew where she'd be.

"Along in the evening after sunset I walked out to the mouth of the tunnel and sat down, to watch the twilight of the old year die away. It had been a tough year, but the one ahead looked worse. And here was I, useless for the war, in an army hospital. From away off I could hear them playing the portable at the officers' party, and I remembered how cute Peggy had looked in her civilian dress when she danced, and that didn't help any. Pretty soon one of the other nurses I knew, Charlotte, came out and sat down near me. She wasn't at the party because she had to go on duty soon, but that didn't matter, because her boy friend had just been wounded three days before, and she was worried sick about him.

"Just then I noticed someone sitting down on the other side of me—I turned and, by George, it was Peggy. But in uniform, either. She was wearing that rose and-looking cotton-print civilian dress.

"I couldn't figure it. 'Didn't you like the party?' I asked. 'Wasn't it any good?'

"'I don't know,' she said. 'I didn't go to the party.'

"'Weren't you asked?'

"'Yes,' she said. 'I was asked. But it was New Year's, you see, and I thought it might be nice here.'

"She only knew nice things happen to you during a war, but this was about the nicest that ever happened to me then, or any other time. It made me feel so good that because the two of us, we managed to get Charlotte cheered up. She had to go back on duty promptly, and she managed to dress in not a long time at all. Peggy and I had the rest of the evening to ourselves.

beer, to celebrate on. But Peggy had been preparing. The island was on two meals a day, but she'd managed to hold back a couple of apples and a whole box of marshmallows. That was our New Year's Eve supper, and I'll bet that yours, wherever you had it, couldn't have tasted any better.

"Running any kind of romance, no matter how mild, was a real problem on Corregidor. About the best place to sit was right down where we were, at the tunnel's mouth. But the road ran right in front of it, and every five minutes an army truck would barge tactlessly around the curve, shining its dimmed-down headlights right on you. Then for another three minutes you were choking with dust. If you got tired of this and tried to go for a walk, you'd hardly get started when you would realize that eleven thousand men were trying to sleep all over that little island, and if you went far, you would step on most of them in the dark, and not many of them would thank you for it. There wasn't an unoccupied square foot anywhere.

"We proved that later on when the doctor prescribed walks for me—to build back my strength, because I'd lost thirty pounds—and Peggy was assigned to go along. The troops swarmed on that island—every pond was crowded with them bathing, and I would always have to go ahead to take a look over hilltops and be sure Peggy wouldn't surprise them.

"Meanwhile Bulkeley was reporting to the Admiral daily and was formulating a plan—which he would talk over with me, as I was his second officer—for what we would do when our gas ran out. We had damned little left, and the army couldn't spare us any.

"Our first plan was, when we got down to our minimum, to get out to Australia. The navy patrol bombers had planted caches of gasoline among the islands like stepping-stones, and the Admiral gave us their location. But the first stepping-stone was Singapore, and the Japs were working their way down the peninsula, closer and closer to it. Could we get there first? Of course we wouldn't leave the Philippines until all of our torpedoes were gone and we had just enough gas left to make the final run. But then, as you know, Singapore fell and also the southern islands—Celebes and Zamboanga. The route with the cached gas was closed—that plan was out.

"So then we said, who wanted to go to Australia anyway? Our job was to defend Manila Bay—wasn't that our part in the war plan? Yet even then it kept coming up: suppose the worst came to the worst and Luzon folded up—the whole archipelago—even Java—what then?

"Then Bulkeley here hit on a real plan. When our gas was down to just what we could carry on our decks, instead of waiting around to get captured by the Japs, we'd take our boats to China to continue the war. At first glance you'd say that was crazy—the Japanese holding most of the Chinese coast—but not the way the skipper had it thought out. He knew China from the years he'd spent out there on a gunboat while I was there on a destroyer.

"The Japs were closing in on Hong Kong—that was fine for us! We'd make our dash—about our last few remaining fish at their gathered transports just where they least expected an attack, and then head north toward the region of Swatow.

"Of course the Japs held that coast, too, but Bulkeley had worked out an answer. All in the utmost secrecy. He'd gotten in touch with Colonel Hong, the Chinese military observer. Hong had radioed Chungking to investigate the evening beer, to celebrate on. But Peggy had been preparing. The island was on two meals a day, but she'd managed to hold back a couple of apples and a whole box of marshmallows. That was our New Year's Eve supper, and I'll bet that yours, wherever you had it, couldn't have tasted any better.

"Running any kind of romance, no matter how mild, was a real problem on Corregidor. About the best place to sit was right down where we were, at the tunnel's mouth. But the road ran right in front of it, and every five minutes an army truck would barge tactlessly around the curve, shining its dimmed-down headlights right on you. Then for another three minutes you were choking with dust. If you got tired of this and tried to go for a walk, you'd hardly get started when you would realize that eleven thousand men were trying to sleep all over that little island, and if you went far, you would step on most of them in the dark, and not many of them would thank you for it. Chungking cabled back that it could be done.

"They said the Japs held the Swatow region thinly—at no point did they go more than ten miles inland. So, at an agreed time, and at an agreed rendezvous on the coast, Chungking would send a raiding party down to fight its way to the beach and meet us.

"There we would burn our boats—now useless with all torpedoes expended against Jap targets. The Chinese couldn't hold that point long—but long enough to hustle us through that ten-mile Jap-held strip onto free Chinese soil. There trucks would take us to the nearest airfield, we would fly to Chungking, and from there a four-motored American ferry-command plane would bring us back to the States.

"Where was the flaw? We couldn't see one, unless somehow it leaked out. Besides myself, only four living people knew. They were De-Long of our squadron, Captain Ray, chief of staff, Colonel Wong, and of course the skipper here, who had worked out every detail.

"But before we left we knew there would be plenty of action ahead for us here, and I told Bulkeley I was crazy to get out of this hospital, and asked for his help. If they'd let me get back to duty, I'd agree to anything—promise to soak my hand for so many hours a day—anything they said, just to get back even on a semiduty status.

"So we staged it for the next morning, when the ward doctor would be dressing my hand at about the same time the head surgeon made his rounds. We tackled him. I made my talk, and he seemed to waver. 'Tell this bird you need me,' I said to the skipper. 'We really do,' said Bulkeley, but just then Peggy overheard and queered the whole thing. 'Certainly not!' she said. 'You can't let him go back to duty with his hand wide-open!' That swung him back. 'Duty!' he growled. 'Who said anything about duty? Two weeks of it and you'd lose your whole arm.'

"I tried to argue—point out that if the MTB's went out on a mission, I could hold on with one arm as well as two, but Peggy had done it, and now he wouldn't listen.

" 'One of these days you're going to find an empty bunk,' I said. I was gloomy all that next week, but Peggy said I was a fool. That there were plenty of well, fit men to do my job. And that if I hadn't been so damned stubborn in the first place, and had got that hand treated in time, I'd never have come to the hospital, and never met her, and she would never have been able to break up my plan to get out, so it was all my fault!

"She's always had that cute way of seeming to storm at you and dress you down, so that you ended up by grinning and couldn't stay mad at anything long.

"So it went along for another week, she leading me out for walks every day to get some of those thirty pounds back, and then one day we returned to find that Bulkeley had been by looking for me—said he was going out on a raid that night, up to Subic Bay looking for a Jap cruiser, that he'd waited hoping to take me, but finally had to leave.

"It set me almost crazy. If I hadn't been out on that damned health tour with a pretty girl, I wouldn't have missed the raid! So here I was while my gang was up there tangling with a cruiser, maybe getting killed, because the Japs had Subic Bay so thick with guns that it was almost suicide to go in.

"All that night there was no news. I was up at 5:30—'Any dope from the torpedo boats?'—still nothing. But at seven they said, yes, Bulkeley had come back, managed to sink a cruiser and get away, but the other boat was missing—probably lost."

"It was a job we did for the Army," explained Lieutenant Bulkeley (describing the historic attack of his P. T. Boat in Subic Bay mentioned.) "A couple of Jap ships, one of them an Imperial Navy auxiliary cruiser with 6-inch guns had been shelling our 155-millimeter emplacements on Bataan—blasting them with heavy stuff. The major in charge had been wondering how to get rid of them and had phoned Admiral Rockwell, who gave us permission to tackle the job. We knew they were based in Subic Bay, probably in Port Binanga. Subic is on the west coast of Luzon, just north of Bataan. I decided to send two boats—the 31 boat, which was Lieutenant DeLong's, and the 34 boat, which was Kelly's, now commanded by Ensign Chandler. I went along in it for the hell of it.

"We tested everything—tuned the motors, greased torpedoes, and got under way at nine o'clock, chugging north along the west coast of Bataan. It was very rough. We throttled down to thirty knots, and even then we were shipping water, but we got off the entrance to Subic Bay about half an hour after midnight. Here, according to plan, the two boats separated. DeLong in the 31 boat was to sweep one side of Subic Bay and I the other. We were to meet at Port Binanga, at the end. If something happened and we didn't meet there, then we were to rendezvous at dawn just outside the outer limits of Corregidor.

PETER'S COUNSEL TO SCATTERED CHRISTIANS

LESSON TEXT—I Peter 1:1; 2:11-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king.—I Peter 2:17.

Persecution for Christ's sake has been the lot of believers from the first century down to 1943. Sometimes it has been official, but more often unofficial, yet nonetheless severe and trying.

The manner in which Christians face their difficulties is one of the best testimonies to the reality of their professed faith. Sometimes, however, in the midst of their trials the enemy of their souls brings discouragement—and then they need the counsel and encouragement of others.

Such was the situation when Peter addressed his first epistle to the early believers who were scattered abroad (1:1). His counsel was just what they needed, and is equally helpful to us. They were to be

I. Separated As Pilgrims (1:1; 2:11, 12).

Christians are in this world but not of it. They are passing through, wayfarers on their way to the eternal dwelling place of God. That does not mean that they are not interested in the welfare of those round about them, or delinquent in sharing the responsibilities of life, but it does mean that they are to have the pilgrim's detachment from the things of the world and the flesh.

In the days of Peter, membership in the church was not considered a normal or respectable thing. It marked a person as belonging to a hated sect, one which was falsely accused of many evil deeds. For example, Christians met at night, men and women together for communion service. Because they spoke of this as a "love feast," they were accused of immorality, and because they spoke of the body and blood of Christ they were said to be eaters of human flesh.

Christians must meet such malicious reports. How? By silencing their accusers by their good works.

II. Submissive As Citizens (2:13-18).

One of the hallmarks of Christian character is willing and gracious recognition of proper authority, whether it be in the state, in the place of employment, in the school, or in the home. He does this for the Lord's sake (v. 13), and even when that authority is in the hands of an unreasonable man.

This does not mean that the Christian is to encourage or countenance tyranny and oppression, but that he is loyal to the state and to his employer, even though the present representative be a hard, unjust man. In all well ordered society there will be proper and effective means to correct injustice. But in and through it all the Christian shows his faith by his behavior.

Observe that government, in the plan of God, is for the purpose of keeping order, encouraging the good, and punishing the evil (vv. 13, 14). The powerful influence of the Christian Church should keep it in that right channel, or bring it back if it has strayed. Always loyal and obedient, the believer should use his ballot and his personal influence to establish and support good government.

III. Suffering As Christians (2:19-25).

Christ is our "example" (v. 21). Since some have interpreted this word and the statement "that ye should follow in his steps" as indicating that we are saved by our imitation of Christ, it is well to point out that this would be quite impossible. We would have to begin where He began—He was without sin (v. 22). But we have all "sinned and come short of the glory of God" (Rom. 3:23). We need a Saviour—not an example as far as redemption is concerned.

In the ever present problem of suffering, we as redeemed ones do have Christ as our example. He who was sinless and without fault bore the shame and suffering of Calvary without complaint. When He was reviled He did not retaliate, when He was hurt He did not threaten revenge (vv. 22, 23), but was willing to leave the ultimate judgment in the hands of God, who will have the final word.

We ought to do the same when we suffer for Christ's sake. If we suffer because of our own sin or folly, we can claim no credit for bearing it patiently (v. 20). But when we have done well and then are persecuted, we have opportunity to show whether our profession of being followers of Christ really means anything. At this point some Christians have their testimony and influence by a bitter, vengeful spirit.

There are trying days for the souls of men. In many parts of the world Christians are forced to drink the bitter cup of persecution. To the glory of God we record the fact that they are doing it heroically and in a true Christian spirit.

BEHAVIOR TREATMENT

One of the difficulties about the treatment of behavior symptoms by the use of insulin or metrazol is that some patients who have undergone this method, or have spoken to patients who have done so, are somewhat afraid of it, notwithstanding that they have experienced or observed its helpful results. It is for this and other reasons that many physicians are now using the electrically induced convulsions in cases where the mental symptoms are not due to any true or organic disease of the brain. I have spoken twice before about this method and in the Illinois Medical Journal, Dr. J. V. Edlin, Chicago, reports the use of electric shock treatment in 126 cases.

The length of time the patients suffered with their symptoms ranged from less than six months to 15 years, and included all the functional psychoses such as anxieties, fears, dream states and melancholia.

Of the patients who were ill less than six months, about 33 per cent recovered; the rate for those ill from six months to one year was about 31 per cent; for those ill from one to five years it was 21 per cent, and for those ill from 6 to 10 years it was 20 per cent.

The best results were obtained by patients suffering from involutional melancholia (depressed feeling of middle and old age). The best occurred in patients with catatonia (where dream state passes into melancholia) and then those with hebephrenia (silliness which comes on at puberty) and dementia paracox combined with hebephrenic and catatonic features.

Dr. Edlin found that just as with insulin and metrazol the symptoms before receiving electric shock treatment determined the chances of recovery; the shorter the time, the better the chances. Dr. Edlin prefers electrical to metrazol treatment because of the high percentage of recoveries and the almost total absence of fear. He also advises that the usual treatment of mental cases by questioning the patient and explaining the causes of the symptoms should be used in addition to the electric shock treatment.

X-Ray Treatment of Goiter Beneficial

In examining recruits for the war we were always on the alert so that cases of early thyroid disease (goiter) were not accepted. When the heartbeat was fast the recruit rested for some time and was given a daily paper to read. If his heartbeat was slower after rest and he was fit otherwise he was accepted. In some cases where, in addition to the rapid heartbeat, there was trembling of the hands and eyes were bulging he was considered a thyroid case and rejected at once.

The cause of the symptoms is too much juice or extract is being manufactured by the thyroid gland and this juice increases the rate at which all the body processes work. The amount of increase is measured by a special apparatus and if it is plus 15 or more it is considered a case of early goiter, hyperthyroidism it is called. If test shows minus it shows that the thyroid gland is not manufacturing enough juice.

When too much juice is being manufactured, all or part of the thyroid gland is removed by operation or by the use of X-ray treatments. If not enough juice is being manufactured the physician prescribes small doses of the juice or thyroid extract.

Before treatment for removal of the thyroid gland is given, Dr. George E. Pfahler, professor of radiology, graduate school of medicine, University of Pennsylvania, medical clinics of North America states that the cause or causes of the hyperthyroid condition should be removed insofar as this is possible. Usual causes are focal infection (teeth, tonsils or other organ), domestic difficulties, worry, overwork or some other strain.

As many patients fear operation and delay should be avoided. Dr. Pfahler points out that X-ray treatment gives about as good end results as surgery and these patients will more willingly undergo the X-ray method of treatment. There, however, the need for the removal of the thyroid gland is urgent surgery is the proper treatment.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Children Need Good, Wholesome Foods At Their Parties

Simple parties help make children at ease with their friends, do a lot toward laying the foundations for their social success. Watch them enjoy playing host and hostess as this little pair is doing.

How do you rate with your younger generation? Are you content when you keep them clean, get them off to school, and give them some extra tutoring when they need it in English or math?

Yes, that in itself is a big job, and you are doing a big job if you have that part in smooth, running order. Notice, I didn't say whole job, because unless you provide for healthy recreation and play, the child is not getting his rightful share and start in life.

Future Americans must be a social as well as business success to be wholesome and happy. To prepare the child for this, you must provide him with a social and recreational outlet—and that means an occasional party to which to invite younger friends so the child is at ease in his role as host or hostess.

There's a certain excitement at children's parties which easily upsets their tummies, and the best way to handle them is to have nourishing, wholesome food, rather than "partified" dishes which will upset them even more. You'll find cooperation from other mothers if you let them know you will do everything to make her children at ease.

Let your decoration be a bit fussy and party-ish, of course, but keep to the sensible on the food. Have table favors, of course, for this carries out the theme and the children adore it. It stimulates conversation and keeps things going smoothly.

Fresh salmon steaks may be used in making the flaked salmon called for in this recipe. Serve it on small toast rounds and the children will adore it:

Salmon Timbales.
(Serves 8)

4 eggs, slightly beaten
2 cups milk
1 cup bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons chopped pimento
1 pound salmon, flaked
1 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons shortening
1 teaspoon onion juice
8 toast rounds
Parsley

Add butter and bread crumbs to hot milk, then stir until all soaked. Add slightly beaten eggs, flaked salmon (steam fresh salmon 8 to 10 minutes, then flake), pimento, salt, paprika and onion juice. Pour into buttered timbale or greased custard cups. Bake in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 15 to 20 minutes. Unmold on toast rounds, garnish with parsley and serve.

Few children would pass up this delicious cheese 'n bread dish—it's delicious and good for them, too!

1 cup grated cheese
1 cup bread crumbs
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon salt

Beat egg yolks until lemon colored. Cook cheese, bread crumbs, milk, butter and salt over low heat, stirring constantly. Add beaten egg yolks. Fold in stiffly beaten whites. Pour into a well-greased casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes or until inserted knife comes out clean.

An afternoon party menu may consist of assorted sandwiches.

Deviled Egg and Cheese Sandwiches.

1 tablespoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
6 slices buttered whole wheat bread
3 wafer-thin slices of Swiss-type cheese
Watercress
Dill pickles

Top egg slices with cheese and a second piece of bread. Cut in halves and garnish with watercress and dill pickles.

A citrus fruit drink is refreshing, fine for keeping up young spirits busy at play during party time. Keep all the flavor in the orange juice plus valuable vitamin C by squeezing it only just before serving. To have chilled juice, chill whole oranges in refrigerator before extracting juice.

Wholesome drink with a party air is this cool glass of orange juice topped prettily with orange sherbet, decorated sprigs of mint and whole raspberries. Orange float will keep you cool and full of pep, for vitamin C helps mitigate effects of heat.

Orange Sherbet.

1 cup water
2 egg whites stiffly beaten
2 cups orange juice
3 tablespoons lemon juice

Boil sugar and water together for 5 minutes. Beat egg whites slowly and add to fruit juices. Mix all ingredients and pour into freezing tray of mechanical refrigerator. Freeze stiff, then beat thoroughly. Return to freezing compartment and freeze until stiff.

Peanut Butter Cookies
(Makes 2 dozen)

1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup honey
3 tablespoons corn syrup
¼ cup peanut butter
½ cup shortening
Apple butter

Sift all dry ingredients together. Cream shortening, add to peanut butter, honey and corn syrup. Add flour and roll dough into size you prefer for finished cookies. Chill for 15 minutes. Cut into thin slices and top half of them with apple butter. Cover with a second slice of dough and seal as for a tart. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees) for 25 minutes.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

When our present synthetic program has materialized, a B.F.Goodrich official predicts the resultant rubber surplus will cause one of the most serious post-war marketing problems. What to do with the huge stocks of synthetic and natural rubber will test the ingenuity of manufacturers and sales executives.

A substitute for rubber adhesive tape is being sought. Thousands of pounds of this tape are being used to protect plastic airplane glass in transit to airplane factories.

Seventy-three per cent of the 140,000 workers of 94 war plants in 10 states go to and from work by private automobiles. Nearly three-quarters of the cars used by these workers have tires more than half worn out, many of them unfit for re-capping.

Minnehaha Springs Farm Women Hold May Meeting

The May meeting of the Minnehaha Springs Farm Women's Club was held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Barlow, May 7, 1943. Thirteen members and two visitors were present. Mrs. Clyde Bussard conducted an interesting devotional service based on points used in the Vesper services at Jackson's Mill during the recent planning conference there. Later in the program Mrs. Bussard gave a detailed account of her trip and work at the conference.

Roll call was responded to by each member exhibiting and explaining the use of her "pet" time-saver in canning. Many helpful ideas were gained from this feature. The discussion of the lesson, "Time Savers in Food Conservation," was led by Mrs. Lloyd Pennybacker and participated in by the entire club. Mrs. A. T. White demonstrated "Good 'Posture While Canning"—how to sit, stand, and how to lift heavy containers. Mrs. Barlow exhibited some very interesting heirlooms.

Following adjournment, delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. Next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Julian Lockridge on Wednesday afternoon, June 2.

Men In Service Not Getting Enough Mail

Many fans is definitely worried about his boys in service not getting enough mail from home. All who are in touch with the situation agree that it is just for the simple—the mails are large front and not frozen.

Part of the trouble is that many of the men in the Armed Forces and many of their relatives and friends still live within regularly enough, but the most trouble seems to be that many of the letters go astray.

There's no more confidence in the addressing of letters, and sometimes too much haste, or those that are written. Here's where V-Mail comes in.

The Army Department is campaigning and urging and effort, for greater use of V-mail. It says, in effect: "Every letter written to the man in the service without V-mail." And it is doing V-mail for 5 months.

What about the privacy of V-mail? People have trouble that it goes through the photographic machines and never gets, and only the censor sees the letter. Therefore, it is just as private as any other letter.

So far the writer, I do not see any other kind of mail. If a roll of film is sent in under the envelope another roll can be enclosed and forwarded.

Aside from the matters of the business and trading there has been a personal letter. I don't know how many letters or cards I have written to the boys in the service. Many times I just wanted to write a letter, but I didn't have the time. Many times I have written letters when I was tired and sleepy. Many times I have written letters when I was in a hurry. Many times I have written letters when I was in a good mood. Many times I have written letters when I was in a bad mood. Many times I have written letters when I was in a hurry. Many times I have written letters when I was in a good mood. Many times I have written letters when I was in a bad mood.

WAR BOARDS MAY NOW CANCEL FARM MACHINERY QUOTAS

A revised farm machinery rationing order now enables the State USDA War Board, at its discretion, to cancel county quotas on any or all types of quota machinery. The order also gives County Farm Rationing Committees authority to set the expiration date of purchase certificates between 10 to 60 days after they are issued. Manufacturers are allowed to release larger percentages of their 1943 production for distribution under the order.

WAR LOAN COMMITTEE MEMBERS PRAISED

An interesting letter from Hugh Leach, chairman of the United States Treasury War Finance Committee in the Fifth Federal Reserve District, contained some informative comment on the recent War Loan Drive. Mr. Leach says:

"The Second War Loan Campaign passes into history after three weeks of intensive effort on the part of every member of our organization. When the District quota of $350,000,000 for sales to investors other than commercial banks and dealers was announced, it was felt that the accomplishment of the task before us would stretch our capacities to the very limit. We had been highly successful in the December campaign but the total raised was less than $300,000,000, and many large subscriptions made then could not be repeated in April. Time available for effective coordination of the activities of the Victory Fund Committee and the War Savings Staff and establishment of necessary city and county organizations seemed inadequate. To add to the unfavorable outlook, the Red Cross campaign in March had left many of you weary of campaigning.

"Your response to the opportunity for service in the country's war effort was immediate and energetic. You know the result. The total of nearly $400,000,000 which you achieved was amazing and unprecedented.

"There is no solid satisfaction for each one of you in the fine job that has been done."

Doughboys Need More Pork

U. S. Doughboys will need a lot more pork in 1943, for there'll be a lot more doughboys and they'll have use for every ounce of the energy and muscle pork helps build. It's estimated that our military and lend-lease pork requirements this year will exceed last year's by more than 1½ billion pounds. To meet the need, farmers of this State are being asked during the Farm Mobilization Campaign to raise more and bigger hogs in 1943. Farmers plan to feed hogs to heavier weights, like the man in the top picture, and to increase farrowings by around 15 percent in many regions.

NURSES' AIDES CAN GET SHOES

Nurses' aides needing nurses shoes can obtain them even though they have spent stamp 17 if there are no unspent stamps available from members of their families, Roger R. Clouse, Acting Regional Director of the U. S. Office of Civilian Defense for the Fifth Region announced today.

Mr. Clouse said that, in response to a request by OCD National Director James M. Landis, the Office of Price Administration has outlined its policy as follows:

"The need for special work shoes for Nurses' Aides has been recognized, and they have been given the same privileges as graduate nurses and other persons who require special shoes necessary for the performance of their jobs. To acquire nurses' white shoes, a Nurses' Aide must first use her stamp 17. If she has none, and no stamps are available from a member of her family she may apply to her local Board for a special shoe stamp (on OPA Form R-1703).

"The use of her stamp or the stamp of a member of her family for such white shoes will not prevent her from acquiring shoes for general wear if she has none or has only one pair and needs two pairs. She may make further application to her Board for the shoes needed for general wear in such a case."

Nurses' Aides are members of the United States Civilian Defense Corps of Civilian Defense who volunteer for hospital duty and are trained under the auspices of the American Red Cross.

PRODUCTION CORPS OF LOCAL RED CROSS HAS BEEN ACTIVE

The Production Corps of the Pocahontas County chapter of the American Red Cross, under the direction of Mrs. Mary Y. Kincaid, has been particularly active during the winter and spring seasons. Recent shipments have included the following:

Garments, including men's hospital convalescent robes, 51 pieces; men's hospital pajamas, hospital bed jackets, 215 pieces; skirts, women's slips, dresses, blouses, boys' shirts, 102 pieces; boys' pants, rompers, boys' shirts, pieced quilts, layettes, refugee knitting, amounting to 962 pieces; and also 325 pieces of base hospital supplies. Through the winter months the production committee shipped 369 pieces of knitted garments for the armed forces, including sweaters, helmets, watch caps, navy sweaters, mufflers and wristlets.

All of this work is done by women volunteers throughout the county, according to Mrs. Kincaid, and in addition to the sewing and knitting, a large shipment of Red Cross kit bags for distribution to soldiers and marines embarking for foreign duty, was provided. The kits are made of olive drab material and contain a small sewing kit, soap, playing cards, cigarettes, shoe polishing cloth, small pencil, envelopes and paper, package of life-saver mints, pair of 40-inch shoelaces, double edge razor blades, small book (pocket-size detective, humorous, etc.), sewing case containing needles, thread, pins, and buttons of all kinds.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Attu Victory Brings U. S. Nearer Tokyo; Flood Damage Menaces Food Production; Labor Stirred by Lewis Bid to AFL; Churchill: 'Bomb Jap Cities to Ashes'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Feted from one end of the country to the other for his exploits in shooting down the record number of 26 Jap planes, Marine Capt. Joseph Foss received from President Roosevelt the Congressional Medal of Honor for "outstanding heroism and courage above and beyond the call of duty." Photo shows, left to right: President Roosevelt; Mrs. Mary Foss, mother of the air hero; Captain Foss and his wife, June, adjusting the medal around his neck.

ALEUTIANS:
Tokyo Gets Nearer

The Japanese government had prepared the civilian population of Nippon for the fall of Attu through the medium of a report indicating that the last defenders of the Aleutian Islands outpost were making a death stand against attacking American troops.

While the Japs were singing their Attu swan song, reports from Washington had disclosed the strategic move that had succeeded in bottling the enemy up. Two American columns, landed on opposite sides of the island, had joined and trapped the Japs on a narrow front on the northwestern end of Attu.

Japs Warn Reds

As American air power thus moved closer to Tokyo, the Japs showed their unrest. Apparently the success of Allied bombings of Germany had stirred the Japanese government to the dangers ahead should the United Nations be permitted by Russia to use Siberian bases.

The result was a Tokyo broadcast reported by the British warning Russia that "if in the future she ever put her Siberian bases at the disposal of the United States, the Japanese army will resort to a blitzkrieg and will deal upon her the heaviest blows Russia has ever known."

AFL TO LEWIS:
'Come Back Home'

Unpredictable John L. Lewis knocked at the door of the American Federation of Labor carrying in his hand an application for the readmission of his United Mine Workers. Just eight years before he had torn the parent union asunder in the greatest labor schism in history.

That the door would be opened wide to the errant Mine Workers was evident from AFL President William Green's announcement that the federation's executive council was considering Lewis' application in an "orderly and sympathetic way." Green said he personally welcomed the miners and reminded the public that for seven or eight years he had said the latch string was out and he wanted the miners "to come back home."

What effect Lewis' move would have on the present peace negotiations between the AFL and the CIO which Lewis founded and later quit, was not immediately evident.

EUROPE:
Air Blasts Continue

In the wake of sinking food ships that had swept dangerously through Germany's industrial Ruhr valley, Nazi Air Chief Hermann Goering, architect of Hitler's mighty American Flying Fortresses pitched further punishment on the Reich in attacks on submarine and shipbuilding ports at Kiel and Flensburg, 40 miles away.

Air Force commentators said the simultaneous attacks had left both targets in flames and that from many miles away flames could be seen.

Peril Farm Output

Ruined crops, inundated cities, damaged homes and casualties from drownings resulted from the disastrous flood that started in Midwestern farm states and spilled south from rivers and streams flowing into the Mississippi river.

As emergency crews and troops had toiled to check the rise of flood waters and hold down damage from breaks in Mississippi river levees protecting rich farm lands and war plants, weather bureau officials attributed the flood to unprecedented May rains.

In Illinois alone the continuous rains had destroyed 100,000 acres of corn, wheat and oats. Other states reporting serious crop destruction were: Indiana, Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas and Oklahoma. The flood losses represented a critical threat to the nation's epochal wartime food production crusade. The damage resulted not only from crops already in, but from serious delays in planting corn and other vital cereal crops.

CLOTHES:
May Avoid Rationing

Rationing of clothing and other textiles may be avoided as a result of plans worked out between officials of the War Production board and retail clothing dealers, it was announced in Washington.

Under the new plan the WPB will make possible increased production of more essential types of clothing and textiles. At the same time retailers have promised to revise certain practices and develop new methods designed to relieve pressure on the industry.

"We believe we can avoid clothes rationing and other textiles this winter and perhaps indefinitely, if we get adequate support from the public," said an official statement.

CHURCHILL:
'Hitler First; Japs Next'

War to the death on Japan, but defeat of Hitler first was the recipe for complete United Nations' victory prescribed by Prime Minister Winston Churchill in his historic speech before congress.

Answering congressional critics who predicted that Britain would leave the burden of defeating Japan to America, Mr. Churchill pledged the empire to war side by side with the United States "while there is still breath in our bodies and while blood flows through our veins." He promised, further, that British air power will join with American to bomb Jap cities and war industries, adding: "It is there they must surely be before peace comes to the world."

He defended present United Nations strategy founded on the judgment of President Roosevelt, himself and their military advisers that "while defeat of Japan would not mean the defeat of Germany, the defeat of Germany would infallibly mean the ruin of Japan."

Greater aid for both China and Russia were promised by Churchill.

GAS CRISIS:
Middle West Next?

As the gasoline supply crisis mounted along the Atlantic seaboard, Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown decreed a complete ban on pleasure driving in 12 eastern states, part of another and in the District of Columbia.

The states affected by the ruling were Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia. In addition eight eastern counties in West Virginia were affected.

Previously the OPA had sought to curb nonessential driving through a voluntary "honor system."

That additional restrictions loomed ahead was indicated by Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes, who said that the East would have to cut its gasoline consumption still further and that new restrictions may be put into effect in the Middle West so that some gasoline may be diverted from there to the seaboard area.

FOOD CONFERENCE:
Postwar Goals Outlined

Continuance of food rationing after the war, the creation of a global agricultural commission and the assurance that the people of the world will be better fed in the postwar period were among goals agreed upon by delegates representing the "big four" of the United Nations—the United States, Great Britain, China and Soviet Russia—attending the food conference at Hot Springs, Va.

In addition the delegates were said to be in agreement on declarations advocating continued agricultural expansion throughout the period of post-war relief, on a statement favoring the reduction of world tariffs and on educational measures to promote better nutritional goals.

Although no binding agreements linked the delegates, Paul H. Appleby, undersecretary of agriculture and acting chairman of the American delegation, said that representatives of 44 governments attending the conference had come forward with offers of co-operation.

FARM IMPLEMENTS:
Bigger Output Ahead

Production of farm machinery in 1944 at an estimated rate of 80 per cent of the average annual output in the 1940-41 period, and unlimited production of repair parts was approved by the War Production board.

Release of the official order awaited completion of a farm-to-farm check being made by the War Food administration to determine specific machinery items needed by 6,000,000 farmers, Paul Henry, head of the WFA's production equipment branch, revealed.

DONALD NELSON

Concentration of the farm equipment industry previously ordered in a WPB directive, is to be eliminated. Donald Nelson, WPB chairman, announced that "concentration is a dead duck." Thus large farm equipment manufacturers whose sales are over $10,000,000 are permitted to come back into production.

RUSSIANS:
Reds Press Hard

Even as former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies was engaged in conferences with Russ Premier Joseph Stalin in furtherance of his second and historic mission to Moscow, Red armies were reported by the Germans to have launched major attacks on four points along a 1,100-mile section of the Eastern front from the Volkhov sector to the Kuban valley in the Caucasus.

In the Caucasus campaign Red army troops shattered two Nazi attacks, according to a Soviet report, and blasted 14 boatloads of Nazis attempting to retreat over the Kuban river.

In the vicinity of Novorossiisk, last remaining Axis bridgehead in the Caucasus, Russian forces continued their pressure, breaking up Nazi tank assaults and tightening their offensive ring around the key city.

CANNED FOODS:
More for Civilians

Civilian supplies of canned fruits and vegetables will be increased by approximately [illegible] cases from the 1942 pack because of reduced military demands for these commodities, the War Food administration announced.

Whether the new allocation would constitute a lowering of point values for canned goods was not known. Officials said this would depend on the size of the 1943 fruit and vegetable pack.

American Propaganda Strengthened by Victory

Triumph in Tunisia Furnishes Powerful Ammunition for Verbal Warfare; Axis Policy of Suppression Backfires.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

As this is written, America is preparing for the greatest assault on the German home front since the war began. The new offensive is made possible by two things: the fall of Tunisia which weakened the barricade of German morale, and the capture of the City of Tunis, where Africa's most effective radio station for reaching Europe is located. Because of the water-jump, the transmission from Tunis is especially faverable.

The members of the staff of the Office of War Information who man the front in the battle of verbal warfare say that their fire power has increased tremendously with the African military victory. They explain it this way: propaganda is a strange thing. Alone, it is not a very powerful weapon—it has to be backed up by events. Germany's barrage of words that had so much to do with preparing the way for her soldiers did not really become effective until Hitler had begun to act; until he could report his successful aggression, his blitz against Poland helped against Scandinavia; his victory in the low countries bolstered his "Victory in the West"—the film of that name was widely used as defeatist propaganda.

Because of this principle, American propaganda was handicapped. Until November fifth of last year, the only concrete thing which America had to talk about was production. But on and after that date, the attack from the radio stations in Africa jumped from the sniper to the machine-gun class because the enemy knew that not far from the radio station were American soldiers. America was actually in the war, physically participating against the troops of the Axis.

Truth Pays Dividends

Two things, the experts point out, strengthen the American attack. First, from the beginning, the Americans told the truth; they didn't overshoot the mark. Second, the Germans played down the Tunisian campaign, failed to prepare the people for the humiliating catastrophe ahead of them. And so Herr Goebbels, supposed to be past master of the art of psychological warfare, ignored one of its main thesis, namely, that it is a weapon that turns in your hands if it is forged of lies.

As Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, recently put it in an article in the spring issue of the Public Opinion quarterly —"Thanks to . . . the endeavor of the totalitarian governments to suppress all news and all opinion except what they choose to give out, the truth has become a more powerful weapon than ever before."

The American campaign now under way takes advantage of this fact, plus the fact that the Americans now have new and important truths to report.

There are two separate fronts: the people in the occupied countries; the enemy countries. To the former will go much of the same material as is directed at the enemy plus the warnings against premature uprisings and encouragement to the underground organizations to which the British have long been directing their broadcasts. They will be cautioned not to risk their lives until the final word is given.

Revolt in Holland

Recently, it was reported that a revolt had broken out in Holland after the prime minister of the Netherlands had ordered the Dutch ex-servicemen to resist the German order to report for internment. This was not an attempt at revolution. Those in the know understood the prime minister's message which was in no way different from the instructions to the Frenchmen to resist the conscription for labor in Germany. The French did resist and the whole plan was sabotaged.

What the Netherlanders will do can be imagined. As the Germans themselves put it, "The widespread stubbornness of the Dutch sticks until this day to the saying: 'The Germans have invaded our country, have not conquered it.'"

For the second front at which the Allied propaganda is aimed, the civilian population in the enemy countries, the story is a little different. It is specialized for Italy where the people are frankly told: "If you want to stop the bombing of your cities, make peace now." The Germans are not ready for such a message as this is written but they may be before long.

To them, defeatist propaganda will be served in large doses now much more effective since they have tasted real defeat in Africa. Instead of hammering on the theme as formerly, "the Allies will win," the radio now tells them in a cool and factual statement, "the Allies are winning." The unbeatable Germans were beaten in Africa.

The second line of attack is a variation of the invasion warning which now also is much more telling. No actual information can be broadcast on this subject and everything that is said is carefully checked by the general staffs but it follows the line of the President's statement after Casablanca, "We will attack the continent from the northern capes of Norway to the eastern islands of the Mediterranean"—and right now, the Germans are beginning to feel the truth of this statement.

Deadly Parallel

Details of the surrender at Tunis and Bizerte and on the Cape Bon peninsula will be repeated. Coolly and objectively, the deadly parallel will be presented; what the German government told the people would happen; what did happen; what the German communiques said had happened; what actually happened—the "fight to the last cartridge" versus the huge stocks of ammunition captured by the Allies and the German troops marching up without guards to report to the prison camps.

So Herr Goebbel's weapon, which has turned in his hand, is given a slight push.

The Germans are brilliant students but somehow their learning always seems to fall just a little short of practical application. Listen to what Herr Hitler himself wrote in "Mein Kampf" about American and British propaganda in the last war which he praised highly and which he admits he used as a model for his own in this war:

"The war propaganda of the English and Americans was psychologically correct," wrote the fuehrer-to-be as he sat in jail after his first putsch. "In the beginning, it sounded crazy and impudent; later, it was no more than unpleasant; and finally, it was believed. After four and a half years, there broke out in Germany a revolution whose slogans came from the enemy's war propaganda."

Hitler didn't know it but he was writing history that is about to repeat itself before long.

Planners for the Postwar World

Never before in history have men expended as much time and money in an effort to plan a better world. Kites rise against the wind and the demonology of Nazidom has swept away the gilt and the gee-gaws of our civilization and left bare the foundations with all their potential strength and pitiful weakness. The positive forces of evil have generated positive forces of good to oppose them.

At this moment more than 137 important government agencies in Washington and private organizations scattered throughout the country, not counting various state and smaller local groups "are engaged in research or public education on a national scale on the problems facing the United States when the war ends," according to the findings of a recent investigation by the Twentieth Century Fund, a research organization.

The interesting thing about these studies is that most of them agree on one constructive peacetime goal which is considered essential to bring about necessary reforms and that is "full employment"—in other words, a job for everybody who can and will work. The war has shown what tremendous, potential production is possible. If it is maintained, most of our other ills will fade.

POST-WAR PLANNING SHOULD BE REALISTIC

THE TALK WE HEAR of post-war planning consists almost entirely of impractical and impossible idealism. We talk as though America would mother the earth, would provide the brotherly love, the milk and honey, the ever-abundant life that would make people of every nation happy. To attempt any such program would mean merely to liquidate America. The Axis nations and their satellites must undoubtedly be policed for a long period. America cannot do all of that policing. We can only do our part.

When the war ends, millions of people of enemy and conquered nations must be succored and fed. America cannot do all of that. We can only do our part. If we attempt more than we can do, we will but liquidate America through the bankruptcy route. We will ruin the American people, American industry and the American government. Our impoverishment will benefit no other nation, but it will mark the end of all plans for world betterment.

Our post-war planning must be along realistic lines, only flavored with such idealism as can be applied in a practical way. Only such a program can be worked out to a satisfactory conclusion. We must think of America, just as the English people will think of England; as the Russians will think of Russia.

War will not have obliterated selfishness, and America cannot be the only unselfish nation if we are to continue to live and exert an influence.

Churchill has very definitely stated that he does not intend to liquidate His Majesty's empire. That was a practical statement without any false idealism. American statesmen must consider post-war problems from that same practical viewpoint as they pertain to the United States. We, alone, cannot hold the idealistic bag, as all too many of our people would have us do if they really mean what they are saying.

A bankrupt and dead America would not be a world asset.

LIVING STANDARDS IN 'BACKWARD' NATIONS

AS AN INCENTIVE for higher wage scales through which to raise living standards in the backward nations, why not an international tariff system based on the cost of production in exporting countries? For example:

If it costs as much, or more, to produce 100 pounds of pork in Canada as in the United States, the American pork market would be open to Canada.

If the cost of producing an automobile in Canada were greater than in the United States, Canada to collect a tariff equal to the difference in production costs on automobiles imported from the United States.

If the cheap labor and sweat-shop methods of Japan produce cotton fabrics at 50 per cent of the cost of producing similar fabrics in America, Japanese fabrics imported into the United States to pay an import duty of 50 per cent.

No import duties to be charged on materials or products imported into countries where such materials or products are not produced.

Import duties to change as production costs go up or down in the exporting or importing countries.

Tariffs to be fixed by an international commission with a veto power on the part of each nation as to import duties on materials or products coming into its territory, but each nation to exclude the import of such products from all countries.

Such a system would tend to raise wage scales as a means of reducing or eliminating tariff walls, or would afford protection for the wage scales and standards of living in the more progressive nations.

It would provide a means of helping people of those nations in which standards are low, such as India, China, Japan, and, proportionately, those of many other nations. It would practically close American markets to competitive merchandise from such countries until such time as wage scales and working conditions equaled those of this country, which provides approximately 50 per cent of the purchasing power of the world, a market consuming 50 per cent of the products of the world.

FORTY-FIVE THOUSAND FOREIGNERS without any education and who pay the government a quarter are not to be allowed to vote in the United States of America as it is at present constituted. And the law is that no government servant may so agree for publicity unless specifically authorized by congress.

TO THOSE WORKERS AND EMPLOYERS who, in the rush of war work, have failed to plant a tree each spring on the square or near each plant, keep singing an annual ground to keep the throughput bugs from destroying the crop. In rural communities such as the one in which I live, thinned gardens are annual job. Even discourteous planters along the edge of a sidewalk will not begin the annual trim. It will then a lovely garden is harvested.

Last Word in Deliciousness . . . Chicken Chowder!
(See Recipe Below)

Get Your Protein!

There's no reason why you should not be getting your necessary protein into your daily menus, or why using meat alternates, i.e.—foods you use alternately with meat—should become a dull or difficult problem.

Here's your opportunity to show your family what a really smart homemaker you are—for you can keep up their admiration for you by serving an endless variety of good egg and chicken dishes, and fish in all its variety. These foods are protein-rich and with a little ingenuity you can make a star performer out of many of them.

Chicken comes beautifully to the rescue for it's a good, complete protein and the supply is good, especially at the present time. Use chicken wisely, however, a little bit of it combined with other foods can make a meal or more out of one chicken. Here's an example:

Chicken Chowder.
(Serves 6)

1 cup cooked, diced chicken
2 ounces salt pork, finely diced, or
4 tablespoons chicken fat
2 to 4 tablespoons onion, finely chopped
2½ cups potatoes, diced
1 cup celery, diced
2 cups chicken stock
1 No. 2 can kernel corn
1 tall can evaporated milk
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Cook salt pork in sauce pan over low heat until lightly browned. Add chicken and onion and cook until onion is soft, but not browned. Add potatoes, celery and chicken stock. Simmer until vegetables are tender. Add corn, milk, and seasonings. Heat thoroughly, stirring occasionally. Season to taste with additional salt and pepper, if desired. Serve very hot with crackers, hard rolls or toast.

Make good use of crisp, cool vegetables to go into a salad with the Chicken Chowder to round out the meal:

Chef's Salad.
Serves 6)

1 head lettuce
2 tomatoes, cut in quarters
4 spring onions, cut fine

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Consumers can do a lot in stamping out the illegal sale of meat by making sure that all meat they buy comes from a carcass which carries the necessary stamps — the permit number of the slaughterer and a grade stamp.

Ceiling prices are in effect in many areas for meat. They are posted by the butcher near meat counters and you can consult them when buying your meat.

Changes have come about on the meat situation. No more double or triple wrapping is allowed for bread and rolls. No more leftover bread or rolls can be returned to the baker, nor can there be any fancy racks for displaying bread.

Retail bakers are limited to 15 varieties of bread and nine varieties of rolls in one shop. Many of these variations are designed to keep bread prices down.

Although voluntarily, bread wrappings have been stripped, the qualities are better. All white bread must now be enriched. Every loaf of white bread must contain not less than three parts per more than four parts of milk solids to 100 parts of flour.

Lynn Chambers' Point-Saving Menu

*Chicken Chowder
Crisp Crackers
*Chef's Salad
Stewed Rhubarb Cookies
Beverage
*Recipes Given

2 hearts of celery, cut fine
2 hard-cooked eggs, quartered

Wash lettuce and dry in towel. Break lettuce apart, but do not cut. Place in chilled bowl and add remaining ingredients. Toss lightly together with french dressing.

Another good dish using chicken, a complete protein food, and spaghetti usually classified as a second class protein food, is combined in this way:

Spaghetti and Chicken Casserole.
(Serves 8)

¼ cup chicken fat or shortening
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup flour
2 cups chicken stock
1 cup grated cheese
1 cup cooked tomatoes
2 cups diced chicken
1 8-ounce package spaghetti, cooked
½ cup buttered bread crumbs

Melt fat and cook onions slowly for 10 minutes. Add flour, stir well, add stock, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add cheese and stir until melted. Blend in tomatoes and chicken. Place chicken mixture and spaghetti alternately in greased casserole. Cover with buttered crumbs. Bake for 25 minutes in a 375-degree oven.

Ever think of creaming deviled eggs? They make a delicious main dish on warmer nights:

Creamed Deviled Eggs.
(Serves 4)

4 hard-cooked eggs
1½ teaspoons vinegar
½ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon sugar
1½ tablespoons melted butter
¼ teaspoon worcestershire sauce
1 cup white sauce

Cut eggs lengthwise into halves. Combine egg yolks with next seven ingredients. Beat together until well blended and smooth. Fill whites with yolk mixture, place in baking dish and cover with white sauce. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven 15 minutes. Serve hot on biscuits or toasted English muffins.

If desired, use ¾ cup condensed mushroom soup thinned with ¼ cup milk instead of the white sauce.

A dessert can take the place of a protein food for a meal and help you along in getting important body building and maintaining material, if it's a dessert like this:

Oatmeal Peach Pudding.
(Serves 6)

2 cups canned peaches, fresh rhubarb or apples
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon butter
¼ cup melted shortening
¼ cup brown sugar
½ cup sifted flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon soda
½ cup quick-cooking oatmeal
½ teaspoon vanilla

Arrange fruit in shallow, greased baking dish. Sprinkle with lemon juice and cinnamon and dot with butter. Combine melted shortening and brown sugar. Sift flour, salt and soda together and mix the oatmeal. Blend in sugar mixture, crumbling well, then add vanilla. Spread over fruit and bake for 45 minutes in a 350-degree oven. Serve warm with pudding sauce or top milk.

PETER COMFORTS PERSECUTED CHRISTIANS

LESSON TEXT—I Peter 3:13-22; 4:12-19; 5:6-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—For it is better, if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well-doing, than for evil-doing.—I Peter 3:17.

What shall we do? Where shall we turn? Is there no help for us? Such are the natural and understandable cries of those who bear the heavy heartbreak of persecution. God's Word has the answer, for from the very beginning the followers of Christ have had to meet that problem.

Peter is especially the apostle of comfort, and the portion now before us is rich in helpful instruction. His word to persecuted people is five-fold.

I. Do Not Be Afraid—Christ Is Lord (3:13-17).

By doing good the Christian will escape much suffering (v. 13), but if even then it comes, he is not to be afraid (v. 14). He is to sanctify Christ in his heart, that is, fully recognize the holiness of Christ and all that He is and can do for him. This is to be done in his heart. That means the exercise of full faith in Christ the Lord as the indwelling Presence. Who then can be afraid?

Note that this is not just a subjective spiritual exercise for his own enjoyment—it will show in his "good manner of life in Christ" which will put his persecutors "to shame" (v. 16). How effectively that has worked only recently in Germany, Norway and elsewhere.

II. Do Not Be Surprised—the Enemy Will Attack (4:12, 13).

Surprise attack is effective. Remember Pearl Harbor! Satan is an expert in strategy, and is eager to keep Christians in an easy and comfortable mood, so that he may strike a vicious blow when it is not expected. We best prepare to meet him when we recognize that persecution and suffering will come.

We are to bear in mind that it is not some "strange thing" which has happened; we who suffer as Christians are "partakers of Christ's sufferings." Joy and glory are ahead.

III. Do Not Be Ashamed—You Suffer for Christ (4:14-16).

Sadness and depression rest upon the one who suffers for his own evil deeds, but those who suffer for Christ's sake may be ever rejoicing. Can you not see that "the spirit of glory and the Spirit of God" are resting (v. 14) even now on some who sit in prisons and concentration camps? What a glorious picture of His grace!

It is proper to observe here that the believer is not to be guilty of that which justly brings the law's condemnation (v. 15). Do not fail to note the last of the list of crimes—"meddler in other men's matters." Has not just that caused endless trouble in the church, and harmed its testimony before the world? Let's quit meddling!

IV. Do Not Worry—He Careth for You (5:6, 7).

Worry! Worry! How it does crowd itself into our thinking. Yes, we know we are Christians, that we are unjustly accused or persecuted, that we are suffering for Christ's sake. That's all true, but how is it all coming out? What about my family? Will they harm my children? If I do survive will I be able to start life anew? And so on—questions without end; and soon comes the corroding touch of worry.

What shall we do? The answer is plain. Cast all your care on Christ—"He careth for you" (v. 7). That takes an act of faith just as it does to become a Christian in the first place, but it works.

The cure for all anxiety is right there—but it can only be reached by the path of humility. "Humble yourselves" (v. 6). There is the gateway to comfort, and to true exaltation in God's own good time (cf. Jas. 6:4-10).

V. Do Not Waver—God Is Your Strength (5:8-10).

Steady, perfected, established in Christ, sure of his eternal destiny and with the eyes of faith seeing the glory to come—such is the man who is ready and able to meet the devil when, like a roaring lion, he seeks to disturb and devour God's people. The believer should be ready and equipped.

That does not mean that the Christian sits with his hands folded waiting in a fatalistic way for the inevitable to happen. Never! He is "on the alert" with his spiritual ears attuned to hear the approach of the enemy's "bombers." He is "sober and watchful" against the "roaring lion" (v. 8).

Satan is unusually busy in our day. Alert Christian people see his deadly onslaughts on their brethren, which are possibly more severe now than for many years. He is seeking to break them down physically, mentally and spiritually, to make them fearful, to make them timid about walk for Christ, to think their testimonies, and to steal from them their victorious assurance. He is busy—but so be sure against him.

Uncle Phil Says:

It is curious how a Pullman porter never fails to recognize the really great.

Love makes the world go around, but it takes money to square it.

If you are so unhappy as to have a foolish friend, be yourself wise.

You have to be on the other side of the cloud to see the silver lining.

It is not well to have an open door and a locked up countenance.

What is the most welcome gift you can send to a man in the service? Well, surveys among service men themselves show that one of the favorite packages from home are cigarettes. And first choice among men in all the services is Camel, based on the actual sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens. Though there are now Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen wherever they are.—Adv.

Kidneys Must Work Well-
For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, loss of energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes or dark circles. Why not use Doan's Pills? They are for poorly working kidneys. Are used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Use only as directed. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. Ask your neighbor!

Here's How It Works

The War Manpower Commission "freezes" all workers in their jobs.

"Raiders" invade the Southern West Virginia coal fields and sign up 28 miners of one company to work in one of Henry Kaiser's shipyards—which couldn't run if coal production were stopped.

Not a federal agency lifted a hand to stop the raid. Comapny managers had to appeal to the Manpower Commissioner to obtain relief.

Bread Upon The Waters

Administration "planners" have confessed that 10,000 bushels of government-owned wheat is rotting in bins in Nebraska because "of a little negligence on our part." That's enough wheat to make about 760,000 loaves of bread.

This Will Make 'Em Sorry!

Washington is taking care that the Japs get plenty—not of punishment for their barbarous slaughter of American fliers, but of good food and luxury products.

In one concentration center in Wyoming where there are 10,300 Japs, the government has stored up enough food to last 3 years, 7 months, and two weeks. That food would cost American housewives 20,-017,222 ration points.

88,480 cans of fruits.

28,000 pounds of meat delivered at one time.

A carload of baby foods—spinach, carrots, strained juices.

We certainly are not inhumane, and would not want to see the interned Japs mistreated or starved—but we are not of the opinion that such boundless generosity will ever make them sorry for the treachery of Pearl Harbor and the other long list of crimes to their credit.

COMMERCIAL JARS USED FOR CANNING

By Barbara M. Bragg
Home Demonstration Agent

Every glass jar in cellar, attic, or cupboard can do a job for home canning this summer. That includes jars that came filled with peanut butter, mayonnaise, and so on, if they can be fitted with a regular home-canning top to make an airtight seal. Of course, that airtight seal is important. Without it food would spoil right away.

A leaflet just published in the Bureau of Home Economics shows how you can tell which commercial jars can be used for home canning. The three new kinds of wartime jar tops, which all use less metal and less rubber than the old-style screw-on with a shoulder rubber, will fit any standard Mason-size opening and a deep screw-thread band.

The standard Mason-size opening is 2⅝ inches wide, but the way to find out if a jar has an opening that can be fitted with standard lids is by trying it. Take an old zinc lid from a Mason jar and try screwing it on the jars. Sort out the jars it fits. They are the jars you will be able to buy standard lids for.

Here is something you will want to watch. Some of the jars that come filled with commercial products have a shallow screw thread, even though the opening is the standard Mason size. If you've saved the original screw-on tops, you can use those jars again with a new metal disc with a flowed-on rubber gasket.

Commercial jars with smaller than standard-size openings can be used if you have the metal screw bands that came with them. New discs to go with the metal screw bands are sold in the grocery stores, the same place you buy the coffee or other foods packed in the small-mouth jars.

Thousands of women re-used commercial jars last summer successfully. More can do it this year if they have a few facts to guide them. Using these jars isn't so complicated when you come to grips with the jars. For more information, just address a postcard to Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., and ask for the glass jar leaflet.

THE STORY SO FAR: The story of their part in the battle for the Philippines is being told by four of the five naval officers who are all that is left of Motor Torpedo Boat Squadron 3. They are Lieut. John Bulkeley (now Lieutenant Commander), squadron commander; Lieut. R. B. Kelly, second-in-command; and Ensigns Anthony Akers and George E. Cox Jr. Manila has fallen, and we have lost our naval base at Cavite. Lieut. Kelly has told how he spent New Year's Eve in the hospital on Corregidor, while Lieut. Bulkeley was discussing with the Admiral a plan of escape to China. Lieut. Bulkeley is telling about a night raid two of the PT boats made against the Japs. Lieut. Bulkeley rode in the 34 boat.

CHAPTER VI

"So we separated, expecting to meet at dawn. It was the last I ever saw of the 31 boat. But here's what happened to our 34 boat in Subic. First, remember it was darker than hell, and the shore line was loaded with Jap field guns. None of us had ventured in there since the Japs took over. We had got in just a little way when a Jap searchlight spotted us and blinked out a dot-dash challenge, asking who we were. Since we didn't know the Jap code reply, naturally we didn't answer, but changed course, veering away. But the Japs were getting suspicious by now, and from over by Ilinin Point a single field piece opened up. None of it fell near us—maybe they were shooting at DeLong in the 31 boat.

"When we were about abeam of Sueste light another light came on to challenge us—this time from a ship — maybe that cruiser. We changed course to go over and have a look, but she was small fry—not worth a torpedo—the hell with her—we were headed for Binanga and the cruiser.

"By one o'clock we were off the north entrance to Port Binanga, where we were to meet DeLong in the 31 boat and go in together for the attack, and when he didn't show up, I began to be afraid something might have happened, yet I couldn't be sure.

"But there was nothing to do but go on in alone. To make the sneak, we cut the speed down to eight knots, skirted Chiquita Island, rounded Binanga Point, and entered the little bay on two engines at idling speed. Everything was quiet, no firing down here, and then we saw her ahead in the dark not five hundred yards away. Creeping up on her, we had just readied two torpedoes when a searchlight came on and in dot-dash code she asked who we were.

"We answered, all right—with two torpedoes—but they had hardly been fired when I gave our boat hard rudder and started away. It isn't safe for an MTB to stay near a cruiser. One torpedo hit home with a hell of a thud—we heard it over our shoulders. Looking back, we saw the red fire rising, and presently two more explosions which might have been her magazines.

"But we had no time for staring, for we were into plenty trouble. One of those torpedoes had failed to clear its tube and was stuck there, just at the entrance, and was making what we call a 'hot run,' its propellers buzzing like hell, compressed air hissing so you couldn't hear yourself think. But worst of all, a torpedo is adjusted so that it won't fire until its propeller has made a certain number of revolutions—I shouldn't give it exactly, but let's say it is three hundred. After that, the torpedo is cocked like a rifle, and an eight-pound blow on its nose would set it off—blowing us all to glory.

"So what to do? Somehow that torpedo propeller had to be stopped and stopped quick, or else a good hard wave slap on the torpedo's nose would blow us all to splinters. And at this point our torpedoman, Martino, used his head fast. He ran to the head and swiped a handful of toilet paper. He jumped astride that wobbling, hissing torpedo like it was a horse, and, with the toilet paper, jammed the vanes of the propeller, stopping it.

"We'd stopped for all this, but we couldn't afford to wait long. The engineer's fire was lighting up the bay behind us. Ahead, all over Subic, hell was breaking loose. So we started up, gave her everything we had to get through that fire.

"With three motors roaring, and us skipping around in that rough water with everything wide-open, I guess we made considerable noise. Anyway the Japanese radio in Tokyo, reporting the attack next day, said the Americans had a new secret weapon—a monster that moved, blasted its wings, and flew! Anyway, it all seemed to work out in the end, for we got through that fire, and that was all there was to it.

"Well," said Kelly, "Mendenhall wouldn't quite agree. He gave you the U.D.C. for what you'd done."

"But finding him the next day," continued Bulkeley, "I pulled up with the same load of congratulations to want to get into it again. Because of an order to send it out to sea, I was forced to go on to the dock and then, possibly under the noses of the Japs, would have to run the gauntlet of fire from the shore batteries and all of the ships and subs in the harbor. Which was what I did. But when the dust and smoke had cleared away, I was the hero once again, and I was the hero who'd brought back the bacon. Admiral Rockwell was there, and he said, 'Let's have a statement of the circumstances of last night's action and the details of the attack.'

"'Hey, Joe—got a cigarette and a match?' they called out. And an hour later they were telling their story to Captain Cockburn, in the Ninety-second American Infantry's field headquarters tent. The nine were back with us at Sisiman Cove the next evening."

"That afternoon Bulkeley came over to tell me the story of the engagement. When he was through, 'Kelly,' he said, 'we need you.'

"'Let's get ahold of that doctor,' I said, 'and you tell him that.' This time it worked. The hole in my finger was still almost three inches long and about an inch wide, with some of the tendon exposed (but in a month it was healed, except that I can't move my finger joints). I had to promise them faithfully I would show up every other day for treatment, but the point of it was I got out of that place.

"Two days later I took the 34 boat out on my first patrol from Corregidor up along Bataan toward Subic Bay—Bulkeley, who as squadron commander rode all boats on patrol, of course was with me. It was a calm night—and chilly. Sweaters were comfortable over our khakis, although in the daytime we wore only shorts or trunks.

"Everything was going well, in fact it was monotonous. But when we were about twenty-five miles up the coast, hell suddenly started popping. Our own batteries were shooting at us. Bulkeley explained to me that was the main excitement these days—to keep from being sunk by your own side—and calmly altered course to get out of their range, which we could tell by the light of their tracer bullets.

"'Half the time those dumb dastards don't know friend from foe,' he explained.

"Five minutes later we saw a dim light, low in the water, and headed toward it. Was it a Jap landing barge, trying to get ashore behind General Wainwright's lines? Then it occurred to us that it might be Ensign Plant and the two other men of DeLong's boat who had disappeared in Subic Bay. They might have stolen a boat and now be headed home—we couldn't take chances. So without firing we drew nearer, watching the light.

"Presently it began to blink—dots and dashes, all right, but no message that we could read. Bulkeley ordered general quarters as a precaution, and the men were crouching behind their machine guns. It was about twenty-five yards away now—a queer-shaped boat, low in the water—and suddenly its light went out.

"Bulkeley stood up with the megaphone. 'Boat ahoy!' he called. He got a quick answer. Br-r-r-r-r-r-r! They opened on him with machine guns. It looked like a fire hose of tracer bullets headed for our cockpit, and now they speeded up, trying to head for shore. But we were pouring the fire back at them.

"Now we could see it was a Jap landing barge, packed with men. It had armor on the bow and the stern, and kept twisting and turning, trying to keep those thick steel plates pointed toward us. Of course our maneuver was to come in from the side, and let them have it where they couldn't take it.

"All this had been going on for about thirty seconds when I heard a cry of pain from behind. It was Ensign Chandler. 'I've been hit,' he said. A Jap bullet had gone through both of his ankles. We pulled him out of the cockpit and laid him down on the canopy, meanwhile circling the Japs and pouring the steel down into their vulnerable sides. We could soon see we were getting them. The barge sank lower and lower in the water and presently gurgled under, while we pulled off to lick our own wounds, give first aid to Chandler, and locate any other boats in the vicinity. Surely the Japs wouldn't attempt a landing with a single barge. All we got, though, was more fire from our own shore guns—a swarm of tracers and then 3-inchers began whistling over—one of them landing two hundred yards away. But we didn't mind. The army seemed to enjoy it, and it wasn't hurting us.

"We fooled around until almost dawn and were headed for home—we couldn't have got Chandler through the mine fields to the hospital until sunrise anyway, when Bulkeley happened to glance back.

"Through the half-light he could see, bobbing in the swell, another low-lying flat craft. Should we go back? You're damned right we should, the men said—to get even for Chandler by sinking some more.

"As we got closer, sure enough, it was another landing boat, this time apparently leaving the coast of Bataan, and we opened up on her with everything we had from four hundred yards away.

"But their return fire was quick and spasmodic. So we closed to about ten yards. Their fire had stopped, but their boat wouldn't. Our bullets would hit the armor and engines—you could see the tracers bounce off and ricochet one hundred feet into the air, but still it kept going. Suddenly a tree or bit the fuel tanks—or they went up a steam. The motor stopped, and now the boat was only drifting. But even as we pulled alongside, those Japs were dazed, gave but hard pushes and tried to turn on

"We answered, all right—with two torpedoes."

There's a Parting There

"One of our men, posted near an African village, was on lone duty when a darky native came to his camp.

"The native was admiring the hair parting of my soldier friend. Would the white soldier make a parting for him?

"Being at a loose end, the soldier tried his hand at it; but, try as he would, he could not part that matted darky head. At last he got out his razor, and, to the darky's delight, he shaved a parting for him!

"Reaction to this was that early next morning there were 10 darkies at the camp wanting 'a shaved hair parting, sah.'"

Trial Sans Prisoner

When a man indicted for a crime committed in Panama is a fugitive from justice, his trial is held without his presence, while the witnesses for the prosecution are alive, available and of sound memory, says Collier's. Recently, a safecracker began a six years' sentence within an hour after being captured, his trial and conviction having taken place three years before.
